LINDYS LAND AT ASIATIC ISLE

PLAN TO BUILD 1,000 HOMES AT REDUCED COSTS

Ask Cut of Labor, Material Men.

BY AL CHASE.

One thousand moderate sized homes will be erected in five different sections of Chicago, at a saving of at least $1,000 each over present prices, if negotiations to cut the cost of labor, building materials and financing now under way by a group of prominent Chicagoans are successfully carried through. Land values are to be reduced 25 per cent, and it is to be demanded by Chicago realty men for prebuilding sites.

AXEL LONNQUIST.

If this initial move to get building construction off its present dead level proves successful, a second thousand, perhaps even a third and fourth, will follow suit, according to the sponsors, a wave of general building activity will get into full swing, pushing the general business pendulum back to normalcy.

Promise Cut in Materials.

A cut of at least 12½ per cent in both lumber and brick, the two most important basic building materials, has been definitely promised by the heads of the largest concerns in those lines—the Hines Lumber company and the Illinois Brick company. This reduction is on top of the general drop in these building materials of about the same percentage in the last year or so, making a total of 25 per cent below the prices of 1927 and 1928.

Labor has been asked definitely to go along with the material men at the same ratio and reduce the union scale 25 per cent. Most of the big executives of the building trades unions have been present at the meetings, and while some have privately stated their wholehearted belief in the plan to relieve the present building situation, none has publicly said so. The plan is to be submitted to the men following another meeting to be held next Thursday at the Morrison hotel.

Those Attending Meetings.

Following are some of the leading citizens who attended the recent sessions, most of which have been held at the Chicago Athletic association: William Schlake, president of the Illinois Brick company; Charles Hines, vice president of the Hines Lumber company; J. E. Lindquist, vice president of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company; Axel Lonnquist, president of the Lonnquist company, builders; E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association; O. W. Rosenthal of the O. W. Rosenthal Investment company; Patrick Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council; Thomas Flinn, president of the Carpenters' union; Thomas Wallace, head of the Painters' union, and William Wilhartz, attorney for the Chicago Real Estate board.

The financing of these thousand homes, according to Mr. Lonnquist, was originated the idea of getting both material men and labor unions to reduce costs on a thousand homes. That is a simple matter. In fact, he says that the building material and real estate interests already have agreed to provide funds if labor agrees to go along with the plan.

A General Building Industries board is to be formed at the next session which will determine the method of procedure, policy to be used in construction and sale, as well as the plan of financing to meet the demands of the consumer," said Mr. Lonnquist.

Plan a Sample House.

At this same meeting a sample house will be considered by the various factions. It will be shown how much each interest will contribute toward carrying out the plan.

It is estimated that the average house which cost $10,000 three years ago can be built for about $8,500 now, with the present reductions in the cost of building materials but with labor still at the peak price. With labor liquidated temporarily for the erection of this first thousand homes, it is estimated that the cost price can be cut to $7,500.

Mr. Lonnquist has pledged $100,000 worth of vacant land from a group of realty men for preliminary sites and has started this fund with land valued at $10,000. The remaining $90,000 will be forthcoming promptly, he states.

The houses planned will range in size from five to seven rooms, and the prices will be as low as $7,000 and less than that figure up to $10,000.

TROOPS AHEAD, OCEAN BEHIND, ALL SURRENDER

Prisoners Are Put Aboard Gunboat.

BY DEAN SANBORN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Aug. 14.—President Machado's army, assisted by a lone gunboat, today captured Gen. Mario G. Menocal, former president, and Col. Carlos Mendieta, leaders of the revolution, and their general staff. The revolt leaders, exhausted and hungry, surrendered at Cayo Monte, a small isolated key on the northwest coast of the province of Pinar del Rio, close to the fishing village of Verde on the Verde river.

There was no chance for the bedraggled party of revolutionary chieftains to escape. In front of them were President Machado's soldiers and behind them was the river, the ocean, and the gunboat Fernandez Quevado, named after Col. Fernandez Quevedo, chief of staff of the Cuban navy.

Put Aboard Warship.

The two insurgent leaders and the ten members of their staff tonight are prisoners aboard the gunboat, which is steaming for Havana. The warship is expected to make port at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Official circles in Havana consider the capture as a crushing and final blow to the six-day old revolutionary movement. On the other hand, Gen. Menocal and his aides insist that the revolution is far from over and that his followers will carry on the war against the Machado regime. Their statement was partially borne out by reports of a furious battle raging tonight near the city of Santa Clara.

Representative Martinez Fraga of Havana, a Conservative.

Julio Cadenas, owner of the small yacht Coral, which was brought to Havana yesterday after being captured by the gunboat Havana off Cape San Antonio several days ago.

Dr. Raoul Menocal, son of the former president.

Dr. Luis Rodriguez, a Havana physician.

Dr. Hurtado of Havana, a recent graduate of the National university and organizer of the students' revolutionary army which was scheduled to revolt in Hanava several weeks before Gen. Menocal called on the entire island to rise.

Dr. Alvarez Tadio of Havana.

Dr. Saldia Pereda of Pinar del Rio City.

The prisoners are being guarded by troops aboard the gunboat. The gunboat Baire and the cruiser Cuba sailed from Havana tonight to escort the "prison ship" into port.

Menocal Tells His Story.

Gen. Menocal's own version of the capture, as told to Col. Manuel Benitez, military commander of Pinar del Rio province, an hour after the surrender, and received here follows:

"We are prisoners of war. My staff has been captured, but this does not mean that the revolution has failed. Far from it. Other outstanding rebels like Dr. Miguel Mariano Gomez and Col. Mendez Penate are still active in other provinces. I do not believe the army would have been able to locate us had not some one betrayed our presence here.

"Sailors Betrayed Us."

"Early this morning we received confidential reports that last night Col. Benitez had left the city of P. del Rio and was certain of our whereabouts. When we found a large force marching against us from every direction we realized we had been betrayed. Evidently the sailors, or some of the sailors on the yacht Coral, gave the government the information which led to our capture.

"With our yacht captured, thus precluding escape by the sea, and with soldiers approaching on all sides, the mountains offered our only salvation and only temporary salvation at that. Certain that death was imminent, we decided to flee as well as we could.

"Since 7 o'clock this morning we have walked nearly 20 miles from the

Lester C. Goff, 22 years old, 76 East 12th street, Chicago Heights, was seriously injured last night when his single seater plane went into a tailspin from a height of 300 feet and crashed on the farm of John Mulden at Vollmer road and the Dixie highway, Homewood. Goff is not a licensed flyer.

He was taken to St. James hospital in Chicago Heights, where he was given medical aid by Dr. David Harnett. Goff suffered a concussion of the brain, a broken jaw, a broken rib, and possibly internal injuries.

The plane in which Goff crashed was a Heath Parasol which he, his brother, Leonard, and some friends, had purchased recently. They reassembled it, and had it put through a test flight successfully by an aviator friend from Kankakee. Last night Goff hopped off alone in the plane. It went into a tailspin suddenly. He brought it out of the dive once, but it went into another spin and crashed.

It's Hay Fever Day for All but Lucky 8

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

This is, traditionally, the first day of the season when hay fever victims begin to sneeze and weep—all but eight lucky ones who are to enter a pollen-free ward in the University of Illinois Research hospital as subjects of an experiment in hay fever treatment.

After the first sluggish response to a plea for volunteers issued by physicians connected with university business became lively, and applicants appeared in large numbers. Letters from hay fever subjects, who dreaded the approach of Aug. 15, came from Pennsylvania, Virginia, Iowa, Michigan, throughout Illinois and elsewhere, pleading for a bed in the pollenless ward at any price.

Rich and Poor Fare Alike.

No discrimination is made between rich and poor, so long as they are genuine victims of hay fever. But some of the applicants, including a wealthy woman who has suffered from hay fever for 30 years and sought cures throughout Europe, refused to enter the ward unless they might pay. This was denied them, as it is a free institution.

An instructor in the University of Chicago is among the applicants, who form a waiting list of more than 100. A waiting list of 150 is desired.

Each applicant who is accepted will sleep for four nights in a ward where filters purify the air and prevent any pollen grains from creeping in. The ward accommodates eight sleepers. Women applicants number about the same as men. They will occupy the ward on alternate four day periods. The experiment, which will last six weeks, is to see if the symptoms will appear with eight hours' sleep in pure air, if the patients are allowed to leave the hospital in the daytime.

Few Jobless on List.

"Few of those on the waiting list are unemployed," said the physician in charge of the experiment. "Most of them are well to do, who will enter the hospital just to get four nights of uninterrupted sleep during their season of trial. Some of the men are planning to spend as much of their vacation there as we will allow."

The physician, who is a hay fever victim himself, received many telephone calls and letters from persons trying to sell him cures or give him advice.

Plane Falls; Woman Dies; Another and Pilot Hurt

Mendon, Mass., Aug. 14.—(AP)—A woman passenger was killed when an airplane piloted by Joseph Freitas crashed from a height of 750 feet at the Mendon airport tonight. Miss Doris Belcourt, Pawtucket, R. I., died of injuries. Freitas and Miss Mildred F. Pelletiere were seriously hurt.

SIX SPARROWS BEING TAUGHT TO BE CANARIES

A reporter visited the shoe repair shop of George Sabin at 913 Chicago avenue, Evanston, yesterday. He had heard that Mr. Sabin was experimenting in ornithological matters for an exhibit at the World's Fair.

Surroundings in the rear of the shop were naturalistic. In one corner was a tiny bush. In another a sapling. In the back rested a five foot cage. Inside the cage were six small birds. One or two of them chirped suspiciously like sparrows.

"Yes, they're sparrows," said Mr. Sabin. "I found a nest of them several months ago. They were mere fledglings."

"I whistle to them," the shoemaker continued. "I've been doing it now for three months, and they whistle in response, with longer rolls than the ordinary chirps. Whenever I get time I try to teach them to whistle."

"What do you expect to do with those sparrows?" the reporter asked.

The shoemaker's reply was concise. "I expect to make canaries out of them," he said.

A terrific explosion late last night destroyed the interior of the Delporte street shop at 1543 Howard street, hurled a wall of the building into the adjoining Howard inn, a restaurant, and broke windows in the Broadmoor hotel and in other stores for nearly a block along the street.

No one was in the candy store at the time of the blast, the proprietor having closed it at 9:30 p. m. The early investigation by the police and firemen indicated that the blast was caused by accumulating gas that had flowed either from an open jet or from a leak.

In the restaurant, which is at 1545, a cook and several waiters, all Chinese, were on duty. According to one of the waiters, Joe Sam, a party of eight patrons had had supper near the wall which caved in and had departed only a couple of minutes before the explosion. The Chinese suffered small cuts and bruises from flying glass. John Johnson, an agent for the Chicago Title and Trust company, estimated the damage at $15,000.

Probe $11,000 Robbery at Cafeteria Owner's Home

Police of the Hyde Park station are investigating a burglary at the home of A. J. Cooper, 5021 Woodlawn avenue, one of the owners of the Harmony cafeterias. The thieves, who entered the house on Aug. 10, escaped with a diamond and platinum ring valued at $10,000 and three other pieces of jewelry valued at a total of $1,000. Members of the family were away at the time.

Assessors Act to Get Bank Deposits Data

The initial step for the taxation of all personal property in Cook county, which has been estimated to be worth as much as thirty billions of dollars, in the 1931 quadrennial reassessment was taken by the board of assessors yesterday.

JOHN E. CONROY.

Fifty special delievry letters, the first of many thousands, were sent out demanding information which will enable assessments to be made on bank depositors, holders of stocks, bonds, mortgages, or other securities, and on stock exchange, board of trade, and club memberships. Others will follow today and within a week until the 259 banks in the county, financing corporations, and safety deposit companies have been ordered to furnish information.

State Law Is Cited.

All the letters cite the state law which designates personal and real property as the only two sources of revenue, and which declares that they shall be assessed on an equal basis.

The name and address of each depositor with a complete statement of his account as of April 1, the lists of the owners of collateral securities, and a list of the stockholders with the number and value of the shares each holds, is demanded from the banks.

Stock brokers and investment houses are called upon to file the names and addresses of all persons or corporations for whom they held, bought or sold securities during a period beginning April 1. Names of stockholders in building and loan associations, and sworn statements of all property held by pawnbrokers, acceptance and finance companies are ordered prepared and turned over to the board.

Letters to All Clubs.

Letters to the stock exchange and the board of trade and all the clubs in the county will order the names of the members and the value of the memberships be placed in the hands of the board for assessment.

Such property hitherto has been considered inaccessible and no effort has been made to assess it.

"We are doing the best we can in asking that the citizens and the corporations of the county coöperate with us," said John E. Conroy, member and secretary of the board. "We have done everything within our power when we have asked for these schedules. If we are refused we will place the matter in the hands of the state's attorney's office.

"If we get the information we are seeking, more than $400,000,000 worth of property will go on the books immediately and more will follow."

The action of the board, Conroy explained, was taken after the plea of numerous organizations of real estate taxpayers had sought relief from the high taxes and had pledged support of the program.

Bankers May Refuse.

Sentiment among the bankers and stockholders along La Salle street was that they would not comply with the requests of the assessors unless they were forced to do so.

"We consider the information which the assessors have sought as confidential," one banker declared. "It will be our attitude that the relationship existing between ourselves and our depositors is on the same basis as that between lawyer and client."

Taxation of the accounts of bank depositors, bankers pointed out, would wipe out the interest paid by the banks. The personal property will be assessed on the same basis as real estate, the assessors making their valuations on 37 per cent of the total value.

POLICE ARREST PAIR IN BULLET RIDDLED AUTO

Police of the Shakespeare avenue district were confronted with a mystery early this morning when they seized a bullet riddled automobile in which two men with blood soaked clothing were riding, and the back seat of which was covered with blood. The men refused to say where the shooting occurred or tell anything about it, or themselves.

A flivver squad was cruising at Charleston street and Hoyne avenue when the police sighted the automobile. They forced it to the curb and arrested the occupants. The men identified themselves as Martin Dominowski, 22 years old, 1623 Dickson street, and Albert Kamieniecki, 21 years old, 1509 Dickson street. Earlier in the night a gun battle between occupants of two automobiles at 51st street and Hoyne avenue was reported to the police, but they found no trace of the machines.

FLY HIGH AND FAST ON HOP FROM ALASKA

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 15 [Saturday].—(AP)—An amateur radio operator intercepted a message tonight from the St. Paul naval radio station in the Bering sea saying Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Karagin island at 10:49 p. m. last night [1:49 a. m. Chicago time].

The message was picked up by Harry Carney, who said the colonel and his wife had asked him to continue sending to them while they prepared to land.

Average 100 Miles an Hour.

The long flight from Safety bay, near Nome, Alaska, 1,067 miles by direct route, was made in 10 hours 49 minutes, with the plane finding good flying conditions most of the way.

The takeoff was at 9 a. m. [3 p. m. Chicago time] Friday. An average speed of 100 miles an hour, faster than on previous laps, was maintained.

Mrs. Lindbergh was in frequent radio communication through a prearranged schedule with the St. Paul naval radio station, which relayed the messages to other stations.

Another message was intercepted by Carney, who is the Canadian Press representative at the Seattle offices of the Associated Press and has done extensive work as an amateur radio operator.

The second message said:

"Before reeling in antenna the plane sent following: 'Will land in a few minutes and see you tomorrow. 9. G. M. T.'"

Flyers Are Fined.

TOKIO, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, American flyers, were fined $1,025 each by the District court today for violating Japanese aviation laws.

The aviators, who flew to Tokio from Khabarovsk, Siberia, after a projected world girdling flight ended there, were charged with having taken pictures of Japanese fortifications. This they denied.

They flew to Japan without a permit.

They were indicted on charges of illegally taking photographs of fortified areas and will appear later today in court to learn the decision in the case. The vernaculars agreed the plane will not be confiscated.

C. C. Chichester, New Zealand flyer who has been attempting to blaze a new air trail from Australia to England, crashed at Katsuura, Wakayama prefecture, today when he took off for Kasumigara airport, 40 miles from here. Reports received by the Rengo news agency said he was seriously injured and his plane badly damaged.

Ask U. S. to Aid Flyers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The aid of the United States department of state was today sought for Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr., American flyers in difficulties with Japanese authorities as a result of having taken photographs of the fortified areas of the islands.

W. W. Farley, wealthy real estate operator and former New York state Democratic chairman, obtained the promise of United States Senator Robert Wagner of New York that every effort will be made to induce Acting Secretary of State Castle to act in behalf of the aviators.

"Japan seems to be full of 'jingoes' who are violently anti-American and want to make an example of these flyers," Farley declared. "But, after all, Herndon and Pangborn went to Tokio at invitation of Tokio newspapers."

Cramer Was Ill at Takeoff.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 14.—Parker Cramer, whose body was believed sighted by a ship in the sea yesterday, was tired and ill when he took off for Copenhagen, an employe of a commercial firm who talked with the flyer said today. The man, Dernoeft, said both Cramer and his companion, Oliver Pacquette, had to be awakened twice before leaving their sleep to start the flight, and that Cramer complained of a continual pain in the stomach as he walked toward the [illegible] in which he later disappeared.

The [illegible], however, refused to listen to [illegible]ons that they take a steam[illegible] Copenhagen, and Cramer was [illegible] saying that he had Germans Waits Weather News.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SCORESBY SOUND, Greenland, Aug. 14.—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, who flew from Iceland to Scoresby Sound yesterday, tonight was waiting for weather reports before deciding whether to continue directly across the inland ice to Godthaab on the west coast or turn his plane toward Angmagsalik.

The airman expects to spend two or three weeks surveying the west coast, and will make several flights into the interior. His ultimate destination is Chicago.

GUNMAN KILLS WHEN HIS HUNT FOR $100 FAILS

Two armed men burst into the main hall of the rooming house at 1822 West 18th street late last night and into the midst of a half dozen men who were lounging around.

A command to throw up their hands was given, and obeyed. One of the bandits took $2.75 from Paul Romančik, 26 year old; a watch from Kelly Vartakos, 36, roomers, and some change from the rest of the victims. Evidently disappointed, the gunmen paused and eyed the men.

"Who's Mike?" he suddenly demanded. No one answered. The robber then turned to Michael Skorina, 39 years old, also a roomer. Without a word he fired. Skorina fell dead, a bullet above his heart. Romančik grabbed for the bandit's gun, but was dropped with a bullet in his side and was taken to the county hospital in a serious condition.

Learning that Skorina was reported to have displayed $100 to James Holland, 32 years old, 1834 West 18th street, Sergt. William Tourek arrested Holland, who was reported to have been in front of the house when the killers entered by a rear door.

MACIA PRESENTS HIS DEMANDS TO SPANISH CORTES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Aug. 14.—Catalonia's champion, Col. Francisco Macia, today presented that province's aspirations to the rest of Spain for approval. He arrived in Madrid today.

Received by high Castilian courtesy, which was something very much like cold reserve, the eager old warrior discovered that the provisional government and the constituent cortes certainly intend to vote on the constitution of the Spanish republic before they bother very much with the constitution asked by Catalonia. He took it with good grace, but he announced that he will battle for the rights which Catalonia has almost unanimously voted herself.

On Macia's arrival in Madrid thousands of persons, mostly Catalans, were at the station cheering conscientiously. There was not a Catalan flag in sight. Provisional President Zamora could not come, but he arranged a lunch later. But Macia's eyes showed pleasure, as he undoubtedly had expected hisses. The hordes of police showed that others expected this, too.

LA NACION, BIG CHILEAN DAILY, UP FOR AUCTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 14.—La Nacion, long time Chile's chief daily newspaper but converted by Gen. Ibanes into a government organ at a cost of $5,000,000, has been put up for public auction. Military management caused it to lose both circulation and advertising revenue, and the new government closed it down to prevent further drain on the national treasury.

Spirited bidding for proprietorship is proceeding, principal competitors being Carlos Davila, recently discharged as ambassador to Washington, and Pascual Baburizza, wealthy Jugo-Slav merchant.

Davila, who was editor of La Nacion when Ibanes persuaded him to take up diplomacy, has the backing of an influential group of Chile-Americans. Baburizza is a business man, who has made a fortune.

SHIP'S GARBLED SOS IS PICKED UP AT SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The U. S. S. West Virginia messaged the coast guard radio tonight it had intercepted fragments of a message it believed to be an SOS from a vessel off Cape Blanco.

The message was badly garbled, the West Virginia reported, but the name of the ship appeared to be "Cassas."

Former Chilean Army Officer Arrested as Rebel

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Former Lieut. Oscar Palacios Hermosilla was arrested on the frontier today on charges of participating in what the authorities describe as an attempt by a small group of aviation and naval officers to start a revolutionary movement with the aid of former President Carlos Ibanez. The lieutenant, who was on his way to Buenos Aires, had a package of documents which, officials said, were intended for Ibanez, who is in exile.

Chicago Boy Suffers Loss of Eye by Golf Ball

CUBAN TROOPS CAPTURE HEADS OF REVOLUTION

site of our camp on Loma de la Mulata to the River Verde, hoping not only to make the army believe the reports of our whereabouts were untrue, but also to find some seaworthy craft here that would take our party to sea. We realized that our only hope was in flight by water to some other part of Cuba, far from this province. But the government was possessed of information which made it possible for them to determine our location at all times.

Army Closes In on Group.

"These reports, I believe, were given to the government by three of my men captured aboard the Coral and transmitted to Havana by the commander of the gunboat Baire. My whereabouts, confirmed by the prisoners upon their arrival in Havana, made this capture certain despite the fact that we have been moving since early morning, not even stopping to cook our lunch because we knew the army was closing in on us from all angles as each minute sped by.

"As we reached Cayo Verde we saw the gunboat Fernandez Quevedo two miles off the coast heading for the river. It fired its forward guns at us in an effort to make us flee from the small key through a bridge to the mainland, where we would fall into the ambush of the army a half mile away.

"It was then that we decided to surrender to scouts sent out by Col. Benitez, who were then (5:20 o'clock in the afternoon) almost within rifle reach of us."

First Meal in 24 Hours.

Gen. Menocal and his staff, according to messages from the commander of the gunboat, ate their first meal in 24 hours at 6 o'clock tonight, just before the ship sailed for Havana. Orders were immediately sent by Gen. Alberto Herrera, commander in chief of the Cuban army, to treat the prisoners with "strict courtesies due them as outstanding leaders of Cuban wars of liberation, although with the full understanding that they are now prisoners of the government."

Reports received later from Col. Benites said he was returning to the city of Pinar del Rio with a large number of prisoners of no political or military significance. He said they were captured during the maneuvers against Gen. Menocal.

The "peace" commission, selected by President Machado two days ago to meet Gen. Menocal at the rebel camp and offer truce and mediation in the president's behalf, while Machado himself was personally directing the same offers in Santa Clara, his native province, returned to Pinar del Rio at noon today, reporting that after an all night search they were unable to find Gen. Menocal's hiding place.

Four of the seven recognized leaders of the revolution are still at large. Miguel Mariano Gomez, son of former President José Miguel Gomez and until February mayor of Havana, and Juan Gualberto Gomez, are reported to be hiding in Havana. Col. Aurelia Hevia, a veteran of the war of liberation, and Col. Penate are leading insurgent forces against Cuban soldiers in Santa Clara province tonight.

Fierce Battle Rages.

Government troops and a large revolutionary force, commanded by Col. Hevia, clashed late today near Sierra Morena, Santa Clara province, in what is described here as one of the bloodiest battles of the uprising, which began last Sunday. The rebel forces were located by the army about 7 miles from Corralillo. Reinforcements were ordered rushed from the city of Santa Clara.

An hour later the rebel camp was attacked from all angles. A preliminary heavy artillery bombardment was laid down and a machine gun corps advanced ahead of the infantry, which maneuvered to surround the enemy on three sides. The rebels were protected in the rear by the Sierra Morena hills. The insurgents, who far outnumbered the government troops, inflicted serious losses on their foes after more than two hours of continuous fighting.

Communications of the battle received by army headquarters here late tonight state that the battlefield was literally covered with dead, with the rebels still making desperate efforts not to turn their backs to the pursuing troops. More troops are being rushed from Trinidad and Sancti Spiritus.

Government forces met the insurgents seven times today at Pinar del Rio, killing twenty-seven rebels. They also confiscated large quantities of arms, ammunition, and other war materials.

In Havana province military chiefs report one engagement near San Nicolas de Guines. The rebels lost seven men. In the province of Camaguey two skirmishes took place. Two rebels were reported slain. In Oriente province military officers reported three encounters with large rebel forces. Three rebels and three of Machado's troops were killed. Engagements were also fought near Santiago de Cuba, Holguin, and Antilla.

Insists Revolt Goes On.

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Dr. Francesco Mendez Capote, head of the Cuban revolutionary junta here, when informed tonight of the capture of former President Menocal and his staff, insisted the captures will have no effect on the uprising, which, he declared, has already become too widespread to be checked by the loss of individual leaders. One point on which the revolutionists base their hopes, it was said, is that the combined military, naval, and police forces at the disposal of the government number no more than 15,000 men, according to insurrectionist figures. This number is regarded as insufficient to quell any general uprising.

Ambassador Guggenheim, representing the United States in Havana, established what was tantamount to an intervention in Cuban affairs in an effort to prevent the revolution, Dr. Capote declared.

"Had he used his power in the interest of justice rather than in the interest of continuing President Machado in power the present fighting in Cuba might have been averted," said Dr. Capote, supported by Dr. Fernando Ortiz, vice president of the revolutionary delegation.

OWEN YOUNG TELLS GRADUATES WHAT WORLD WILL ASK

Canton, N. Y., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Owen D. Young, addressing the graduating class of the St. Lawrence university summer school, of which his son, Philip, was a member, confronted the students with a five point self-examination as one the world would require of them.

He asked first if those graduating had "enlarged their knowledge of their obligations and increased their capacity to perform them." Failure in this, he said, meant failure in the other four questions as well, and he declared that the colleges had been remiss in imparting this fundamental of all research.

The other questions comprised "development of intuitions and making emotions more sensitive," "Discovery of Mental aptitude," to avoid the "tragedy of human misplacement," "learning enough to use one's gifts effectively," and "acquiring adequate skill in communication with others."

GOVERNOR'S BODY FINDS FUNDING OF TAXES ILLEGAL

Lawyers Hold Out No Hope for Plan.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The issuance of bonds in lieu of taxes for 1930 or 1929 is called legally impossible in a statement issued yesterday by the executive committee of Gov. Emmerson's revenue conference.

The committee of lawyers, to which this subject was referred, also held that it is illegal to bond the 1931 taxes, and that it is impracticable to fund 1933 taxes or other future years unless the law authorizing it is passed by the legislature and tested by the Supreme court before appropriations and tax levies are made for 1932 or for other particular future year.

The lawyers' committee is composed of Robert N. Holt, Henry E. Cutler, William F. Struckmann, Max Murdock and David R. Clarke, all of whom are experienced in tax law of this state.

Find Plan Impossible.

"Funding taxes would mean that instead of paying the necessary running expenses of local government out of current taxes, we would borrow the money by selling bonds," reads the statement of the Joseph K. Brittain committee. "We find that this plan without question is legally impossible."

Four reasons are assigned for that conclusion, as follows:

"First, the appropriation ordinances for 1929 and 1930 provide for the payment of expenses out of taxes and not out of bond issues. The same is true for appropriation ordinances, already adopted, for 1931.

Must Be Paid from Taxes.

"Third, the state tax levy and the levies for bonds and interest of the local governments must be paid out of taxes.

"Fourth, any bonds issued in place of taxes would have to be found valid by the state Supreme court before they could possibly be sold, and the Supreme court's action could not be secured before April, 1932, at the earliest."

After detailing other difficulties in funding, taxes the committee says that it makes its view public as early as possible in fairness to the local governments and to the taxpayers. It asserts that "misinformation that 1930 and prior years' tax bills will be spread over a period of 20 years' has been persistently spread" and that this "erroneous information will involve both local governments and taxpayers in heavy expense and loss of credit."

Other Remedies Suggested.

Regarding what the committee considers a more basic remedy for the situation, its statement says:

"The executive committee is diligently pursuing its inquiries into remedies for the present difficulty, which it is convinced are more fundamental. Among such remedies are provisions for checks on unnecessary public expenditures, and equitable taxation of wealth now escaping its part of governmental burden."

Reverting to the funding of taxes, the opinion of the five lawyers states that the question has never been passed upon by the state Supreme court, but they are inclined to believe that the Supreme court will hold that "the constitution requires that the revenue needed for the general current expenses of municipalities is to be raised by the levying of a tax and not by the issuance of bonds."

ARRAIGNED IN AUTO CASE.

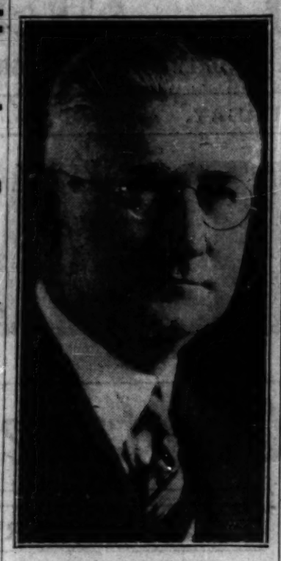
KILLED IN AUTO



CHARLES PHELAN.

CHARLES PHELAN, PAINT CO. HEAD, KILLED IN AUTO

Charles Phelan, 51 years old, president of the American Asphalt Paint company, 844 Rush street, was fatally injured in an automobile accident on Thursday at Cardston, Alberta, while en route to Glacier National park, it was learned yesterday. The accident occurred when a front tire blew out, causing Mr. Phelan's car to swerve and roll over. A woman companion, identified in news dispatches as Bernice Sutherland, was seriously injured. She is in a semi-coma and unable to make a statement.

Mr. Phelan died, without regaining consciousness, before his wife, Margaret, could reach his side. She left the Seneca hotel, 200 East Chestnut street, where they resided, immediately upon learning of the accident. Mr. Phelan departed on Aug. 7 and was to have met Mrs. Phelan in Glacier National park, according to Grover M. Hermann, Phelan's business partner.

Cyril Kusbal, 7 years old, was crushed to death in front of his home in Whiting, Ind., yesterday when he fell in the path of a truck while chasing a ball. Herman Krohn of Detroit was the driver.

Three deaths yesterday raised the Cook county auto toll for the year to 689. The victims:

Miss Josephine Johnson, 35 years old, 4850 St. Paul avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered in an auto collision in River Forest last February.

John Pedgar, 43 years old, 1610 South Ashland avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered on Thursday when struck by the auto of William Riegel, 1400 West Superior street, at Ashland avenue and 22d street.

CITY TEAMSTERS STRIKE MONDAY; REJECT DEMANDS

Cermak Refuses More Work to 600.

Six hundred members of the city sanitary teamsters' union, drivers of the municipal ash and garbage trucks, will go on strike Monday, their officials announced yesterday, after Mayor Cermak had refused to grent the union's demand for a minimum of five days' work a week.

FRED SASS.

The drivers complain they are now working on an average less than four days a week, due to a shortage of funds in the appropriation for cleaning streets and alleys. It was stated that the strike, if carried out, will throw out of work between 1,200 and 1,500 other city employés, working as helpers on the trucks and in other capacities in connection with street and alley cleaning.

Mayor in Final Conference.

The mayor held a final conference yesterday with Fred Sass, secretary-treasurer of the union, and John Sutherland, business agent, at which he told them that if the teamsters were put on a five day week now the appropriation would be exhausted and they woud have no work at all before the end of the year.

Sass and Sutherland protested that while the teamsters are given only four, or, in some cases, three, days a week, machinists, clerks, and foremen in the city ward yards, from which the garbage and ash trucks operate, are working five or six days.

There is $2,000,000 left in the appropriation for cleaning streets and alleys. The shortage, the mayor stated, is due to the fact that the previous city administration spent more than half of the annual appropriation before it was voted out of office in April.

The city law department is now seeking some legal method of transferring funds from the vehicle tax fund, designated by law for street repairs and improvements, into the cleaning fund, in which case it may be possible to grant the union demand.

BRIAND'S ILLNESS DELAYS FRENCH VISIT TO BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 14.—Premier Laval this evening telephoned to Chancellor Bruening of Germany and explained that he and Foreign Minister Briand had been forced to postpone their visit to Berlin until late in September on account of M. Briand's ill health.

Premier Laval made his decision after an interview with M. Briand's physicians, who informed him that the foreign minister's condition would not permit him to cut short his rest for "an exhausting trip" to Berlin until next month. The French premier, before telephoning Chancellor Bruening in Berlin, called on Ambassador von Hoesch of Germany, expressing his regret for having to delay the visit.

It is expected that M. Briand will attend the sessions of the league of nations' council meeting at The Hague before going to Berlin.

CURRY, ON STAND, TELLS TAMMANY CODE OF HONOR

He'd "Step on the Gas for Any Democrat."

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, admitted at a disorderly hearing of the Hofstadter legislative committee today that it was he who had interceded with Appellate Justice Henry L. Sherman in behalf of Dr. William F. Doyle, under contempt sentence of 30 days in jail for defying the committee's authority.

Dr. Doyle, formerly head of the bureau of standards and appeals, who is reported to have collected upwards of $1,000,000 in "fees," refused to answer questions of the legislative investigating committee as to whether he had split these "fees," and with Sherman.

The Tammany leader, while freely admitting that he had interfered in the Doyle case, insisted, however, that he had done so purely in the interests of the "Democratic party of New York City," which he thought was being "crucified."

A Belligerent Witness.

The Tammany leader was a frank and belligerent witness. He made no bones about the fact that, as a political leader, he traded in favors and influence, and said right out that his purpose in telephoning Justice Sherman was based on his determination to invalidate the work of the Hofstadter committee.

"You were willing," said Samuel Seabury, the committee's counsel, "to use your aid to any one who would challenge the powers of this committee?"

"That's right," Mr. Curry agreed with emphasis. "I believe this investigation is designed to persecute and crucify the dominant party in this county."

Mr. Curry wanted it understood, however, that the stay for Doyle was not his idea at all. He was no lawyer, he stated. Alfred J. Talley, former General Sessions judge, had called him at his apartment in the Park Lane hotel on the evening of June 22 and asked him whether he would endeavor to get in touch with some one of the Appellate division.

"Did you know that Judge Talley was one of Dr. Doyle's lawyers?" asked Mr. Seabury.

"No, I knew that. But I wasn't doing a favor to Dr. Doyle, and, although I was cooperating with Judge Talley, I was also following out my duty as leader of the Democratic organization."

The witness said that he attempted to learn the whereabouts of every justice of the Appellate division except one.

They Argue Over Word.

"You were ready to reach them all, if necessary?" asked Mr. Seabury.

"Not 'reach' them, Judge," objected Mr. Curry. "I would not put it that way."

"Absolutely," replied Mr. Curry.

He learned that most of them were not available and he called Justice Seaman at Lake Placid only after he had telephoned two others.

First, he said, he had asked Justice Townsend to come to New York, but the justice refused. Then he made arrangements for former Judge Talley, Samuel Falk, or some other of Dr. Doyle's counsel, to appear at Lake Placid the next day.

Mr. Curry Explains.

"I want to make my position clear," said Mr. Curry. "I didn't attempt to influence justice. I simply tried to locate a judge before whom the decision for a stay could be heard. That wasn't interfering with the courts; that was simply asking for a favor."

"Well, what business was it of yours to interfere?" rapped Mr. Seabury.

"I, as the representative of the Democratic organization of the City of New York was expecting some one to test the committee's powers," Mr. Curry said. "Therefore, when the request came for my aid I was glad to be of service."

"All you were interested in was to challenge the power of the committee?" asked Seabury.

Judge Seabury, in answering that I would say to you that we don't believe this is a fair investigation," Mr. Curry replied with considerable show of spirit. "This is a crucification, if it can be said, of the Democratic party of the City of New York.

Persecution, He Charges.

"The Democratic members of this committee attempted to go through the mails and have this a fair investigation. They were voted down. It is nothing but persecution of the dominant party of New York that this committee is doing at this time."

"You were interested in Doyle?" Mr. Seabury asked.

"I am interested in any Democrat in the City of New York," replied Mr. Curry. "I am not particularly interested in Dr. Doyle, any more than I would be in Brown, Jones, Smith or any other man."

"Absolutely," Mr. Curry replied. "I am interested in every Democrat in New York."

"Don't you think it was a great piece of impertinence for you to interfere and try to locate a justice for a litigant?" Mr. Seabury asked. "Would you take such a step again if the need arose?"

"I'd step on the gas whenever I could to help the Democratic party," replied the witness.

Mr. Curry's next statement caused something of a sensation and brought boisterous applause from Tammany's adherents in the court room.

"You've known me a long time, Judge Seabury," said Mr. Curry. "You know that I've come to you for favors when you were on the city bench and the Supreme bench."

"And did you get them, Mr. Curry?"

"I got them."

Some More Sparring.

"Now, as a matter of fact, Mr. Curry, what were those favors?" Mr. Seabury demanded. "Was it not simply that you asked me to excuse some friend from jury service?"

Mr. Curry smiled. "Yes, judge, that was it."

A few minutes later Mr. Seabury, who was on old enemy of the Democratic organization here despite the fact that he is an old Democrat, referred to the witness as the "king of Tammany Hall."

There are, Mr. Curry said immediately, no kings in Tammany Hall.

"I am simply the elected leader," he said.

The much-discussed telephone call, which was followed the next day by an order granting a stay of the contempt sentence, was discovered by Judge Seabury in an examination of the records of the Park Lane hotel. Curry at the time refused to discuss the disclosure but a day or two later Max D. Steur, prominent lawyer and member of Tammany's so-called "board of strategy," announced that it was he who had made the call and that it was not to Justice Sherman at all but to his, Steur's, family at Loon lake.

Investigation revealed, however, that calls for Loon lake pass through the Saranac Lake exchange and not through the Lake Placid exchange, and so the Steur alibi went for nought.

Doyle Seeks Freedom.

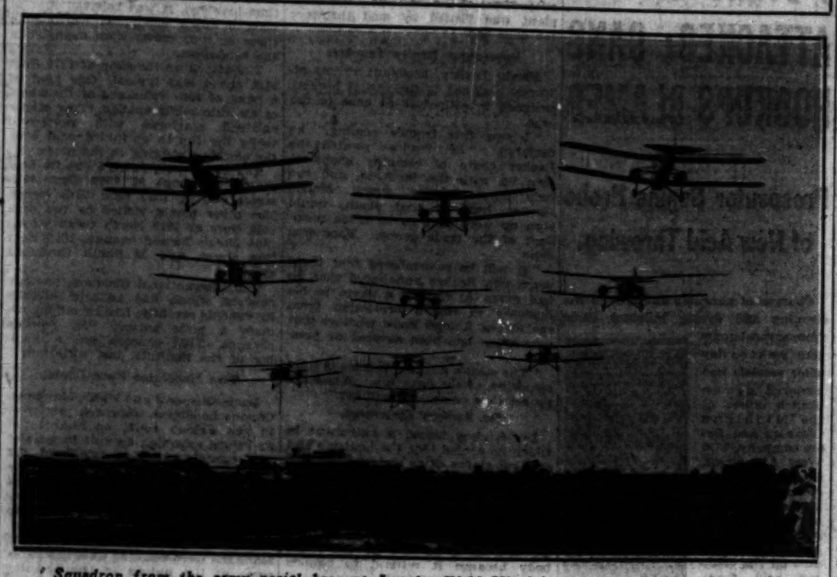
The stay granted by Justice Sherman, was later vacated and Doyle has served half his sentence. At today's session of the committee, however, Doyle reappeared as a witness and sought to purge himself of contempt by answering the question as to whether or not he had bribed any public official. He said "no" to this question, but the committee, ruled by five Republicans against four Democrats, voted that he had not purged himself.

Meantime Samuel Falk, attorney for Doyle, sued out a writ of habeas corpus before Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Dore and Doyle expected tonight to be a free man at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

For a time tonight it appeared as if Doyle would be released on Falk's writ. However, this was blocked and Seabury obtained from Justice Dore a stay of execution of the writ pending appeal. Bail for Doyle was set at $20,000. This was not furnished. He spent another night in jail.

In executive session the committee, by a party vote of 5 to 4, petitioned Gov. Roosevelt to call the state legislature in special session to enact a law empowering the committee to grant immunity to witnesses.

ARMY BOMBERS FAIL TO SINK SHIP



Squadron from the army aerial base at Langley Field, Virginia, on way to destroy the old shipping board vessel, Mount Shasta, off the Virginia capes. The army flyers dropped 38 bombs, but only two hit the vessel and one of these was a dud. It was necessary for the coast guard ships Carrabansett and Mascoutin to turn loose their one pounders upon the Mount Shasta to send it under water.

Army Air Bombs Miss Ship and Navy Officers Chortle

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The navy is chortling tonight. For the army was forced to call on the sea forces after all. The Mount Shasta lies at the bottom of the ocean off the Virginia capes, but it was sent to the bottom by coast guard guns and not bombs from army airplanes.

MAJ. H. A. DARGUE. [(C) Harris & Ewing.]

The chuckles of the navy began on Tuesday when the bombing squadron from the army aerial base at Langley field set out to sink the Mount Shasta, anchored off the capes. The planes returned without sighting the ship.

That caused Assistant Secretary of the Navy David Ingalls to send to Secretary of War Patrick Hurley a courteously worded note offering naval planes to guide the army flyers to their target.

Army Airmen Try It Again.

Today the army airmen tried it again. Ten big bombing planes, under command of Maj. H. A. Dargue, dropped 38 bombs as they circled back and forth over the ancient and decrepit shipping board vessel.

The bombs, each bearing 100 to 300 pounds of explosives, rained down about the dilapidated ship. Only two direct hits were made, neither of them in a vital spot. When the airmen had dropped all their explosives and left for Langley field the Mount Shasta still rode high.

"Mind you," said one naval officer, "the Mount Shasta is an old and decrepit ship. She was leaking when they towed her out, and her plates were sprung and her bolts were weak. She had no deck armor and was anchored stationary in a calm sea. She had no anti-aircraft guns whanging away at the army planes to disconcert the bombers, and they could circle close above.

Only Two Hits; One a Dud.

"But only two direct hits were made, and one of them was a dud which did not explode.

"Incidentally, the bombing is a fair reply to those who argue the navy should throw away its battleships; that one man in a plane could destroy a ship that cost $60,000,000. If ten planes, under the most favorable circumstances, can't destroy a worn out merchant craft of 7,200 tons with 8,000 pounds of explosives, what could they do with a 30,000 ton armored ship?"

After the army flyers had dropped their "eggs" and left for Langley field men from the coast guard vessel Carrabassett boarded the Mount Shasta and tried to open the seacocks to sink her, but they were too rusted to be opened.

One Pounders Sink Her.

Then the Carrabassett and her sister ship, the Mascoutin, opened fire with their one pounders, and the Mount Shasta slowly filled and sank.

It was said at coast guard headquarters here that orders to open fire must have been given by the army officers on board, as none had been issued from headquarters. Navy men charge that the army officers on board the vessels to watch the bombing had ordered the gunners on the coast guard craft to complete the destruction of the Mount Shasta rather than permit the navy to send out its air raiders to attack the old vessel.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, Aug. 14.—The recent murder in Vienna of a former soviet spy, named Semmelmann, by a Jugo-Slav communist, named Pikolvitch, just before Semmelmann was about to sell secrets of the communist espionage organization to Jugo-Slav authorities has had a strange sequel.

The Austrian police have discovered the existence of a communist center in the house of Dr. Broda, formerly a high official in the ministry of finance, and apparently run by Broda's 14 year old son, Christopher.

So far the police have been able to lay hands only on young Broda, who accepts all responsibility for the Red organization, admitting that he has received secret communist instructions from his 21 year old brother, also a communist, at present in Berlin. Neither the latter nor the father can be traced. Dr. Broda is the brother of a well known pacifist who has frequently lectured in the United States, where he is believed to be now. Broda's sister is the wife of the Austrian minister at Prague, Dr. Marek.

PEDDLING LAW FOR VETERANS HELD INVALID

Judge Ross C. Hall yesterday held unconstitutional the state law granting former soldiers and sailors the right to peddle wares without a license in a ruling which denied fifty-two veterans an injunction restraining the police of Chicago, Cicero, and various park boards from interfering with their peddling activities.

The judge held that the statute violated the constitution in that it granted special privilege to a restricted group of persons. The veterans' petition for an injunction was opposed by counsel for the various police bodies on the grounds that by selling candy, ice cream, and other articles near concession stands on Navy pier and in different parks the veterans hurt the business of the concessionaires who pay for the privilege of running the stands.

Judge Hall indicated that he would dissolve an injunction which he granted another group of veteran peddlers recently, restraining the south park board from interfering with them.

5 Are Killed, 1 Injured When Train Strikes Auto

Montvale, N. J., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Five persons were killed and a sixth was fatally injured tonight as a northbound express on a branch of the Erie railroad struck their sedan at a grade crossing. The automobile was occupied by George Mehl of River Edge, N. J., and his family.

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Roy T. Yates, youthful bank official of Paterson, N. J., and Republican member of the New Jersey state senate, was found critically wounded today following a mysterious shooting in a young woman's apartment on West Eighty-ninth street.

A telephone call to the hospital for the ruptured and crippled brought police to the apartment, where they found Mr. Yates lying on the floor. The young woman, who apparently had phoned the hospital, was wandering dazedly around the apartment in pajamas insisting she remembered nothing of what had happened except that some one had tried to strangle her. Her throat was fingermarked as if she had been choked.

Revolver Found Under Window.

A revolver with one empty shell was picked up in the courtyard of the building almost directly beneath the apartment windows. Five exploded shells were found on the floor of the apartment and there were four bullets embedded in the walls.

Senator Yates was taken to the hospital, where it was found that he had been shot in the abdomen and his condition tonight was reported to be serious.

After six hours of grilling the young woman, a striking blond, is said to have admitted that she had been intimate with Senator Yates for five years and the snooting was the aftermath of an argument over the renewal of the apartment lease.

Drink Gin; Discuss Lease.

She said they had discussed the matter during a gin-drinking bout, according to Acting District Attorney Thomas Kane, and that Senator Yates had told her that because of the business depression the lease could not be renewed.

Also the young woman who gave her name as Ruth Jayne, and said she was 25 years old, said that Senator Yates tried to choke her. But she was hazy about the details of the shooting and who had shot the senator. She said she vaguely recalled a struggle, but she was uncertain whether she had thrown the gun out the window or if he had done so. The gun, she remembered, looked like one she had seen in Senator Yates' office. Officers said she is facing a charge of felonious assault.

Told He Was Married.

Senator Yates, the young woman said, had told her some time ago that he was married and had three children. But she added that he informed her that he was estranged from his wife.

Senator Yates is 36, and is a stock broker and a former vice president of the Lincoln Trust company of Paterson and of the Investing Company of America of New York.

2 MORE HELD AS POSSIBLE AIDS IN TORCH SLAYINGS

Man and Girl Deny Any Part in Crime.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Michigan law enforcement officials who yesterday sent three confessed torch slayers to life imprisonment for the brutal killing of two high school girls and their boy escorts, were still active in the case today. They arrested two possible accessories to the crime while the three actual slayers were being held in Jackson prison, awaiting transfer to Marquette penitentiary to begin sentences totaling 240 years each, imposed within four hours after they had confessed the crime.

The woman is Catherine E. Keller, 25 year old blond, the niece and ward of the late Municipal Judge Darwin Z. Curtis of Ann Arbor. She was instrumental in winning a parole for Smith from Jackson prison in May, after he served a year of a 5 to 15 year sentence for stealing an automobile.

Used Uncle's Influence.

The girl prevailed upon her uncle to have Circuit Judge George W. Sample, who sentenced the killers, intercede for Smith. She was reported to have been bequeathed $35,000 by the will of her uncle, who died last June, but debts of the estate wiped out the inheritance.

The girl cursed at Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp and Sheriff Andres today as she was questioned on her actions the night of the murders. She admitted having been with Smith four hours before the crime, but denied knowledge of the killings.

A revolver used by the trio, and blood stained clothing were found in her room at the time of her arrest this morning, after she had been released through an error yesterday.

Attorney General Paul Voorhies sent Assistant Attorney General Edward A. Bilitzke to aid in the examination of the woman, as Prosecutor Rapp is her attorney in handling the Curtis estate. Bilitzke said she may be charged as an accessory. The killers denied she had knowledge of the crimes.

Another Man Arrested.

Another prisoner taken in custody today is Howard Forwalder of Ypsilanti, said to be the owner of one of the revolvers used in the killings. Forwalder was believed to have been the third slayer with Smith and David Thomas Blackstone, 33 year old Negro, also an ex-convict, until their confessions named Frank Oliver, 19 years old. Forwalder also may face a charge as an accessory.

The slayers passed a restless night in the Jackson jail after they had been smuggled out of the Washtenaw county jail with the aid of tear bombs as a mob roared for their blood. The killers were tried and sentenced four hours after their confessions but were held in the courthouse for an hour and a half before being moved because authorities feared mob violence. Guards were placed in each of their cells as a precaution against suicide.

The bodies of the four victims were in Ypsilanti today. The funerals of Harry Lore, 16 years old, and his chum, Thomas Wheatley, 17 years old, will be held tomorrow. The bodies of the girls, Vivian Gold, 15 years old, and Anna May Harrison, 16 years old, are to be shipped to their Cleveland homes for burial.

Another clew, which authorities said would have led to the arrest of the killers had the Ypsilanti police not uncovered the revolver with which Lore was killed, was uncovered by Detroit police today. It is the watch ripped from the wrist of Vivian Gold.

The watch was pawned by Blackstone in his name at the Diamond Loan office, 133 Michigan avenue, Detroit, Wednesday morning. He received $6. The holdup and murder of the young people netted the watch and $2 cash.

$5,000 Reward Due Negro.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Prosecutor Harry S. Toy said today that Frank Johnson, Ypsilanti Negro laborer whose suspicions led to the arrest of Fred Smith, Frank Oliver and David T. Blackstone, is entitled to the $5,000 in rewards offered for the slayers.

'PUDDLER JIM' BACK ON STEEL MILL JOB HE LEFT FOR FAME

Washington, Pa., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—"Puddler Jim" [Senator James J. Davis to his friends in Washington, D. C.] today went back to the steel mills from which he rose to be a cabinet member under three Presidents and relived the days of his youth.

He did it on the dare of a "catcher" at the plant of the Standard Tin Plate company, which he visited yesterday before his address here at a testimonial dinner honoring N. T. Albricht of Charlerol, recently appointed county deputy executor.

Removing his coat and hat and donning the challenging workman's gloves, Senator Davis went to work. For an hour he handled the tongs as he did in his youth in Shenango Valley steel mills. Senator Davis gave his ideas on the coal strike situation.

"Establishment of mutual confidences between coal operators and workers alike and then full coöperation between them is the only plan by which peace will be brought to the coal industry," he said.

PLAN ST. CHARLES WOMAN'S 112TH BIRTHDAY PARTY

Preparations are being made today for a big celebration for Mrs. Augusta Kutzner, which is to be held on Aug. 24 at the home of her daughter at 906 East Riverside avenue, St. Charles. The occasion will be Mrs. Kutzner's 112th birthday.

Grandma Kutzner, as she is known to her neighbors, was born in Poland on Aug. 24, 1819. She came to America forty years ago and took up residence in Elgin. Twenty-seven years ago, when her husband died, she moved to St. Charles.

Since the heat wave of several weeks ago, Mrs. Kutzner has not been so well as before, her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Lukesh, said. She has been under the care of Dr. I. G. Langum, mayor of St. Charles, and is now improving. Mrs. Kutzner has one daughter, six grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

SIMLA, India, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Lord Willingdon, viceroy of India, today made public voluminous correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and the provincial government and himself, respecting the collection of taxes from peasants and other matters which led to the decision of the mahatma not to attend the impending round table conference in London.

Throughout the correspondence the government authorities insisted there had been no violations of the agreement made by Gandhi and Lord Irwin, former viceroy, at Delhi. In Gandhi's side of the correspondence are assertions that the government has violated that agreement.

Demands Return of Taxes.

In one letter to the governor of Bombay Gandhi complained that needy peasants in Gujerat had been forced to pay land revenues, both current and in arrears, under duress, and that land had been confiscated. He demanded that the money then collected be refunded.

In reply the private secretary to the governor wrote that the governor was satisfied no breach of the Delhi settlement had been involved in the steps taken to collect land revenues.

The letter pointed out that the settlement clearly intended such payments should be collected, and added that, in the instance complained of, the local collector "did, however, show special forbearance in regard to employment of coercive processes, and it was only after some months' delay, and then only in carefully selected cases, that he resorted to them."

Charges Tax Violations.

"The prompt response of revenue payers and the negligible extent to which attachment became necessary showed there were many persons able to pay who had not done so, and established the fact that action had become necessary only in consequence of their failure to observe the settlement," the letter continues.

"Neither the government nor the collector has ever accepted the position that the collection of land revenue should be dependent on the advice of the congress, and his excellency has no doubt that you will yourself realize the decision as to whether a particular person can or cannot pay must rest with the collector."

The governor's secretary said the governor could not approve the refunding of money already collected. He added that the executive and the Bombay council had decided not to adopt any further coercive measures for the collection of arrears unless they remain unpaid at the time of the next installment—in January or February, 1932.

Gandhi Protests Evictions.

Correspondence between Gandhi and the governor of the United Provinces, also made public, dealt primarily with the position of evicted tenants which, the mahatma said, caused him "great anxiety."

In reply, the governor said there was no reason to suppose the number of evictions this year had been excessive. In some districts they had been below normal, he declared. The governor promised full investigation of the whole question and said the legislative assembly would consider "a provisional scheme for the general readjustment in rents throughout the province to meet the fall in prices."

It was on receipt of these two letters that Gandhi communicated directly with the viceroy.

"I exceedingly regret to inform you," his telegram to Lord Willingdon began, "that the letter of the Bombay government just received renders impossible my departure for London."

Calls Position "Impossible."

This letter, the mahatma said, implied that the government should be both prosecutor and judge with reference to matters arising out of a contract to which the government and the complainants were parties. And this was an impossible position for the congress to accept.

Taken in connection with the communication from the governor of the United Provinces and reports of "continuing harassment" in the United Provinces and other areas, the mahatma said, the letter was "a complete indication" that he must not sail for London. He concluded, "I shall await your reply before making an announcement."

To this communication the viceroy replied with a telegram dated Aug. 13.

Unable to Accept Reasons.

"I should regret extremely," he said, "if, for the reasons you have given the congress, you were to be unwilling to carry out the arrangement which provided for their representation at the conference. I am unable to accept these reasons as valid and I cannot but feel that your misgivings arise from a misunderstanding of the policy of the government and of the ground on which it rests.

"If, however, your telegram represents your final word I shall at once inform the prime minister of your inability to attend the conference."

A copy of the viceroy's letter of July 31, to which he referred in the telegram, also was made public. Couched in general terms, it assured Gandhi the government was treating any reports of breaches of the Delhi settlement as matters of importance.

Urges His Coöperation.

"I am quite sure," the letter concluded, "the best way to obtain a real and lasting solution of the present difficulties is through the round table conference, and that you can best assist the real interests of the country in sharing in this great constructive work."

Replying to the viceroy's telegram of Aug. 13, Gandhi said:

"I thank you for your wire. Your assurance I must read in the light of present happenings, and if you can see in them nothing inconsistent with the settlement it shows a fundamental difference in our respective outlooks upon these subjects."

The viceroy's final communication was:

"I have informed the prime minister of your decision. I am releasing the relevant correspondence to the press at 4 o'clock this afternoon. You, of course, are free to do the same."

Try to Sway Gandhi.

BOMBAY, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Strenuous efforts were made today by Sir Tej Bahadar Sapru and other delegates to the round table conference, who have the ear of both the viceroy of India and Mahatma Gandhi, to open the way for Gandhi to go to London for the meeting. Participation by the Nationalist leader in the conference still remained highly problematical despite these efforts.

While Viceroy Lord Willingdon indicated his willingness to investigate specific cases of alleged breaches of the Delhi pact by the government, it was believed the final word rested with Prime Minister MacDonald. The mahatma today received a telegram from Lord Willingdon saying he had communicated to the home government the decision of the Indian National congress not to participate in the round table conference.

Revolt "Depends on Britain."

Asked whether, in the event he did not go to London, he would withhold renewal of the civil disobedience movement until the round table conference had finished its deliberations, Gandhi said it was difficult to give a conclusive answer.

"But the congress will make every effort not to revive the movement," he added. "Much will depend upon the attitude of the government."

The mahatma said a renewal of the struggle between the government and his followers would certainly result if the second round table conference failed to grant Nationalist demands.

"This time," he added, "nothing will be left undone to make the struggle more intensive and extensive."

Want Him in London.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The British government still hopes Mahatma Gandhi will represent the Indian nationalists at the round table conference here next month, but whether he comes or not the conference will be held on schedule.

In authoritative government quarters it is said the text of the correspondence between Viceroy Lord Willingdon and the mahatma reveals demands by the Indian National congress to which no Indian government could have submitted. Despite this the government has no wish to assume an attitude which would make compromise more difficult.

WAUKEGAN PLAYERS IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

Throngs Applaud Musicians in Waukegan Music Festival

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Five thousand people broke out in thunderous applause last night as Oliver Mellum, first prize winner of the baritone division in the Chicagoland music festival contest last summer, sang "Pale Moon," the Indian love song, dedicated to Rosa Raisa, the opera star, in the finals of Waukegan's second annual music festival held in Weiss park. The event, a preliminary to the second annual Chicagoland Music Festival, to be held here in Soldiers' field next Saturday night, was sponsored by the Waukegan News-Sun.

The crowds of music lovers filled every available seat in the athletic field and applauded warmly the vocal and instrumental solos, the work of the North Shore post's American Legion drum and bugle corps, and the stirring marches by the Fort Sheridan band and the North Shore band. The latter two organizations will take part in the Chicago program next Saturday.

Musicians Coming to Chicago.

The performance was just one of many which are being given throughout Chicagoland in preparation for the Chicagoland festival. More than 100 of the musicians who participated in the concert in Waukegan last night will go to Soldiers' field and become a part of the mass of 9,000 musicians who will take part in the larger event. On Wednesday night 10,000 people heard a program given by 700 musicians in Horlick park at Racine, Wis., sponsored by the Journal-News.

No one appreciated the concert last night more than Bandmaster Josef Studeny of Fort Sheridan, who has been an army band director for 26 years. He was born in Pilsen, Bohemia.

"This concert under the sky tonight makes me think of my beloved Bohemia, where such music festivals are frequent," he said. "We're coming down to Chicago for the final concert. It will be a great inspiration for our men to be directed by John Philip Sousa."

Waukegan's Mayor Helps.

George A. Byl, Waukegan real estate man, was the announcer for the program. Mayor Peter W. Petersen, who is a contractor, built the band platform for the event without charge to the sponsors. Homer Dahringer post of the American Legion donated the amplifying system, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois arranged the lighting. The details of promoting the event were handled in a large part by E. J. Macklin, editor of the News-Sun. Frank H. Just is publisher of the paper.

Among the participants in last night's program were the Genesee saxophone band of eight members, directed by Thala W. Rush; a vocal quartet composed of Mr. Barton, Mr. Bull, Mr. Paxton, and Mr. Thomas; and the McElroy entertainers, composed of Robert and John McElroy, saxophonists, and Jerry Bieson, accordionist.

The program was the second of the three outstanding local festivals to be held as preliminary to the Chicagoland festival. Next comes Gary, where the program, sponsored by the Gary Post-Tribune, will be given Sunday afternoon and night in the Horace Mann High school-auditorium.

WORLD BANKERS AGREE TO EXTEND REICH'S CREDITS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BASEL, Switzerland, Aug. 14.—After three weeks of arduous negotiations in Berlin, Paris, London and finally here the representatives of Germany's foreign bank creditors reached an agreement tonight on the terms of a common contract for prolongation of their existing short term credits in the reich. This contract has been submitted to the German delegates as a counter proposal to the one originally made to the creditors by President Luther of the Reichsbank, and the Germans here are consulting with Berlin on it tonight. Tomorrow morning debtors and creditors will meet here to complete the agreement.

Among the creditors high hopes are held that the agreement will be thus completed by tomorrow night. For one thing, they believe the worst difficulty in the problem has been to get the creditors to agree among themselves. It is stated to be now really a question of the German delegation making sure they can swing their people at home and of the Reichsbank making a last study of the effect of the agreement on its exchange position.

At the same time it is understood that Chairman Albert Wiggins is consulting the New York federal reserve board to determine if other American banks will accept the agreement.

MEDICAL EXPERTS IN DRIVE TO RID RUSSIA OF FILTH

LENINGRAD, Russia, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Three hundred medical workers have begun a campaign to rid soviet Russia of unsanitary conditions in homes and factories. Housewives, workers, peasants and sanitary agencies all over the country have been enlisted.

Education Is Growing.

MOSCOW, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's compulsory education campaign is running 110 per cent ahead of schedule, government statistics published today indicate.

Under the slogan "Eradicate all illiteracy by 1932," the campaign has placed in schools in the last twelve months 17,612,000 children, as compared with the high figure during the czarist régime of 7,235,000.

Locksmiths Launch Drive for State License Law

As the start of a campaign for state legislation to license locksmiths, the Chicago chapter of the American Association of Master Locksmiths, meeting at the Morrison hotel last night, sent letters to Acting Police Commissioner Alcock and Capt. Matthew Zimmer of the auto detail, asking for an expression of opinion as to whether such licensing would help protect automobiles.

ENGINEERS SET QUOTA ON METER INSTALLATIONS

Sixteen water meters could be installed by each city plumber during an eight-hour working day if they followed a systematic program. That was the comment yesterday of engineers familiar with the meter work concerning the agreement of the plumbers to install five meters a day instead of only two.

In buildings where the meter connection can be made inside the installation should not take over thirty minutes, one engineer said. Under those conditions fifteen or sixteen meters could be placed by each plumber during an eight-hour day.

An Engineer's Estimate.

The engineer estimated roughly that in 75 per cent of the buildings in Chicago the meter connection could be made inside. In the other 25 per cent of the buildings where the meter would be placed outside, which would require excavation for a small vault, the installation, he said, could be made in two hours.

One reason why installations have been so slow and costly, according to the engineers, is that they have been made haphazardly. Under the former administration, it was pointed out, it was not infrequent that a plumber would place a meter in a building on one side of the city and then travel miles away to install the next one.

The engineers would remedy this by adopting a program of progressive installations under which the plumbers would go from building to building in a certain district. If vaults were required city laborers could prepare them in advance so that no delays would be caused.

Pointed Out by Alderman.

The lack of a system for installations under the previous administration was noted by former Ald. Edward J. Kaindl in 1930 when, as chairman of a water survey committee, he issued a report on the meter situation. The report stated in part:

"Little precaution was exercised in the past in the selection of meters, their proper installation or in the preparation of specifications under which they were purchased." He also pointed out that the average cost of installing one meter, including the meter purchase price, rose from $55.65 in 1920 to $134.32 in 1928.

45 GARAGES JOIN TO CUT COST OF AUTO STORAGE

Forty-five garages in residential districts and two in the loop have affiliated as the Associated Parking Garages to get more automobiles under their roofs by reducing the cost of storage. Under the plan, a lessee of a stall in his neighborhood garage receives the privilege of parking two hours in the loop garages or three hours in any of the neighborhood garages at any time without any additional charge.

"Like other institutions following the trend of the times," said Arthur S. Nestor, vice president of the association, "we hope to increase our volume of business by reducing the cost of garage storage to the motoring public. The man who keeps his machine under the roof of a public garage near his home will be able to shelter the car near his office at a reduced cost. The woman shopper in the loop will be able to park her car in the business district at no cost other than her regular garage rent at home."

Approves Levy to Widen Milwaukee Ave. in Niles

County Judge Jarecki yesterday approved a special assessment roll of the village of Niles which will remove the last narrow stretch on Milwaukee avenue and open a 40 foot highway from Chicago to the country. The project, widening the highway from the southern limits of Niles to Neva avenue, will cost $79,000, of which $44,000 is to be raised by special assessments. The work will be completed this fall, village authorities said.

7 DYERS' OFFICES ATTACKED; GANG HOOKUPS BLAMED

Prosecutor Begins Probe of New Acid Throwing.

Charges of gangster alliances in the cleaning and dyeing industry came from several quarters yesterday after vandals had attacked seven branch offices of the Michigan Cleaners and Dyers company, 1339 West 63d street. Squads of gunmenmen invaded the branch offices in the forenoon, held employés at bay, and poured acid on the clothing held there. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

DR. B. M. SQUIRES.

The concern is not a member of the Cleaners and Dyers' institute of Chicago, the trade organization formed last spring with Dr. B. M. Squires as arbitrator, in an effort to end bombings and vandalism in the industry.

Louis Holman, president of the company, said that his troubles began when he withdrew from the Master Cleaners and Dyers' association, the predecessor of the institute. His main plant was visited by acid throwers ten days ago.

Prosecutor Begins Inquiry.

Edwin Duffey, assistant state's attorney assigned to the racket bureau, assigned investigators at once to the case.

"I saw this trouble coming," he declared. "Dr. Squires wanted the Becker chain of cleaning shops to sign up with the institute, and the only terms under which Morris Becker, head of that chain, would sign up were that he be made president of the trade group. That was done.

"It will be remembered that three years ago Becker announced that he had given Al Capone a share in his business to obtain protection from racketeers. I don't know whether that connection has been severed at present.

"The state's attorney's office is fully cognizant of the situation. When the proper time comes, we will act."

Dr. Squires' Statement.

Dr. Squires issued a statement in which he denied that the institute had any knowledge of or responsibility for the attack of the acid throwers yesterday. The Michigan Cleaners and Dyers company withdrew from the old trade association four months before the institute was formed, and was not accepted as a member of the latter body because it refused to employ union labor, he asserted.

"We have information that checks were in the possession of the state's attorney's office giving evidence that this company had employed gangsters to prevent the unionization of its plant," said Dr. Squires. "The presumption might be that the refusal of this concern to continue to pay tribute might be the occasion of these acts of violence."

The attacks by acid throwers yesterday morning were made on all seven shops within half an hour, evidently the result of a concerted plan. From the location of the shops and time involved, it was believed that at least a dozen hoodlums, working in three or four crews were engaged in the vandalism.

The attack on the shop at 1178 East 61st street was typical. One man of a gang of four remained at the wheel of an automobile outside. Two others subdued employés with revolvers, while the fourth sprinkled acid over the clothing hanging in the place.

The same gang carried out its acid attack on shops at 1500 East 67th street and at 1030 East 65th street. The other places visited by the vandals were at 1209 North Clark street, 1564 North Damen avenue, 1863 East 71st street, and 33 South Crawford avenue.

The International Cleaners, another concern which has suffered attacks by vandals recently, has been "notoriously a price cutter," Dr. Squires charges. That concern was a member of the institute, but withdrew.

Two Hoodlums Face Court.

Louis Clementi and Philip Mangano, Capone hoodlums, appeared yesterday in the Felony court on charges of malicious mischief, assault to murder and conspiracy as a result of the wrecking of delivery trucks of the International Cleaners in a garage at 10 East 29th street early Wednesday morning. The hearing was postponed to Sept. 17.

"We know that Clementi and Mangano were working as sluggers for some of the unions in the cleaning and dyeing trade up until a month ago, when they severed that connection," Prosecutor Duffey said.

The Michigan cleaning concern and the Checker Cleaners, the subsidiary which runs the shops attacked yesterday, obtained an injunction on May 27 restraining officers and members of three unions in the trade from picketing their shops or otherwise injuring their business.

ALLEGE FLAW IN CLARK'S STORY OF DOUBLE KILLING

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 14.—(AP)—An attempt to show a flaw in the story of David H. Clark that he shot and killed Charles Crawford and Herbert Spencer, political leaders, in self-defense, was made by the state today in cross-examination of the former deputy district attorney.

After Clark had been questioned on underworld affiliations between criminal gangs and public officials, Special Prosecutor Joseph Ford asked him about a death threat which Clark said Spencer made against him the day before the killings on May 20.

Clark had testified he made an appointment with Crawford to discuss Spencer's attitude.

"The thing you wanted to see Crawford about was that terrible, shocking threat?" Ford asked.

"Yes, I went out there to find out what Spencer was doing," Clark answered.

Shaking a transcript of yesterday's testimony, Ford turned to defense counsel and defied them to find any testimony by Clark that he had mentioned the threat to Crawford.

ELEVATED DRIVE URGED AS RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYED

Plan Commission Reports on Study of Project.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Chicago plan commission yesterday completed a study showing that the construction of a west side elevated highway this winter would furnish employment to 30,250 men, stimulating business generally by putting $363,000 a day into circulation through pay rolls.

EUGENE TAYLOR.

"Civic leaders," said Eugene S. Taylor, manager of the plan commission, "are concerned about the demands that will be made upon them this winter. Putting 30,250 men to work would furnish more relief from the depression than any charity program, and it would be a form of relief more wholesome to society than any giving of alms."

Money Would Bring Action.

The plan commission estimated that if a special session of the legislature were to appropriate $22,000,000 to cover the cost, dirt would be moving on the construction within seven weeks.

"A staff of 400 or 500 competent engineers and draftsmen, now unemployed, could be recruited and could prepare the plans and specifications in three weeks," said Mr. Taylor. "Our chief engineer, Hugh Young, did such an emergency job in preparing the plans for double decked Michigan avenue in three weeks, and there is now no idle talent available.

"The Austin-Kinzie west side elevated highway project, abutting the Chicago and North Western railroad embankment, has been planned in consultation with the railroad, so that I believe an easement from the railroad could be obtained in forty-eight hours. This would permit construction to start on the mile from the business center to Halsted street.

Easy to Get Right of Way.

"The right of way for the other nine miles of the route would be easy to obtain at this time when much of the property beside the railroad is in default on taxes and is not producing any revenue."

Money for the project is available in the state treasury. It is estimated that the road fund lying idle in the state treasury will mount to $50,000,000 by spring unless a program is developed to stimulate expenditures this winter as an unemployment relief measure.

Chicago motorists will be contributing almost half of this $50,000,000 in gasoline tax and registration fees. The benefits of the elevated highway would be enjoyed not only by Chicagoans but by motorists over the northern part of the state.

The estimate of 30,250 jobs is based on the presumption that the project would be handled as an unemployment relief measure, that contracts would be awarded for as much work as possible as quickly as possible, and that specifications would require the construction to continue through the winter just as work on buildings is continued through the cold weather.

Boon to Building Trades.

The wrecking of building to clear the right of way would put 5,000 men on a pay roll, according to the plan commission's study, while 750 men would be employed in moving buildings, 1,500 in remodeling the structures and 2,000 in rebuilding. These would include carpenters, plumbers, electricians, plasterers, roofers — in fact all the building trades would be represented.

On the highway proper, there would be 4,200 unskilled laborers, jobs that would be welcomed by family heads who are now behind in payments to landlords, grocers, clothiers, and dairies. In sinking the caissons, there would be 3,400 workers.

The number of carpenters who would be employed on the structure proper is listed at 2,925, engaged mainly in building forms for pouring concrete. In handling the steel reinforcing there would be 1,925 metal workers.

In addition to the men on the site of the construction, 3,150 workers would have to be hired in steel mills, cement plants, gravel and sand pits, and lumber yards, furnishing material and supplies to the men on the front. Also behind the lines would be 1,300 office workers, salesmen, clerks, bookkeepers, telephone operators, draftsmen, engineers, and so forth.

Predicts Spread of Benefits.

"This 30,250 total," said Mr. Taylor, "does not consider those thousands who would benefit indirectly, but to a smaller extent. Every one in the community would benefit to some extent by putting $363,000 a day into circulation. These wages would not be hoarded. The money would be spent for shoes, groceries, rent, street car fare, school books, blankets, for the supplies of living."

Construction of the elevated highway would be underway had the legislature at its regular session passed a bill to appropriate $5,000,000 to start work. Gov. Emmerson opposed the bill. In its place, the governor promised a survey to determine the traffic needs and measures for relieving traffic congestion. Little if anything has been done on this study. The Chicago plan commission, with a staff of competent engineers, spent three years on research before recommending construction of an elevated west side highway.

Wife of Man Shot to Death in Home Is Freed

Mrs. Dora Verbeck, 52 years old, 740 West 48th street, accused of manslaughter in connection with the death of her husband, Leon, 49 years old, after a quarrel in their home on Thursday in which he was shot and fatally wounded, was discharged by Judge Rooney in the Felony court yesterday when Assistant State's Attorney Frank Mast asked that the case be not pressed. Mrs. Verbeck said her husband dropped a pistol and shot himself accidentally.

MAYOR STUDIES WAY TO COLLECT FUNDS FOR NEEDY

Voluntary Luxury Tax Planned.

Upon his return from Camp Grant yesterday Mayor Cermak again turned his attention to the problem of raising money for poor relief next winter. Estimates of the amount needed range from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Among the methods so far proposed for raising funds is a sales tax on luxuries. A suggestion that this tax could be collected voluntarily by merchants thus eliminating any need for legislation was added by the mayor.

Holds Law Is Not Needed.

Under the mayor's proposal the only legislation that would be necessary, he said, would be for the city council to pass a resolution calling upon all merchants to levy a volunteer tax on luxuries. The matter first will have to be taken up with the mayor's advisory commission and the governor's relief commission.

"Every one buying luxuries of any kind would be contributing," the mayor said, "and wouldn't notice the extra penny or two tacked onto the sales price. Tickets for theaters and ball games could be included, and a seal could be issued to be pasted on packages or even on bank checks."

Stamps or seals similar to those used by the Red Cross, and those issued at Christmas time to raise funds to fight tuberculosis, could be used to show the purchaser that he is doing something for the poor. The stamps would be obtained by merchants through a central distributing agency.

ASKS STATE RELIEF ACTION

State Representative James T. Burns of Kankakee announced yesterday that he has written to Gov. Emmerson urging that if a special session of the general assembly is held this fall the subjects of unemployment and the administration of defunct banks be included in the call prescribing upon what subjects the session may act.

"The state of Illinois must care for its citizens," read his letter, "and this duty should be given first place in the work of a special session.

"The administration of affairs of banks by receivers should be reviewed by the special session to the end that the assets should not be entirely dissipated by unnecessary delay, expensive litigation, and oppressive and exorbitant fees for attorneys and receivers."

CALLS MEETING OF COUNCIL TO ABOLISH 126 JOBS

The principal purpose of the meeting is to abolish 126 civil service jobs, the holders of which have already been dismissed in the mayor's economy drive. Of the jobs involved 91 are in the health department, 15 in the office of the city collector, and 20 in the office of the controller.

Corporation Counsel Sexton has held that civil service office holders cannot be laid off for economy purposes for periods longer than thirty days unless the council abolishes their positions.

The council will also be asked to repass the ordinance sponsored by Miss Margaret Haley, business representative of the Chicago Teachers' federation, authorizing the sale of $6,900,000 worth of 1930 school board educational fund tax warrants held in the city's aggregate funds and the purchase of 1931 warrants in an equal amount from the school board. Legal flaws were found in the first ordinance. Miss Haley says she has a buyer for the 1930 warrants, which, if sold, will provide funds for payment of school employés.

Payment of scrip in lieu of cash to all school board creditors who receive their payments from the educational fund was halted yesterday. Scrip payments have exhausted the $3,000,000 tax anticipation warrant held in trust and an additional warrant, authorized by the board, has not yet been signed by Mayor Cermak. School officials said they had been assured that the warrants would be signed this morning.

Auto Loan Employe Fined for Misuse of Licenses

Charles A. Bachelor, manager of the used car department of the Motor Acceptance corporation of Evanston, was fined $1 and costs yesterday by Justice of the Peace Harry H. Porter in the suburb on the charge of using automobile license plates illegally. Bachelor surrendered twenty-eight sets of license plates which had been on repossessed cars offered for sale by the company, and promised to buy dealers' licenses for the cars.

Work for 200

Two hundred men were employed by the West Town Chamber of Commerce yesterday in its campaign to cut weeds on the west side of the city to do away with one of the chief causes of hay fever. The weed cutters met in the morning at Harrison and Canal streets and then went to various sections of the west side to begin their work after receiving instructions from Health Commissioner Bundesen.

GUN PENALTY TEMPERED TO VON FRANTZIUS

Fined $25; Subject to 6 Months in Jail.

Peter Von Frantzius, who was fined $25 on Thursday for failure to keep a complete record of firearms sold from his sporting goods store at 608 Diversey parkway, would have received a much heavier penalty, it was revealed yesterday, if the maximum sentence provided by law had been imposed.

Von Frantzius was found guilty before Municipal Judge Edward S. Scheffler in jury court on the state statute applying to his offense. The penalties provided for conviction on this charge are a fine of not more than $300 or six months' imprisonment, or both. The $25 sentence did not require him to pay the court costs.

Arrested in Gang Drive.

The arrest of Von Frantzius was made by state's attorney police on Dec. 8 of last year during a drive against gangsters and hoodlums. At that time the police said they had evidence that Von Frantzius had sold the weapons used in the North Clark street machine gun massacre.

Earlier in the same year the sporting goods dealer also had been in trouble with the police because of his alleged gun sales to hoodlums. In September he was arrested on a warrant alleging that the revolver used in the murder of Alfred Lingle had been purchased from him. A charge of being an accessory before the fact in the Lingle killing was placed against him, but later dismissed.

Places Blame on Clerk.

The state statute provides that the seller of a firearm must keep an accurate record of the name, address, and occupation of every purchaser and for what purpose the buyer wants it. Von Frantzius placed the blame for not having a complete record of his gun sales on a clerk who he said has left his employ.

Blanchard Is Nominated to Succeed H. A. Cooper

Burlington, Wis., Aug. 15 [Saturday]. — [Special.] — State Senator George W. Blanchard of Edgerton was nominated by the conservative Republicans at 1 a. m. to succeed the late Congressman Henry Allen Cooper at a caucus here. He was nominated on the 12th ballot with 132 votes to the 103 of State Senator Conrad Shearer of Kenosha, his nearest opponent. Blanchard, a stalwart dry, was nominated when the Racine county delegates, which theretofore had been voting almost solidly for State Senator Walter S. Goodland of Racine, swung to him on the eighth.

X-Ray Evidence Brings a Murder Indictment

Use of X-ray evidence was reported yesterday to have resulted in the indictment of Lupe Gonzales for the murder of Oscar Belan, Negro cab driver. Gonzales was shot by the cab driver after the latter had been fatally wounded, allegedly by Gonzales. At the county hospital Gonzales refused to allow the bullet to be taken from his back, but when he was put under the X-ray, the bullet was shown to correspond with those in Belan's revolver. Other witnesses were found, according to the state's attorney's office, who corroborated the scientific evidence.

Fisherman Plays Shark 11 Hours; Is World Record

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Aug. 14. —Shark fishermen say I. J. Deklerk established a world record at Port Elizabeth today, even if he did not catch his shark. Deklerk hooked a shark at four o'clock yesterday afternoon and the battle raged 11 hours, said to be the longest time any man has every played a shark. At three o'clock this morning, after huge crowds had been attracted by the contest, the line became entangled in jetty rocks and the fish escaped.

PRICE OF GAS CUT TO 8 CENTS, A RECORD LOW

Ethyl Also Reduced in Oil War.

The price war between the big oil companies brought new cuts in the price of gasoline yesterday, and if no motorists were observed dancing in the streets it was not because they lacked reason to do so. The latest cuts, effective today, have put the price of motor fuel at its lowest point in Chicago history.

Standard Oil of Indiana cut the price of its standard grade gasoline, which it had slashed two cents Thursday, another cent yesterday, to meet a similar cut made by the Shell interests. It will sell for 11 cents a gallon, including the 3 cent state tax, at filling stations today.

Shell replied within a few hours by cutting the price of ethyl gasoline 3 cents, from 17 to 14 cents a gallon. Standard immediately announced that it would meet that reduction too.

Others to Meet Price.

Smaller oil companies make a practice of meeting the price quotations of Standard Oil, and they announced that they would do so in the present case.

The reductions in retail prices are made in the face of rising wholesale costs. Spot gasoline at the refineries, quoted last month in the wholesale market at a little more than 2 cents a gallon, has moved up at present to between 4¼ and 4½ cents a gallon wholesale.

The price war, oil men say, had its inception some months ago when Standard and other major companies brought out a new low grade of gasoline to compete with the small independents. Shell, at that time, cut the price of its standard grade gasoline to within a cent of the competitive grade.

Price cuts at intervals on the competitive grade were met by Shell on its standard grade, but it was not until this week that the warfare involved ethyl gas and the standard grades of Shell's big competitors.

War on Gas Fraud.

Coöperation with the authorities in fighting gasoline bootleggers, who are said to be defrauding the state out of large sums of money through evasion of the gas tax, was pledged at a meeting yesterday of representatives of large petroleum interests.

F. V. Martinek, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, was chairman of the meeting at which were present W. H. Allen and A. H. Sus, representing the Sinclair Refining company; G. C. Morris and A. C. Harvey, representing the Pure Oil company, and Paul Hedlick, secretary of the marketing division of the American Petroleum institute.

A statement was issued calling the gasoline tax evasion "a challenge to our business and to our government" and promising "to coöperate with federal, state, county and city officials in wiping out the evil."

34 WARRANTS FOR DOG OWNERS.

Thirty-four warrants were issued yesterday by Municipal Judge Joseph W. Schulman for the arrest of persons who failed to appear in court after receiving summons for violation of the city code covering the licensing of dogs.

HOOVER STUDIES JOB GUARANTEES PLAN IN INDUSTRY

Hopes to Head Off Dole Move in Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—President Hoover, in his study of unemployment relief measures, is giving serious attention to a scheme for guaranteeing or regularizing unemployment which has been initiated by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Should the chamber stir up the interest of sufficient leading or key industries throughout the country in its plan for assuring employés that they could depend on a certain amount of employment over a fixed period it is possible that the scheme will be incorporated in relief plans for the coming winter now being formulated at the White House.

Just an Interested Spectator.

Some features of the plan have been explained to the President in recent days by officials of the United States Chamber of Commerce, but thus far Mr. Hoover is represented as being merely an interested spectator in the movement, which already has the enthusiastic support of the American Federation of Labor.

One theory on which the sponsors of the plan have worked is that buying would be stimulated this winter if even a considerable proportion of the forty million persons at work in this country had reasonable assurance their jobs would be secure for months to come.

This developed today after it was learned that the committee on continuity of business and employment of the United States chamber will meet in Washington Sept. 1 to correlate the efforts it has been making in the matter of unemployment guarantees and regulations for possible use by President Hoover in his plans for the winter.

Line Up Big Industries.

When this committee was first constituted last February it started out with the purpose of lining up the major industries in a plan to guarantee regularized employment. The plan was not meant to be used in the present emergency, however, as the business leaders believed business would be on the road to recovery before now. But, with the prospect of another hard winter and the threat of socialistic relief legislation in the next congress becoming more real, steps were begun to expedite this scheme for the use of President Hoover in his plan for the coming months.

The plan provides simply for the bigger industries definitely to guarantee or assure uninterrupted employment for so many workers for so many days in the year, thus removing that much of a prospect for additional unemployment and the fear from the minds of this many employés of losing their jobs.

Just how far the plan has developed and the possibility of using it to any great extent in plans for the coming winter will not be known until the chamber of commerce committee meets here in September. Discussions as to the possibilities of its use now have been going on, both at the White House and the chamber of commerce, for several days.

Utilities, Food Industries.

A number of industries are understood to have started plans already for guaranteeing or assuring employment. A large soap manufacturing concern has guaranteed its workers 48 weeks uninterrupted employment for a year. The utilities, the food industry, and other manufacturers of absolute necessities such as shoes and textiles, who have not been hit so hard by the slump, are industries that the chamber of commerce committee is making a supreme effort to enlist.

Whether or not President Hoover includes the employment assurance scheme in his plans its successful inauguration by a few key industries would aid the administration in its fight to prevent the passage of socialistic or "dole" legislation. Sponsors of the plan assert that voluntary action by industry to make employés' jobs more secure would act to thwart efforts to enact federal unemployment insurance legislation.

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the National Chamber of Commerce, was among the leaders who discussed the guaranteed employment plan with President Hoover. In commenting on the chamber's plans for devising measures for insuring stability of employment Mr. Barnes has emphasized that the task should be done by business itself and not by congress.

Report Cafe Girl Indicted for Shooting Ex-Husband

A true bill was reported to have been voted by the grand jury yesterday against Bernice O'Connor, 24 years old, a cigaret girl in a north-side café, charging her with the murder of her divorced husband, Edward, whom she admitted shooting on July 31 when he forced his way into her apartment at 4330 Lake Park avenue. Police are still seeking Willy Wong, a Chinese, reported to have been with the girl shortly before O'Connor was killed.

Swanson Asked to Seek Peace in Lockout of Movie Theaters

State's Attorney Swanson was called upon yesterday to act as mediator in the lockout of movie picture theater employés after 400 members of the operators' union voted unanimously to maintain their stand that two operators instead of one be employed at each theater. Faced with a continuation of the shut down of 100 theaters, the operators gave a vote of confidence to their business agent, Thomas E. Maloy, who had refused to allow the theater owners to dispense with the services of extra operators.

CHARLES LOUNSBURY.

"What do you think is the next step?" Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lounsbury asked John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, when the result of the vote was disclosed.

Suggests Parley with Swanson.

"I believe Mr. Maloy and Mr. Aaron Saperstein [president of the Allied Theater Owners' association] should now meet with the state's attorney and see if any agreement can be reached," President Fitzpatrick said.

Prosecutor Lounsbury, whose investigation of complaints concerning the moving picture operators' union resulted in the indictment of Maloy and five others, sought to bring about that conference yesterday, but Maloy declared himself unable to be present at that time. The meeting is expected to take place today.

Asked what possible compromise could be brought about by Mr. Swanson, Lounsbury said he could see none. The theater owners say they do not need two operators and cannot afford to pay the additional salary—which ranges from $90 to $175 a week, according to the size of the theater—and the union insists that two operators or none be employed, Lounsbury explained.

"No Halfway Ground."

"It's one of those situations where there is no difficulty about the scale of pay or the number of hours of work or conditions of employment," Lounsbury said, "and consequently one in which there is no halfway meeting ground."

Attorney Theodore Levin, representing the picture house owners, said he could see no basis for a compromise. The theaters which have opened since the lockout went into effect last Sunday night have the owners operating the machine, he said, which is not in any sense a violation of the contract with the union. Levin added that the reopenings were not an indication of any desertions from the association. The owners regarded the outcome of the union meeting of yesterday as merely the fulfillment of a prearranged program, he stated.

Maloy had said that in order to try and shake off the appellation of "czar of the union" given him in recent years the meeting of yesterday was to be open, and he would take no part in it and would not seek to influence the vote of any member.

Speeches Defend Maloy.

Upon the meeting being called to order by President Thomas Reynolds the communication from Mr. Saperstein was read. It stated that the owners could no longer afford to pay two operators and asked the union to agree to the dismissal of one operator at each theater.

Emmett Quinn, a lieutenant of Maloy, moved that the proposal be rejected and there were a dozen seconds, after which a rising vote was called for. All stood, and then began a series of speeches, the tenor of which was that Maloy is not a racketeer but rather an able union leader, whose efforts had brought about many increases of pay to the operators.

THE MICHIGAN ATROCITY.

"With you men before me," said Judge Sample, sentencing the three Michigan murderers, "I feel that I am in the presence of fiends. The people of this state have fixed a penalty of life imprisonment as the penalty for murder. We all know that this does not meet this kind of case."

Voters of Michigan four months ago, on April 6, refused a law which would have met this kind of case. In 1929 such a law was vetoed. It would have sent these men to the electric chair. It would probably have deterred them from the outrage which has shocked the state and the nation and which not only seems to the judicial mind, but, undoubtedly, to the great majority of normal people, inadequately punished by anything less than death.

That the peril of death would have checked these criminals is not asserted, but though a sentimental and perverted humanitarianism denies it, no one who has noted how eagerly convicted murderers grasp at commutation of a death sentence will doubt that the death penalty is a restraint. Men will rape and kill in spite of it, but the consciousness that the extreme penalty cannot be imposed most certainly contributes to the release of vicious impulses. As long as men fear death they will be in some measure, and in most cases, restrained by it. There are the insane and the morally incorrigible, and there can be no way short of permanent removal from society to protect society from their criminal impulses. But the death penalty is a means of checking these impulses which no community can afford to relinquish.

The inadequacy of imprisonment which shocks the moral sense of normal mankind in such a crime as the Michigan murders is also an offense to the moral feeling of every civilized community, and it is to be hoped that Michigan's experience in this frightful tragedy will bring about a change in her unwise law.

The crime has other aspects, conspicuous among which is the rôle illicit booze played in the tragedy. The whole scene was gin soaked. Everywhere the investigation turned there was gin. The unhappy young victims had it. Almost every suspect interrogated was either drunk or associated with some dealings with booze. The district seems afloat in gin. Yet Michigan is a strong dry state.

We do not expect professional prohibitionists or dry zealots to heed any warning from this revelation or from the mass of similar evidence of the failure of the prohibition system. But men and women not committed beyond the influence of facts must be stirred by such evidence to revolt.

There has been no development in American history so profoundly sinister as the growth of violence and vice, of rape and murder, since the beginnings of prohibition. Day after day the news records crimes seldom committed among our people in past generations, of universal lawlessness and ineffectual restraint. The nature of such crimes and the conditions which make them both possible and frequent challenge the common sense and common security of our American community. They call for action without further debate with blind zealotry.

THE NYE COMMITTEE DECISION.

In denying Bishop Cannon's petition for a writ to stop the Nye committee from prowling his effects and prying into his affairs, Justice Cox of the Supreme court of the District of Columbia held that the committee should have a wide latitude in inquiries which might determine the need for further legislation. There is no sympathy for Bishop Cannon or his concealment of political acts involved in the thought that this decision or the issue it covers should get consideration in the United States Supreme court.

Interpreted as the Nye committee will interpret and act upon it, there is indicated a change in government giving to the United States senate blanket authority for almost any enterprise it chooses to undertake. Legislative limitations are cast off. The senate need only to set up the declaration that it is engaged in a study of proposed legislation and it may then invade privacy in a way possible to no other branch of government and intended to be in the authority of none. What can be done is made obvious by what has been done. The Nye committee has used its official power for and against candidates. It has conducted raids and established courts. It has interfered with the electoral rights of states. It has endeavored to prejudice candidacies and forestall elections.

The senate, with inquiries ostensibly for the study of legislation, may invade private rights, seize papers and divulge private affairs. Citizens will have no protection even in the courts if a ruling stands that the senate authority is of wide latitude. It should be of the strictest limitation. No study of legislation requires the operation of private detectives in personal affairs of citizens or justifies political interference in the elections in the various states. Without reasonable restrictions the senate can and apparently will ignore all the safeguards intended to protect citizens from the aggressions of government.

TAKING IT OUT OF CHICAGO.

The increase of switching rates in the Chicago area is another reminder that the interests of this city and region have no adequate defense at Washington. In legislation, in administrative action, even in adjudication we are repeated victims. The raising of the switching rates, as Philip Hampson's analysis in yesterday's TRIBUNE discloses, adds a substantial and at this time serious burden for our manufacturers and shippers to carry. But its significance is greater than its direct consequences indicate, for it is but another imposition in a long series. The persistent attitude of Washington toward Chicago has been for years inequitable and unfriendly. The treatment of Chicago's sanitary and commercial needs in the long struggle for a fair use of our natural resource, the lake, and for the development of a waterway to the gulf, a public benefit which Illinois initiative conceived and to which the taxpayers of Illinois have made the chief contribution, is a chapter of selfish obstruction and political indifference or hostility.

From a good part of this hostility and injustice we cannot defend ourselves. But many of its effects a more determined assertion of our claim to fair treatment and a more alert and competent representation of our interests at Washington would prevent. Other communities, east, west, and south, manage not only to protect their local interests but repeatedly to win favors at national expense. California can tax the country, including Chicago, for a water supply, while Chicago has been fighting against odds for its minimum needs. Chicago and the midwest paid heavily toward the Panama canal, and then paid over again and still pays in the economic losses national policy imposed upon our transport and trade.

Protest has been futile. Only the organization of our political strength and that of the great region which suffers with us, and its more effective use, can force fairer treatment. That organization and use is long overdue.

THE NONEXISTENT NEUTRAL.

Dispatches from Washington say that there is a good deal of confusion in the affairs of the commission which is dealing with the claims of American citizens against the Mexican government. The claims amount in all to $600,000,000. They are being adjudicated by a commission composed of an American, a Mexican, and a neutral, Dr. Horacio Alfaro of Panama.

The American commissioner, Mr. Fred Nielsen, seems dissatisfied with the progress of the work. The dispatches suggest that the other two commissioners, acting together, have ruled out claims without consulting Mr. Nielsen.

The charge is interesting as an illustration of the extreme difficulty of adjudicating international differences. One reason that peaceful methods of settling disputes are not as popular as they might be is the fact that peaceful methods lack a good deal of perfection. The neutral voice is the determining one, but the ideal neutral is for practical purposes nonexistent. No doubt the Panamanian commissioner is above reproach, but it is altogether likely that his views regarding the claims of American citizens are colored by Latin American sympathies of which he may be wholly unaware. As a citizen of a country allied by race with the Mexicans and sharing a common economic and political relationship toward this country it would be surprising if he did not incline toward the Mexican position.

To be sure, the same difficulty of finding truly neutral judges applies in our own domestic jurisprudence, but here the conscious or unconscious prejudice of judges is tempered by the existence of a body of law and courts of appeal. There is no international appellate court and today international law is scarcely more than a phrase descriptive of something which does not exist. The ordinary risks of a lawsuit are therefore considerably augmented in international litigation, and particularly so, we venture to say, in litigation in which this country is a party.

The United States is a creditor country and that fact is likely to be at the bottom of a large proportion of the international disputes in which we shall find ourselves. It will not be easy to find a neutral judge able to view the issues dispassionately in a world in which most of the nations are in debt to us. The opportunity to create precedents for nonpayment of debts to Americans will be welcomed in many lands.

The outlook for America, should it submit its cases to the league court, is particularly dark because the league court scarcely conceals its political origin and orientation. The problem of finding an acceptable method for the settlement of international disputes peaceably is still far from solved.

Editorial of the Day

SHALL WE RETRENCH?

[Boone (Ia.) News-Republican.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE prints an editorial about Calvin Coolidge, closing with a paragraph startlingly suggestive that we may have to elect the ex-President again. The burden of the article is a comparison of the opulence and prosperity of the country in the era of Coolidge economy, when we amassed a considerable surplus, with the distressingly bankrupt condition which now prevails in an era of riotous extravagance and menacing deficits. The fallacious idea that congress could hold on to a surplus had again been rudely dispelled. It is suggested that we return to the Coolidge methods.

In a companion editorial THE TRIBUNE, perhaps unconsciously, points out a start in this direction by exposing the extreme wastefulness of the federal department of agriculture. Of course, the Chicago newspaper is astute politically, and it knows that it would be well nigh an impossibility to make Coolidge President again. Its suggestion that we adopt Coolidge methods is more practical. In fact, it might be wise to call Coolidge to Washington with power to take the ax and eliminate the extravagant salary grabbing that infests the many bureaus. If we are going to do a job of retrenchment, we know of no better method than to put Coolidge at the head of a commission to investigate wasted government funds. At the rate we are going now, the country will soon be in the predicament of Chicago, and the great horde of government hangers-on will have to take their pay in anticipated warrants.

FOOT COMFORT.

MARK TWAIN is generally charged with saying that everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it. Somebody might become immortal by paraphrasing this comment, making it apply to foot discomfort. The man who complains about the weather and does nothing has an alibi. Talking is the limit of what he can do. Not so with foot discomfort. There is much that can be done, but people who talk the most do the least.

With respect to many foot disorders, any person who genuinely wishes comparative comfort can have it if he is willing to pay the price. The best illustration is the pain and discomfort of corns, about which there is much complaint. The corn remedies sold in drug stores, properly used, will remove corns. They are composed of salicylic acid, or some allied substance, and this will cut away piled up skin, as has been proved in thousands of cases.

What is more, corn remedies will remove the roots of corns. That is, they will remove any roots that are there to be removed. But if the pressure and rubbing is renewed the corn promptly returns, regardless of everything else. Which brings us back to this: The only cure for corns is to change the shoes to such as will not press and rub. That is easy. Who is willing to work the remedy?

The same facts apply to calluses. Again many complain. The remedy is to wear shoes that prevent all callus or that bring about callus that is evenly distributed. Again, who is willing to do more than talk?

Ingrowing toenails result from wearing shoes too narrow at the tip. One end of the slanting nail is jammed into the flesh. The remedy is to wear shoes that are broad in front and, incidentally, to remove the pressure from the slanting nail. There is much talk. Who bids to act?

The bunion proposition is more complicated, but it comes partly under the rule. Bunions are caused from spreading of the bones at the ball and pointing of the toes at the front. Wearing shoes that are shaped like the foot of a barefoot savage will prevent a large part of the trouble. Some cases go beyond the rule we discuss in that they call for operation to remove bones and parts of bones that lie in between footbones.

Many complain of pompholyx in hot weather. If they went barefoot or wore sandals they would not have this disease. At most, they might need to powder their feet and stockings freely with some simple powder. Who is willing to escape pompholyx?

Probably two-thirds of the ringworm of the foot that goes by the name "athlete's foot" would become so mild as not to be an inconvenience if people wore sandals in place of shoes and either wore no stockings or light cotton only.

OPERATION ONLY CURE.

I. B. writes: I had an operation for ovarian cyst last year and now the trouble seems to have come back.

1. Is the only cure operation?
2. What is the cause?
3. Would a diet eliminating meats and heavy starches remedy it?

REPLY.

1. It is. But operation may not be necessary. Some cystic ovaries do not require operation.
2. Nobody knows.
3. No.

TREATING BUNIONS.

Mrs. G. J. writes: I have bunions. What can I do to get rid of them? I have heard of all kinds of remedies and none do much good. Would operation be successful?

REPLY.

Applying medicines to bunions is generally a waste of time and energy. In bunion the basic trouble is displacement of the bones. Anything that stops short of straightening the bones and joints is of very limited value.

In simple cases wearing broad shoes and using toe pads are of service. In some cases operation must be done.

The toes should be made straight by removal of sesamoids or other operation—the simpler the better.

DIVORCE IN MEXICO.

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is a divorce granted in Mexico legal in Illinois? If so, how long a time must a person reside there before securing one? R. P.

Where a person contemplates going to another state to secure a divorce the question whether the residence can be made to appear so genuine as to give the courts of that state unquestionable jurisdiction is so close a question that we advise going over the entire situation carefully in a personal interview with a competent attorney before embarking on such a course.

INDIANA GETS HIM.

Chicago, July 27.—[Friend of the People.]—The occupants of the building across the alley from us on Irving Park boulevard keep a dog penned up in their back yard who barks and yelps almost continuously the entire night, keeping the entire neighborhood sleepless. Anything you can do about this will be appreciated. E. A. J.

An officer interviewed the owner of the dog complained of and was informed by him that he intends to take the dog to Indiana next week where he owns a farm. However, as the dog is not licensed a dog tax remittance blank was given to him with instructions to obtain the necessary license. The owner assured the officer there will be no further cause for complaint.

VEHICLE STICKERS.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Will you please explain the purpose of the recent ordinance passed by the city council on June 10, 1931, relative to the new stickers in connection with the motor vehicle license? 2. Also tell me if it is necessary to display or carry the old vehicle license plate when the new sticker is plainly displayed in the proper position. C. J. B.

1. As we understand it, many of the old metal tags had been stolen and it is felt that the stickers will be less subject to such theft.
2. We would consider it advisable if you still have the old one.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR Wake-Line: What are some of the changes which a person, born in 1870, and now 61 years old, has seen in the interval?

It was the custom then for nearly all families, especially in rural communities, in the fall to lay in a supply of potatoes, cabbages, apples, dried onions, rutabagas, pumpkins, squash, beets, carrots, etc., to store in the cellar for winter use. Housewives filled innumerable jars and crocks with pickles, preserves, mincemeat, jellies, jams, and canned fruits.

Apples were peeled, quartered, cored, sliced, strung on strings, and hung up to dry. It was a job for the whole family. By the way, did you ever eat dried apple cake, made like a fruit cake with home dried apples stewed for a long time with sugar and molasses and boiled down to the consistency of honey, then used in cake like dried fruit? Dried apple cake is something to go down in memory with the apple, mince and pumpkin pies mother used to make.

Even families in the cities, although they didn't have "hog killings," bought one or more dressed pigs and quarters of beef, and prepared their own salt pork, corned beef, smoked hams, bacon, and often rendered their own lard. They made mincemeat, head cheese, sausage, and had frozen fresh meat as long as it lasted.

Wood fuel was in common use. Wood sidewalks and fences were universal. Coffee usually was bought in green berry form and roasted and ground in the home.

Modern plumbing was practically unknown. The few families with running cold and theoretically hot water were of the aristocracy. The Saturday night bath was still taken in the washtub in the kitchen. I am speaking now more particularly of farms and small towns. Housewives pumped all the water they used and all hot water was heated over the kitchen wood stove fire. More anon.

In 1882 Haverly's "New Theater" was located on Monroe, just west of Dearborn. Its capacity was 2,040, 640 seats in the parquette and dress circle on the first floor, 600 in the balcony circle, and 800 in the upper gallery. It was claimed the theater with "standing room" could seat 2,800.

Aisles were few and narrow, inadequate for the requirements of the number of seats which were placed so close together that it seemed as if a densely packed house was the only idea uppermost in the mind of the designer and builder. The only means of egress was in front, and this exit was so circumscribed by stores, shops, and offices that the space frequently was entirely insufficient. F. R.

"SLIDE RULE" DEDUCTIONS.

In times of depressions, or business recessions,
Statistics are wonderful things:
To prove that just lately
Your profits were greatly
Above what today's balance brings.

Big deals were then jumping, it kept you a-humping
To make the full rounds of your clubs,
Where "contacts" were glad,
Though sometimes quite sad
That others must labor like dubs.

But now many charts concerning the marts
Are laid on your desk every day,
Which show beyond doubt
That while you were out
Your customers went the same way.

Through stock market factors and other subtractors
Results unexpected accrue;
But a graph not quite plain
Is clear in the main
The some one who's losing is you.

HANK IS LEAVING US. By us one means R. H. L., all readers of the Line, and its present conductor. It is with a keen sense of loss, even personal loss, that we record this fact. After forty years' service with THE TRIBUNE, Hank Tobias is retiring from active work to live in California. Hank it has been who has major domoed the composing room presentation of the Line and its typographical appearance for every conductor, from the immortal B. L. T. through the list to R. H. L. Just as cheerfully he has extended his helpful efforts to "pinch hitters." Hank, so often referred to by all columnists, has been almost as much a fixture as the Line itself. His last work on it will be the placing in type of Monday's column. Then away to California and a permanent home, perhaps in Hollywood. As Hank proves up his last galley, we'll whisper to him our very best wishes for the future and a tiny warning of movie queens. After that, just "Good-by, Hank, old pal, good luck."

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 15, 1915.

LONDON.—Affairs in the Balkans are approaching a crisis. While diplomatic negotiations are proceeding in an effort to induce the states still neutral to cast their lot with one side or the other, the central powers have massed troops on the Balkan frontiers. It is supposed their plan is to force a way through to relieve Turkey. The Rumanian army already is partly mobilized and four new divisions of reserves have been called out. In Greece recruits of the 1915 class were called to the colors.

PARIS.—A French cruiser bombarded and destroyed the Wagoner works at Jaffa on the Palestine coast, the ministry of marine announced. The bombardment was ordered because the Germans were making arms and ammunition for the Turkish armies at the Dardanelles in the factory building.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Carranza has been given ten days within which he must notify the United States and the Latin-American republics whether he will participate in a conference for the purpose of restoring peace in Mexico. The ultimatum is contained in a joint note sent by Secretary of State Lansing and the diplomatic representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia, Uruguay and Guatemala to Carranza and other factional leaders in Mexico.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

GLENS FALLS, N. Y.—The Blue mountain stage loaded with summer resort visitors, was held up in true Dick Turpin style on the steep mountainside near North river. The robbers secured $1,000 in money and jewelry from five men and three women. Four of the passengers escaped despite the shots of the two masked bandits. The highwaymen treated the women with the utmost courtesy. The scene of the robbery is one of the most picturesque in the Adirondacks.

CHICAGO.—Irish of Chicago will divide themselves today into two great factions and after putting the city between them will open fire at two picnics with their heaviest guns of oratory. The United Irish Societies will meet to fight for peace at Sunnyside park, and the Irish Nationalists will gather to fight for war at Oswald's grove in South Halsted street. The clash that might result if the two picnics were not separated by all Chicago was manifest during the day. O'Donovan Rossa, champion of the Nationalist party, arrived in the city and characterized Michael Davitt as a "renegade." Mr. Davitt, who will be the chief speaker for the United Irish Societies, considers Mr. Rossa a "back number." Rossa will be the orator at the Nationalists' picnic.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The day at the executive mansion has been extremely quiet and the bulletins from President Garfield's bedside continue to be reassuring.

CHICAGO. — Burglars entered the residence of John A. Colby in Hyde Park but got nothing except a pair of cuff buttons of nominal value. One of the family was awakened and fired a shot at the intruders without effect.

CHICAGO.—Building continues active in Chicago. Norman B. Ream, who recently purchased the Woodruff house, proposed to double its capacity. Martin Ryerson will begin at once the five story brick building designed for the northeast corner of Wabash avenue and Adams street, to cost $200,000. Mr. Ryerson is making good progress with his building on the site of the old Nevada hotel on the east side of Wabash avenue between Madison and Monroe streets. The building department issued 109 permits last week, among them one to John M. Smyth for a four story and basement store and dwelling at Madison street near Halsted, to cost $22,000.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—There is so much bad being said about the private employment agencies that, in justice to all the 380 agencies in the business, the true situation should be explained to the public. The law classifies all persons securing positions for applicants, with a view to profit, as private employment agencies. There are 63 theatrical agencies, 10 teachers', 27 nurses' registries, 29 railroad labor agencies that furnish labor only in large numbers to the railroads on special orders, 11 hotel agencies which deal with persons working in hotels, 81 purely domestic agencies that furnish servants for homes, 4 engineering agencies, 1 architect's agency, 1 artist's agency, 1 barber's agency, 1 dentist's agency, making a total of 239 agencies, and under the law they come under the classification of employment agencies, but really they have nothing in common with the other 141 employment agencies, as these agencies do a high class business and there are not two per cent complaints against them in a year. The other 141 employment agencies are termed "general agencies" and furnish all kinds of work, from dishwashers to bank clerks, and I can safely say that out of the 141 agencies there are approximately half of them that have been in the business a long time and very rarely have any complaints been filed against them. There are about 80 agencies that came into the business during the good times when orders came in so fast that they could not furnish help to supply the demands from the business firms that applied for help. During the last year and a half, when the panicky times came on us, they are not able to make a success of their business legitimately, and they are the ones that cause all the trouble, and thereby give the other agencies a bad name. This information is from my 14 years of experience. JOHN J. MCKENNA,
Chief Inspector, Division of Private Employment Agencies.

THE WILD FLOWERS.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—The Wild Flower Preservation society desires to express its appreciation for the fine cartoons and articles which appeared in THE TRIBUNE during the last spring, presenting to its readers the case for our vanishing wild flowers in the most effective way possible in these newspaper reading days. The courteous reporter who attended our annual meeting at the Chicago Woman's club gave an excellent summary of Dr. Cramp's lecture in the issue of Sunday, May 10. The following day there was a fine editorial, "Each One Kills the Thing He Loves."

May 31 an article by Roberta Nangle told about the work in which our society is actively engaged. The Linotype article of May 8 called "How to Know the Wild Flowers" was priceless as propaganda, as was Harold Gray's cartoon, May 17, "Private Life of a May Flower." Bob Becker, on trilliums, in THE TRIBUNE of May 9, was most satisfactory, as he seldom fails to be. Cartoons and articles are frequently sent to us by people who fear we may not see them. Many readers are evidently delighted to see THE TRIBUNE using its powerful influence for conservation.

FOOD AT THE TUBERCULOSIS SANITARIUM.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—A very dear friend of mine has been a patient of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium for several years. Last Sunday I visited him and was surprised to hear him complain for the first time. Recently there have been radical changes, especially with the food. You can easily understand the necessity of good, wholesome food for patients in this institution, which they are not getting now. The food served last Friday was of such a poor quality the patients could not eat it, but went to bed hungry. I have no fault to find with any administration, but it is apparent that whoever has charge of this place is conducting it along the lines of the Oak Forest infirmary.

I verified this by speaking to several other patients and they were amazed at the radical unfavorable change. Mr. Cermak would do well by saving in some place less worthy. Will you kindly give this your attention and try to help these unfortunate people?

THE OLD BOATS.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—I was surprised at the amount of interest developed among friends and acquaintances regarding steamships when you were receiving letters some time ago about the old excursion boat from Lake Erie now lying at Riverview park. Each vacation I've me scouting around the harbors of the lakes for relics of steamships of the past. This year I found the bones of the old S. S. Georgia bleaching on the beach near the town of Sturgeon Bay. She had been stripped of everything worth while and hauled onto the beach to get her out of the way. I know one old Virginia is working for Mr. Wrigley at Catalina under the name of Avalon, but where are the City of South Haven, the Nyack, and lots of the old floating palaces of yesteryear? It would be interesting, I am sure, for lots of us to hear of our old loves.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 8.—I was pleased with your editorial in regard to the agricultural department at Washington. This department has surely and the farmers hundreds of millions yearly every year for the last thirty years or more from their monthly reports. These monthly reports have shown from 5 to 20 per cent higher than production actually matured and the market invariably breaks in anticipation of this report. If this department was abolished altogether it would surely result in a great saving to the farmer as well as the taxpayer.

FLOWER OF THORNS

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.
A FATHER'S SECRET.

It was Sally who had to tell Sam, give him all the details. The bullet had plowed through his father's chest on the right side, grazing his lungs, making a wound painful and dangerous, but not necessarily fatal. He had a fighting chance, the doctors declared. Shock and loss of blood had proven far more dangerous. For a few days they had despaired of his life. Perspiration bedewed the young man's forehead while he listened.

"And you and that girl got him into the car and brought him home . . . by yourselves!"

"There was nothing else to be done. I had sense enough left to know that I must get him home as quickly as possible."

Sam was unnerved. Anxiety, sleeplessness, long hours of torturing waiting and delay took their toll of him. He had seen his father's gray face, and cold, merciless fear took him by the throat, squeezed his heart. Dad! That awful thing could happen to Dad! Somehow, such a possibility had never entered his thoughts.

Sam suffered horribly. It was Sally who was now the prop of the broken Winsteads. It was upon Sally's strength that the young man found himself leaning. His father's danger had put all thoughts of his own affairs out of his mind for the time being, and, if he remembered how desperate their affairs were with Sally, how miserable was her fate, he lost sight of it in his terrible anxiety about his father. What were they, compared to Dad's safety? Only let Dad get better—and everything else would be righted.

He had come back to find Sally kneeling by his father's bedside, holding his hand to her cheek as though she loved him. He accepted what he had seen without question. He didn't question anything, outside of his father's condition. Time enough for questions . . . afterward. In the meantime, his bewilderment, his pain, he turned to the girl for consolation. She would come in and sit near her, white and trembling, straining for a sound from the sickroom; he would look at her with beseeching eyes. Over and over he questioned her, making her repeat every detail. Mears hadn't as yet been superseded, and she had thought best to send the family out of the way. They were now up in the Piedmont, Minna May and the boy who had gotten her into trouble safely married and with them. They would be called back after, poor things—she had seen to that. And it was better for them to have—the people were so angry with them all, that it would have been very unpleasant for them.

"Father understands just how it happened. He doesn't want Mears punished. He says it was a mistake," she explained. And she added simply: "Father is never anything but kind. That . . . that's what hurts." Her voice shook, there were tears in her eyes.

Jo Dixon had already told him how devoted Henry was to her, how absolutely she had been with him. He turned his head now, and watched her curiously.

"You call him father?" he asked. "You have learned to care for him? In five . . . any one would learn to care for him."

"I have learned a great deal since I came to Winsteads, Sam," she replied slowly.

"I suppose so," said he, absently. And started, violently, as he heard a window door open. He looked terrified.

"He is sleeping quietly," the nurse reported softly. "The doctors were a little alarmed this morning—but he has turned the corner safely."

Sam slumped in his chair, breathing quickly. His forehead was wet. Sally came and stood by him. "It's all right now, Sam," she whispered consolingly. He sighed deeply once or twice, and leaned his head against her shoulder, an unconscious appeal to which her heart thrilled. He put his arm around her, the instinctive groping of distress for the comfort of the human touch, the eternal little boy in all men reaching for the mother.

"Suppose you go upstairs now, and lie down for an hour or so? He is asleep, and the doctors are with him. Come and lie down, Sam. I will call you the moment there is any change," she coaxed.

He obeyed her childishly, and she covered him when he lay down on the bed. He was so worn out, so spent, that he almost instantly fell into a deep sleep. She stood looking down at him. How thin his face was, how worn! It hurt her to note his pallor, the purplish shadows under his eyes. She dropped a kiss on his bright hair, and with a beating heart left the room, closing the door after her. She herself, after an interview with the nurse, stole to her own room for needed sleep.

Two or three days passed thus. While they warded off the dreaded pneumonia that threatened, and nursed and coaxed back his frail strength, Sam and daughter spent most of their days in the hall outside his door, hushed of every sound from his room. While Sam slept Sally watched. While she slept he kept watch. Then, almost miraculously, they thought, Henry rallied. Gained a little strength. Held it. When they came to him, together, he looked long and earnestly at both pale faces, but he could see nothing but anxiety for him in both. Both yearned to him. They clung to his hand.

"I want . . . my girl," said Henry. He looked at her fondly.

"Father, father!" She was put to it not to weep.

"Daughter . . . darling. They tell me I am going to stay."

"And Sam is here now, father. You know how you wanted Sam!" she added.

"She is so good to me . . . my daughter, Sally," said Henry proudly. "I couldn't have pulled through if she hadn't been with me . . . I . . . made her promise never to leave me."

"I have told you you couldn't drive me away from you, father," said she. "Never think of such a cruel thing as my leaving you!"

"She won't . . . my daughter . . . Sally." Henry was looking at her steadily. This, then, was why she had stayed. Because she had learned to love his father, and she wouldn't grieve him by going. She was kind and true to Dad—God bless her! Sam thought with a rush of deep gratitude. She would stay, so long as his father needed her. He looked at Sally with kindling eyes. Henry, watching him, smiled faintly, a secret smile.

"You two . . . will stay with me, my children?" he asked them wistfully.

"O, father, you must know we will!" cried the girl, clinging to his hand.

"Dad—Dad——" choked his son.

"I—love you both . . . so much!" breathed Henry. "I can't . . . leave either of you. Both . . . my children." He looked at his son with a touch of his old whimsy. "Couldn't you sing to me? I have so much wanted to hear you sing. Sit there, beside Sally, where I can look at you both . . . as much as I want to."

Sam knelt beside Sally, slipping one arm under his father's pillow to bring his beloved gray head a little nearer. To brace himself, he put his other hand on her shoulder. He was dazedly aware that something beautiful was happening, something incredible and heavenly: Sally wasn't going to leave Winsteads! She would never leave his father—because she loved him. He could think of Sally, because his father was sure of her. Peace crept trembling into his tormented heart. No matter what happend, Sally wasn't going away from Winsteads . . . nor would he again leave his father. So knowing it was for the sick man, his voice a trickle of golden honey. Henry lay listening, a smile of pure happiness wreathing his pale face.

"Take Sally out in the garden," he breathed presently. "She needs it . . . and you. . . . Bend closer, son." And when Sam leaned to the pale lips there came to his ear a thin, thing whisper.

"She loves you, son. As much as you love her. She told me so." Sam started back, and Henry said aloud: "I will go to sleep now." The nurse came forward, and Sam helped Sally to her feet. Henry's smile followed them beneficently as they left his room. He gave a little sound that sounded faintly like a chuckle. "My boy . . . my girl . . ." he murmured humbly. The nurse looked at him inquiringly, but Henry only smiled at her benignly.

Sam dared not let his true feelings be seen, so he walked beside her coolly, and answered all greetings, and talked pleasantly, calmly, casually. And Sally walked beside him, and wondered, and wondered. How could she make him know, how would he receive the knowledge she had to impart? She stole quick glances at him. And wondered guiltily why she hadn't known long since how dear he was, how splendid. And then she trembled with sudden dread, watching his calm face. Suppose he no longer cared?

There's a fairly good program picture at the Oriental this week, but the customers aren't paying much attention to it, because Duke Ellington and his band are on the stage. At the first show yesterday the Duke and his Harlem syncopators were forced by insistent applause to give encore after encore to an audience that didn't seem to care whether there was a movie on the bill.

The feature picture, while it doesn't stand the remotest chance of being voted one of the best movies of the year, is an entertaining piece constructed along the immortal lines of "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model." Dorothy Mackaill is the fair blond model this time, and it must be said that she's a happy choice for the rôle.

The time honored story of the lovely, penniless model and the rich young playboy is given credibility by the performance of Miss Mackaill, plus the assistance of such people as H. B. Warner, Joan Blondell, Walter Byron and Margaret Ware.

Miss Mackaill stars as Margaret Nichols, who displays expensive clothes six days a week and comes home nights on the subway to the family above her father's bookshop in Jersey. Mrs. Nichols and the other daughter of the family are down on poor old father, because his book business is not a remunerative proposition. Between Margaret and her father, however, there is sympathetic understanding, so when her affair with a wealthy young gentleman reaches a heart breaking finish, her father gives her the help and solace she needs.

Dorothy Mackaill is not consistently good throughout the performance, but there are moments when she rises to command your respect and admiration. H. B. Warner is entirely believable as the father who blends kindness with wisdom, and Joan Blondell, who plays Margaret's roughneck little sister, makes you understand why they picked her as a Wampas baby.

PERHAPS

GLORIA SWANSON.

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Gloria Swanson, the movie actress, arrived here this afternoon on the Cunard liner Aquitania, wondering whether her divorce decree from the Marquis de la Falaise has been made final and seemingly on friendly terms with another suitor, Michael Farmer, whose home is in Paris, but who also was aboard the Aquitania.

Miss Swanson was asked whether she would marry again.

"I would," she said, smiling, "if it would make me happy."

"Well, how about Michael Farmer? Are you engaged?"

"I wouldn't be surprised at anything," she said. "I wouldn't deny that, nor say yes, either."

As for reconciliation with her former husband the marquis she said: "Anything is possible, but not that."

"Statistics," he said, "indicate that heart disease is making perhaps the greatest death claim of all ailments today yet its cause remains a mystery.

"I would not say that it is due to an intensive civilization. We are too disposed to blame everything on civilization. Human beings have a way of adjusting themselves to new conditions, and the individual as an individual is not living today at a faster pace than he has generally lived throughout the ages."

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Dr. A. Hrdlicka, Smithsonian institution anthropologist, who arrived here yesterday from Alaska, announced discovery on Kodiak island of prehistoric villages among the oldest in North America.

"Large settlements which flourished, died, and were reoccupied long before the Russians found them deserted 150 years ago dot the island," he said. "I found traces of surprisingly large populations and astonishing cultural levels among them."

Seeking evidence of a trek of the human race from Asia across Bering strait, once a land bridge, into North America, Dr. Hrdlicka has worked south from Point Barrow since 1926. He will return to Kodiak next year.

Airplanes Bring Feature Guests to Recall 1812 Massacre Today

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A white woman and two Indians, descendants of those whose names were engraved upon history with the Fort Dearborn massacre 119 years ago today, arrived in Chicago yesterday. Years ago their ancestors came to the fort on horseback, some to command the frontier post, others to plunder it. Yesterday the trio came in airplanes, and as friends.

From St. Louis came Mrs. Frances Heald Ottofy, granddaughter of Capt. Nathan Heald, commandant of the fort when the Indians fell upon the garrison. From Algonac, Mich., came Keosata Ke-Sus, or Red Sun, and his wife, Tawao, or Buffalo Woman, both Pottawatomie Indians, members of the same tribe that took part in the massacre.

Today these three will stand side by side watching the petals of flowers fall like a benediction about an imaginary stockade. At the same spot where old Fort Dearborn once stood, a stone's throw from the Chicago river, they will join others in a ceremony that becomes more significant with the passage of the years.

When Capt. Heald's granddaughter came to town yesterday she found herself an official guest of the city. Stepping down from an airplane with her husband, L. M. Ottofy, a St. Louis physician, she was greeted by a welcoming committee from the Junior Association of Commerce. She was whisked to the Hotel Sherman in the white open automobile known as the official guest car for the city of Chicago. There Greeter Gaw added the official city welcome, including a gift of a golden token calling attention to the 1933 World's Fair.

"The doctor happened to see a notice about the ceremony in the paper and we decided to come," Mrs. Ottofy explained as she unpacked some of her treasures—books describing the Fort Dearborn massacre, emblems and decorations of high office in the Daughters of 1812.

"My grandfather's usefulness didn't end with the evacuation of Fort Dearborn," she continued. "He gave fifteen years of his life to Missouri, upbuilding the community to which he moved in St. Charles county, forty miles west of St. Louis. He did this despite a wound suffered during the massacre that caused him to walk with a crutch. His homestead, which had been old Fort Zumwalt, built in 1798, was the first log hewn house in Missouri built on a Spanish grant. My father and I were born in that cabin. Part of it still is standing.

"My grandfather died in 1832 but my grandmother, Rebecca Wells Heald, lived until 1857 and told my father many pranks she used to play on my grandfather. She was always full of jokes and was known for her humor and bravery. Once she discovered a dead Indian so she propped him against a tree, placed a gun across his arms, and quite successfully scared my grandfather."

There will be three ceremonies today. The first will be at Michigan boulevard and Wacker drive, the site of the old fort. The second will be at 18th street and Prairie avenue, the spot where the party of civilians and soldiers that had set out from the fort for Fort Wayne, Ind., were surprised by the Indians. The third ceremony will be at the replica of Fort Dearborn in Grant park.

At 9 o'clock, the same hour at which the Fort Dearborn garrison marched out, taps will be sounded by buglers, and Ann Hillman, 4 year old orphan from St. Vincent's asylum, will place a floral sword at the base of the marker on the London Guaranty and Accident building. At the same time flowers will be sprinkled from the roof of the building.

The mayor's message proclaiming this to be Fort Dearborn day, will be read and the Daughters of the American Revolution will place a wreath at the tablet on the boulevard bridge commemorative of the city's pioneer forefathers. Boy Scouts, members of the Fort Dearborn post of the American Legion, wearing buckskin clothing and coonskin caps, and blanketed Indians with feathered head dress will be present and so will representatives of several patriotic organizations.

After the ceremony at the bridge, the participants will form a parade to what is left of the monument at 18th street and Prairie avenue. There Mrs. Ottofy, national secretary of the Daughters of 1812, will lay a wreath.

At the replica of Fort Dearborn, one of the 1933 World's Fair buildings, citizens will scatter flowers following a resolution adopted by the city council. That called for "heaping wild flowers against the log walls and upon the palisades of the fort on Fort Dearborn day and Sunday."

An extensive program at the fort has been planned for today. The features will be Miss Fort Dearborn and her court of four attendants. They are Miss Maria Middleton of Fort Wayne, Ind., selected as Miss Fort Dearborn out of 200 competitors for the honor at a final contest at the Trianon ballroom Thursday night; Eleanor Fisher, Delphine Brown, Myrtle Gergits, and Evelyn Ginger.

Miss Fort Dearborn and her party after lunch at the Sherman hotel will ride with Greeter Gaw in the official white car. They will be preceded by policemen on white motorcycles and followed by Ted Weems and his orchestra. During the afternoon the orchestra will give a program of Indian and early American music. Chief Red Sun and his wife will be present.

At 1:30 p. m. the chief will face John Manson, descendant of Capt. John Whistler, a veteran of Burgoyne's army, who later became an officer of the revolutionary army and who built Fort Dearborn. The chief and Manson will bury a tomahawk and smoke a pipe of peace.

At 3:30, Richard Grant and Ernest Lassey, dressed in buckskin, will arrive at the fort in a canoe, after having paddled completely around the eastern half of the United States since Sept. 22, 1930.

Study Has Exposed the Foundations of Childish Behavior

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

What a fascinating thing the human mind is. And the human emotions.

As we come to understand human behavior how much more interesting it becomes—and how much less we feel the impulse to blame.

On Sunday afternoon not long ago a group of us listened to a story about a pyromaniac. It was set forth by a man who is chief of his town's volunteer fire department. It seems that frequent fires had become a menace to the community. Everything pointed to the work of a pyromaniac. So the man telling the story set himself the task of finding the culprit.

How he did so made a long and interesting story—of which the most interesting part was the end. The pyromaniac, when proved guilty, was sent by an intelligent judge to a hospital for psychopathic cases. There he was treated not as a criminal but as a normal man with a kink. What the details of his lack of adjustment and the cause of his neurotic craving for excitement were I don't know, but I do know that he came out at the end of a year cured.

He then had to serve a short prison term but before going in to begin it, he asked to see the man who had caught him. "I just want to tell you," he said, "that I feel like a new man. I haven't felt like this in years." And he thanked him.

He served his term and is now a good citizen. Setting fire to buildings was only a symptom of some inner trouble which was cleared up.

How increasingly in dealing with children we are coming to realize the importance of treating causes. How gradually, more and more, we are learning to uncover the well springs of children's thought and feeling, in order to interpret their actions.

The findings of the pyschologist are not always in a form for parent to make use of. But much of the fruit of their study has been translated into books and booklets—just for parents. For those who are interested but do not know where to start I have made two lists—one called "Short Reading in Child Management" and one called "Long Reading in Child Management." Either of these or an "Informal Reading Plan" for parents" will be sent out in receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Yacht Racing Leading Sport at Charlevoix

BY THALIA ——.

THE races in the annual regatta of the Charlevoix Yacht club, being held on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons through August, are one of the chief excitements of resort life at the Chicago club just now. Besides the regular races there are two special ones, the cup for the John B. Lord perpetual trophy and the Labor day one for the highly prized Conover trophy. The final race will be run on Sept. 5.

The statistics about the boats—there are eleven of them, and they comprise one of the largest fresh water fleets in the country—are most impressive. John Stuart's Grebe was the first boat picked for the American team in 1921. It raced in England and was high point winner, and raced again in 1923 and 1924. Meteor, owned by Oscar W. Johnson, was the 1929 first champion. It and Comet, John P. Wilson's boat, are favorites this season. The Norez, owned by Bradford Whiting, was built for the crown prince of Norway. In 1927 the Norez won the Scandinavian championship, and in the fall of the same year won for Norway the Seawanhaka cup, and was runner-up in the Scandinavian Gold cup race. The Question, Dr. Eugene S. Talbot's boat, was the 1924 Long Island champion.

The Onis, owned by Frederick H. Prince, is another boat of Scandinavian fame. Built in 1923 for the crown prince of Sweden, she won the native gold cup in 1924, and was the fastest boat on the team representing Sweden. The Firefly, belonging to Joseph H. Gale, commodore of the yacht club, was sailed by his son, Jack King, has won the Charlevoix Yacht club trophy several times.

There are all 6 meter boats and besides there are 3 Manchester 17's, with also 1 race in the series; the Jill, sailed by Miss Cynthia Wilson; the Kismeking, that Miss Alice Babst of New York City sails, and William B. McIlvaine Jr.'s Bubbles.

The winners are decided on a point basis, one point being allowed for each boat beaten, one for finishing, and a quarter point for first place. Dr. Frederick H. Scott is vice commodore of the club, and William B. McIlvaine is secretary treasurer.

How About Charlevoix and Other Yacht Racing Plans.

On this side of Lake Michigan, and inland, are the annual sailing races on Lake Winnebago, Wis., to begin Monday and continue through the week. Several yachts are being shipped to Oshkosh from Lake Geneva, and there will be participants and spectators also from Delavan lake. The Lake Geneva Yacht club will be represented by seven sailboats, and A. F. Gartz Jr. is sending his motorboat along for the use of his family during the races. Dr. and Mrs. Addin P. Kaye are motoring up tomorrow, as Mr. Kaye is to be one of the judges. The Fred Wackers are going up to see their Bigger Warrior races, and Mr. and Mrs. Hiram N. Gilfords will be there to watch their A boat, Little Smoke. At Lake Delavan, I'm told, there's also much yachting this summer than ever before. Harry Nye, who has won all those cups that he doesn't know what to do with them, Emery Hogue, Gordon Cameron, Elmer Stevens, and the Van Ess boys are among the best sailors.

Miss B. McCormick and Janet Ayer Busy at Bar Harbor.

The debutantes who already will know what it is to be "out" even before this season here begins are Helen Buttorff McCormick [more usually known as Patty] and the Walter Ayer Janet. They're having several gala parties given for them at Bar Harbor, Me. Mrs. Morris Hawkes gave a dance for Patty McCormick on the third of August, and Mrs. McCormick is to have a dinner and dance for her next Tuesday evening at the Bar Harbor club. Mr. and Mrs. Ayer and the L. Hamilton McCormick-Goodharts of Washington, D. C., are to give a dance at the Bar Harbor Yacht club on Thursday evening for Janet and the McCormick-Goodharts' daughter, Miss Patience McCormick-Goodhart, and before that, Mr. and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart are giving a dinner for the two girls.

Also from Bar Barbor—Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Harold A. Howard, and Mr. Charles B. Pike are on the honorary committee of invitations for a luncheon-recital to be given by Walter Damrosch on Wagner's "Gotterdammerung" tomorrow, and Miss Mildred McCormick crossed the line first in the first of the August yacht races.

Oakbrook Polo Team Prepares for Sept. 15.

There's to be a lot of polo playing at Oakbrook between now and the 15th of September. By that time the Oakbrook Polo cup, the Oakbrook handicap, the Chicago 12 goal championship, and the Chicago and Central Circuit open tournaments will have been played. Tomorrow afternoon Gerrish's Four Horsemen will play the Fifth Horse troop team, and next week the tournament games are to begin. The Onwentsia, Fort Sheridan, and Columbia Fields teams have already been entered, and more are expected to play in the tournaments.

Mr. James Hannah, whose husband is one of the Four Horsemen, is giving a buffet supper party tomorrow evening after the game. Deering Davis, who has played polo on both coasts and all around the country, is the latest acquisition to the Oakbrook team. He's been playing with them for the past fortnight. Incidentally, you can see the 4 big silver lighthouse cocktail shakers, the trophies the Oakbrook men carried off by beating Onwentsia and Leona Farms for the Eugene Bydell Memorial match in the polo window of Field's Store for Men.

Mr. and—Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Schaffner of 1430 Lake Shore drive and their son and daughter are sailing the end of next week for a month or so in Europe . . . Miss Ethel Schaffner, the singer, is being entertained quite a bit before she departs next week for a year in Europe to fill first a contract with the Municipal opera at Strassburg, and then, next spring, an engagement with the Paris opera. One of the parties is a dinner buffet luncheon Mary Anderson is to give at the Drake on Monday . . . Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Reid are to give a tea for their daughter, Barbara, on Nov. 11, and a ball at the Palmer house on Dec. 30.

Children Give Contest Cash for Ice Fund

As the vacation days become more limited the children seem to work that much harder in their determination to pile up money in the ice fund so the rest of the summer may bring comfort to sickly babies in the tenements.

Two gifts came for the ice fund yesterday, one the proceeds of a play, the other prize money earned in a float contest in Hubbard Woods. The proceeds from both will go a long way toward providing ice for a family the rest of the summer.

"Enclosed please find $3.12, the proceeds of a play, 'Hansel and Gretel,' given on Saturday evening by the children of Waterford Woods, Wis. We are glad to be able to be of a little assistance in your wonderful work."

The Summer Trovers, a group of little girls who make up a play class in Hubbard Woods, were awarded a prize for a float in the Winnetka Day parade recently. The float was a golden treasure ship with silver sails, and was manned by twelve little girls in pastel frocks and caps.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—With the round-the-world flyers, Wylie Post and Harold Gatty, and Capt. Frank Hawks, world's fastest air traveler, as special performers and honored guests, Canada's greatest air pageant will be held at the St. Hubert airport here tomorrow and Sunday.

The visit of Post and Gatty to Montreal will be their first in Canada since their flight around the globe. Nineteen United States army pursuit planes, which reached Montreal today, also will take part in the flying.

Meanwhile, Canada is planning one of the most ambitious trans-Atlantic flights yet attempted. A fleet of five or six Aeronca light airplanes are expected to make the trip, flying from Ottawa, capital of the dominion, to London, by way of the northern route taken by Parker Cramer in his attempted flight to Copenhagen. Bretislav Pliske, of Toronto, is making a survey of the route, and expects the flight will be made early next summer.

Swiss Wood Carver Makes Models of Historic Engines

Eighteen working models of locomotive, from the first designs of Stephenson and others to those of the present, have been placed on exhibition at the Palmer house. They were made of teakwood, ebony, walnut and ivory by Ernest Warther, a Swiss wood carver who now lives in Dover, O. They represent twenty years' work on his part. Railway men have pronounced the models accurate to a minute degree.

Chic of Evening Gown Determined by Back

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris society is putting up a good back this summer. You cannot decide definitely about the chic of any evening gown until you see it going as well as coming, for all of the tricks of originality in evening fashions are concentrated in the rear on many of the smartest frocks.

The Worth evening gown, sketched today, and worn by Countess Elle de Ganay, is an example of how original a back can be. In front, as explained pictorially in the small figure, this gray frock is excessively simple. The blouse has a suggestion of sleeves, and looks like something for daytime, and the circular skirt is draped toward the waistline and knotted into a rabbit's ear bow.

When the back is turned, however, the effect is strikingly new, for the suggested sleeves are draped across the shoulders like a fichu, which is gathered under a strap of diamonds at the center, and this strap extends straight down over a bare back, to end in a bow of crêpe at the hipline. What there is of the blouse in back—and there's little—is crushed down in shirrings under the diamond strap. The circular skirt falls in widening folds to the top of the heels in back.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a young fellow, nineteen," writes a boy. "I earn a good salary, too. But every one I know is inclined to laugh at me because of my attitude toward girls. I think of girls and treat them as in books. I have taken out a half dozen girls, taken them to good shows, to respectable dances, and I never expected any of them to pay for their entertainment, as the saying goes. I felt amply repaid by the enjoyment I got out of their company. But all of them, with one exception, discarded me.

"I wondered why, and found out when I happened to overhear one of them discussing me with a girl friend. She said that I would have been a good catch twenty years ago, but that I was too slow for today.

"Now, in your column, Miss Blake, a girl writes that good girls aren't appreciated. Where are those good girls? I am skeptical about their presence here on earth after my experience. If I am twenty years behind I'll have to step on the necking and petting technique pretty lively, won't I?"

Now, tell us about the one that didn't discard you, boy! You dismissed her quite from the picture, and she looms up as a candidate for some sort of honors. Or was she just one of the kind of girls that men forget?

I'm wondering if there isn't possibly some other hitch in your relationships with girls than you imply? Maybe your dancing isn't quite up to date? Or your line may be just a bit slow and behind the times. I can't believe five out of six would turn away unless there wasn't some flaw that you have overlooked.

Perhaps you assumed too great a formality so that the girl was made to feel you were taking out her prim, maiden auntie. You ask some boy about it, some good friend who may be able to tell you in just what particular your girl style flops.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Food Talk.

How often have you heard women say, "I just can't make good cake. No matter how hard I try, it always falls on me." If not that particular wail, it is this one: "My cake is so heavy, and I haven't the faintest idea what causes it. I followed the directions to the letter." My own mental comment to all these complaints is—"You couldn't have. There is a catch somewhere."

I want to give a few simple rules that make cake baking practically foolproof. A number of housewives forget, or don't know the first rule: Accurate level measurements. If you must lean generously one way, have it in the liquid used in the cake.

First, be careful of your flour measurements. Sift the flour once, then measure. Be sure that it is no more than a level cup. A careless extra tablespoonful can produce a heavy-textured cake.

Second, cream your butter, or whatever shortening you decide to use, before you cream the sugar into it. I advocate using both hands, rubbing it well together, and squeezing it through the fingers. Then work the sugar into the creamed butter a little at a time.

Third, alternate your milk or water with your flour as you beat the two ingredients into the cake. It won't hurt you to exercise a little extra energy on the flour sifter. Two or three additional siftings of the flour or other dry ingredients is conducive to a fine textured cake.

Fourth, beat your batter after all the ingredients have been stirred in. I remember a famous caterer saying once, "Beat until your arm drops off." Then beat some more." If there are whipped whites of eggs in the particular pastry you are making, the beating process occurs before the whites are folded into the cake.

Fifth, unless your recipe specifically states otherwise, bake your cake in a moderate oven from 300 to 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Let it rise slowly until the cake reaches the top of the tin. Then the temperature of the oven may be raised slightly—about 50 degrees. Never bake two totally different cakes, requiring different temperatures, in your oven at the same time!

The rules above apply to butter cakes and do not include sponge, angel food, layer, or cup cakes.

WHITE CAKE WITH HICKORY NUTS.

4 egg whites	1 cup cold water
½ cup butter	2½ cups pastry flour
1½ cups granulated sugar	2 tsp. baking powder
1 cup chopped hickory nuts	1 tsp. almond extract

Cream the butter and sugar thoroughly. Alternately add the flour and the water, leaving out a small quantity of the flour to be sifted with the baking powder. Beat for two minutes, first adding the flavoring and then the mixed baking powder. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. Add one extra tablespoon of flour sifted over one cup of chopped hickory nut meats.

This recipe may be made without the nuts, with vanilla substituted for the almond extract, or with other nut meats.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The profile is going to be the sharp test for the fascinating Empress Eugenie style of hats. In a restaurant the other evening a mother and deb-aged daughter appeared, each fresh from the hands of a Eugenie hat style enthusiast. Daughter was simply adorable with her brown felt pointed over the right eye, exposing fully one-half her hair, the latter strewn in tiny nape of the neck curls. Mother's hat, dangerously alike in silhouette, had a short, thickish neck vamped with a definitely outlined double chin to contend with. The profiles offered an interesting study.

I don't suppose any one would vote the front view of a double chin anything in the way of a desirable possession. But the front view is not half so destructive to your beauty reputation as that view one gets from the side. I recall an acquaintance summarizing the reason for the smugness of a certain woman under discussion as: "She's never had a good profile view of herself!"

From head to foot, it's well to take a profile test every now and then, which you can do only with the aid of a full length mirror. I'll wager there are numbers of women with a wrong conception of their silhouettes from its front view only and this taken not full length.

But to get back up to the profile wanted for the type hat we were discussing, you've just got to have a good chin line and a young soft one. And a softly rounded cheek could be used with advantage, too. We haven't anything better to offer for the young chin than the good old head bending exercises, followed with a brisk massage and an ice rub for good measure. Bend the head forward on the chest, bring it back as far as you can comfortably; turn it to the right and to the left and back again.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Joan Bennett's ward in the Cedars of Lebanon hospital was thrown into panic yesterday when a woman, unknown and unkempt, suddenly appeared in the doorway of the room where the actress is recovering from a fractured hip and other injuries. The woman demanded to see the actress, evaded nurses and thrust her way to the patient's cot.

"O, you poor darling," she cried, as the actress shrank from her, "I have brought you something," endeavoring to force a Dutch doll into Miss Bennett's grasp. Male attendants and nurses, summoned by the noise, seized the film fan and ejected her.

Miss Bennett's surgeons were informed and today it was stated that the incident will not, as was first feared, impede her recovery.

Lupe Velez has found enough time in between her scenes with Lawrence Tibbett in "The Cuban" to teach Tibbett to sing the Peanut Vender song in Spanish. Lupe has devised an accompaniment of her own to Tibbett's rendition. It is such a laugh that they will probably insert it in the film.

Old City Hall Wreckage Seen Salvaged.

BY PARKE BROWN.

There was whispered cheering among some Chicago Republicans yesterday as word reached the city that, having completed his "soldiering" at Camp Grant, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson was about to start today on his deferred task of readjusting state patronage.

First of all this spelled some measure of relief for the unemployment that befell the Cook county Republican organization following recent Democratic landslides even more severely than it has afflicted the community as a whole. Having lost almost all its local patronage offices the G. O. P. has waited long and hungrily for manna from the governor's hand.

Seen in Salvage Move.

But the second—and almost simultaneous—comment heard was that if advance reports of what Mr. Emmerson intends are true he is endeavoring to pick up bits of wreckage from the city hall machine and weld them in as the Cook county unit of his own organization just as downstate he has sought to make use of substantial sections of the old Small machine.

Some of the Emmerson critics have charged that much more than half the old Small pay roll force is still subsisting on state funds, and the rumors of the governor's impending distribution of Chicago jobs indicated that almost all of them are to go to former city hall satellites, with very little for any one else.

The governor's closest friends insist they do not know whether he will be a candidate for a second term, but they, as well as many others, are convinced that the moves now forecast confirm reports that Mr. Emmerson is determined to be a candidate or to back one of his own selection.

Builds Own Machine, Is Belief.

Although it has been understood that President James of the west park board and George F. Harding—and lately the former more than the latter—will dispense all state patronage in the future, the appointments now forecast are believed to show that the governor is picking his own men, ward by ward, in order to build up an Emmerson organization rather than to aid some local district chieftain.

Of the various prospective appointments discussed around the loop, the one most talked about involves the removal of James J. Cullen from the west park board. Soon after his appointment to that body Cullen, theretofore a Deneenite, entered into a big row with the rest of the board, tantamount to an attack on the Emmerson administration. His removal was forecast then, but it has been deferred until now, and the seemingly well informed say that his place is to go to Edward F. Moore, deputy commissioner of public works under the last city administration and one of its wheelhorses.

May Replace Hitzman.

This move by Gov. Emmerson is considered extremely significant, but little more so than his reported intention to replace Chief Grain Inspector George Hitzman, formerly a Barrett supporter, with Andrew Metzger, former county commissioner and city hall ward leader in the 8th ward in the last campaign.

Similarly, another ward committeeman from the south side, Charles P. Gerds, until last April a city hall employé, is said to be slated for superintendent of lodging house inspection, a post now held by William F. Behrens.

The governor's plans are said to have met two bits of resistance. Notice is said to have been served on Hector Durante, inspector of state free employment agencies, that his own employment will expire tomorrow, Aug. 15. Durante is said to have replied that his is a civil service job and that he will not consent to leave without a trial.

Another Italian Slated.

Here again the old city hall connection is said to be seen. The best authenticated report is that Durante, business manager of an Italian paper, is to be replaced by another Italian to be selected by State Senator Daniel Serritella, city sealer under the last administration and one of its ward committeemen.

The other bit of resistance is said to have been shown by Clarence Piggott, considered a Barrett man, who was named by Emmerson as chairman of the state industrial commission last year. It is said that Piggott's resignation was demanded and that he refused to give it. This place is said to have been set aside for Charles A. Nowak, committeeman from the 19th, the one prospective appointee not identified with the old city hall crowd.

The reports concerning Gov. Emmerson's plans say that not only has he promised these and other jobs to former city hall satellites but that he has agreed to "recognize" a number of ward leaders of the last municipal administration in matters of patronage.

Galpin Active Again.

Chief among these is Homer K. Galpin, former chairman of the county committee, who came back to Chicago to direct the city hall's campaign last April. Gov. Emmerson is said to have conferred with him recently and Galpin is said to have announced that he would come back and run for ward committeeman next spring.

Other old leaders said to have been promised "recognition" include Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, council floor leader last year, and Ald. William H. Feigenbutz, both of whom are said to be looking forward to a "cut" in Lincoln park. Other committeemen said to be listed as ward leaders for the Emmerson organization are James Curran, 26th, and James Vignola, 31st.

U. S. TO SIFT WINE ELECTROCUTION OF HOUSEWIFE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—A federal investigation of the electrocution last night of Mrs. Helen Vasilzevic, 29, of 1238 North 19th street, is expected, according to information received here today from Washington. The woman was burned fatally in the basement of her home when she disconnected an electric light extension cord while standing in wine dumped by federal prohibition agents.

Although the prohibition office in Washington was still awaiting a report of the death, it was said that an investigation probably already has been started by federal administrators or their deputies in this district.

U. S. Attorney Hits Raiders.

Levi H. Bancroft, United States district attorney here, today criticized the action of the dry agents in dumping liquor in the basement of the home, describing it as a "usurpation of judicial function by the prohibition department."

"It is up to the court to order destruction of confiscated liquor and equipment," Bancroft said. "The court decides whether it is contraband. In some cases it may develop during the trial before the court that the liquor is legally possessed. Certainly no court would order liquor to be dumped in the basement of a home. That is a violation of the rules of sanitation and sets up a health hazard."

Agents' Actions Also Assailed.

The procedure of the agents in conducting the raid on the Vasilzevic home also was the subject of criticism by federal authorities. It was pointed out that the dry agents gained entry to the home on a search warrant they had obtained after swearing they had purchased liquor there.

It is supposed to be the sole duty of United States marshals and their deputies to serve search warrants. It was explained that these warrants, however, have become so numerous that the federal prohibition department has taken over the task of serving them to relieve the deputy marshals.

Calls It "Regrettable."

Frank Cunningham, prohibition chief for the eastern district of Wisconsin described the electrocution as "regrettable." He said his men had told him most of the dumped liquor had drained off into the earth floor when they left. Cunningham said the mash was not dumped, because the agents realized it "would create a health hazard."

The dry chief then added that it was not feasible to haul equipment and liquor away from the scene to await destruction at court order, saying this practice, as prescribed in search warrants, had been disregarded for several years. Cunningham said it had been the practice to give the owner a receipt for the equipment and then call for it later, but that this also has been discontinued.

Police found a receipt signed by Edward Evans, a dry agent, in the basement of the home when investigating the death. The receipt read that the 15-gallon still found on the premises had been destroyed. It was this procedure that led to the criticism of Bancroft that it constituted a "usurpation of judicial function."

U. S. Awaits Report.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Assistant Director of Prohibition Howard T. Jones said tonight that the bureau had as yet received no word from Milwaukee on the death of Mrs. Helen Vasilzevic, who was reported as having been electrocuted when she stood in a pool of wine dumped by dry agents and attempted to turn on the light.

In cases involving its agents, Mr. Jones explained, the bureau ordinarily awaits a report by the local deputy director. He said he would have no comment to make until he was in possession of the facts. He knew of no case of a parallel nature, he said and declined to state whether in his opinion Mrs. Vasilzevic's death might be made the basis of charges of contributory negligence against the government.

HELD ON AUTO THEFT CHARGE.

John McKools, 22 years old, 549 West 14th place, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $2,500 yesterday by Judge John J. Rooney in the Felony court on a charge of stealing automobiles.

VOLIVA NOW FIGURES WORLD WILL COME TO AN END IN 1935

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion and chief exponent of his theory that the world is flat, yesterday told his followers to prepare for "the beginning of the millennium and the coming of Christ in 1935." Mr. Voliva said he based his prophesy on a "measuring rod," which he had devised from various Biblical dates and phrases.

WILBUR GLENN VOLIVA.

"We are in the time of the end," Mr. Voliva said. "Conditions have been gradually getting worse and will lead up to a great war on "the plains of Esdraelon, where 200 million soldiers will gather. The war will end in the coming of Christ." The overseer also prophesied the beginning of a "period of great tribulation" soon "when true Christians will disappear from the face of the earth to escape its horrors."

Mr. Voliva's predictions recalled his messages of the past, when he claimed that the world would come to an end in 1923. Later, he said that the end would come in 1927, and still later he proclaimed that 1930 would bring the end.

PULLMAN FARE TO TWIN CITIES CUT; EXPERIMENT

Starting next Thursday the Pullman traveler accustomed to paying $3 for an upper berth between Chicago and the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul will find that he will be charged only $1.88 for the same accommodations.

The Pullman company announced yesterday that the reduced rate will be put in effect for three months between these points and on certain railroads between New York and Washington. For the ninety days ending Nov. 20 the price of an upper will be half the price of a lower.

"It is the belief of Pullman officials," read the company's announcement, "that this experimental reduction will determine whether a marked decrease in cost will draw business from day coaches and other means of transportation and also whether a larger usage of upper berths will permit economy in the number of cars operated.

"The points selected for the experiment are in areas where the volume of traffic is heavy, and, in the judgment of Pullman and railroad officials, they will give a fair cross section of rail travel as a whole."

$7,500 Bonds Forfeited in Medium Swindle Case

Bonds totaling $7,500 were ordered forfeited and a capias was issued for the arrest of Carl Smith, 6120 South Ashland avenue, by Judge Rooney in Felony court yesterday when Smith failed to appear to answer three charges of operating a confidence game. He was arrested last week as the leader of a ring of mediums who are alleged to have fleeced north side residents of thousands of dollars during the last few months. Four women are being sought as Smith's accomplices.

THIEF GETS GEMS IN HOME.

While Mrs. William Kasten, 5348 Wrightwood avenue, was at work in the kitchen of her apartment yesterday a thief took jewelry valued at $600. Mrs. Kasten said that before she missed her jewelry two men, who said they were gas and light inspectors, had called. The police will investigate to determine if the pair were impostors.

Willa Cather Writes a Novel of Old Quebec

"Shadows on the Rock" Beautiful, Critic Says.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Shadows on the Rock," by Willa Cather. [Knopf.]

OFTEN enough in the life of a reviewer to keep one keenly interested in every package of books which arrives, but so seldom as to be a single blessing of a year or perhaps two, there comes a book which is so authentically the work of genius, so immediately perceptible as a masterpiece, so emotionally beautiful in style as to be great even to the untutored reader — to the trained critic, superb. Such a book is Willa Cather's latest novel, "Shadows on the Rock."

There is something so intensely beautiful about the actual writing of "Shadows on the Rock" I cannot remember its equal in any prose of the last years. It touches the emotions, it nourishes life in one, just as sheer writing. No matter what it might be about, the inherent exquisiteness of the words, their design in sentences, their pattern in paragraphs is something which deeply stirs the mind. It is almost impossible to put into words the kind of mental joy that the writing in "Shadows on the Rock" induces in a sensitive reader. It has something of the same effect mentally that great love has emotionally on one. It digs at the roots of one's mental being. It nourishes one's mind. It restores it to the rhythm of life. It makes one's mind feel as if it had come alive after coma. Why it should do that is what is inexplicable.

The words are the same words that every one uses. The sentences are merely words put together, the paragraphs an arrangement of sentences. And yet in those words and in that arrangement there lies one of the great magic beauties of life.

Mind you, I am talking about the writing of "Shadows on the Rock," not at all about the content. What is in about is of little matter compared to how it is set down. It is not the shifting panoramas of Quebec in the seventeen hundreds, when it was a rock in the wilderness and a little band of French planted their culture in its seamy and unwelcoming crevices that thrill you. They are simple pictures of heroism, tenderness, intrigue, sickness, death, thirst for power, quiet acceptance of fate . . . pictures of human life in its relation to the march of man through the ages—which are the pictures of human life of all times—with a deep reality. Their magic power over the reader is not in the essence of their facts but in the essence of their fancy, as it were. It is not what Miss Cather records that stirs the reader to the depths of his or her emotions, but the way in which she records it.

In speaking of little Cecile's cooking a dinner for a voyageur she says: "These coppers, big and little, these brooms and clouts and brushes, were tools; and with them one made, not shoes or cabinet-work, but life itself. One made a climate within a climate; one made the days—the complexion, the special flavor, the special happiness of each day as it passed; one made life."

In that sentence, describing the little heroine of her book, Miss Cather has set down the whole fact of "Shadows on the Rock." With her coppers, big and little, her brooms and clouts and brushes — with the simple tools which every one has to use, with the words which are the common heritage of her race, Miss Cather has made life itself. She has made, in the truest sense, a climate within a climate, she has given the complexion, the special flavor of a period of life itself. It is the supreme magic of writing.

"Shadows on the Rock" tells exactly what the book is. Across the rock of Quebec, eternal, pass the shadows of a generation of human beings—a gentle apothecary, his little daughter who grows so to love her adopted land that the thought of returning to her native soil is a torture; his wife, who is dead before the book starts, but who lives so vividly and so beautifully in the little tenderly lovely home which she had made, and in her little daughter's sweetness and motherliness as to be one of the main characters in the book. Shifting shadows also are the two bishops, the old one who lives in poverty and homeliness, the young one who is an arrogant courtier before he is a churchman. Another shadow, vivid but fleeting, is little Jacques, the son of a prostitute, whom the heroine mothers with touching devotion. The recluse at Montreal, a shadow of a shadow; Pierre Charron, who loved her and in his despair became a bold voyageur; Blinker, who had been a torturer and hated the thought of himself—all of them shift and weave their shadowy forms into the record of Quebec. As individuals they are shadows against the rock of human life that manifets itself in one way one day; in another, an outwardly different way, but is always firmly, eternally the same. That quality of the permanence of human life and the vitality of human effort is the burthen of "Shadows on the Rock." And in some magic way Miss Cather has put that flow, that eternal rhythm of life into her prose, superbly.

To me "Shadows on the Rock" is a more beautiful piece of work than "Death Comes for the Archbishop." It is one of the most excitingly exquisite bits of prose in the English language.

RUSSIAN AUTHORS AGAIN GET PLACE IN THE BRITISH SUN

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special correspondence.]—During the last few years German books have been among the most popular of all those published in England. Now it seems as if the Russians were going to have another spell, for there is no doubt that the English are again actively concerned with what is being thought and done in Russia. A translation is being published of Maxim Gorky's immense trilogy, of which "Bystander" was the first volume and of which the second, "The Magnet," now is ready. Besides Gorky, a young writer called Leonid Leonov is being introduced. One of his books, "The Thief," is just ready, and another, "The River Sot," is to appear later in the year.

MAXIM GORKY.

Leonov still is in his earliest thirties, was for four years in the Red army, and in "The Thief" he writes of the Moscow underworld. A third translation is that of "The Key," by Aldanov, a slightly older writer whose reputation is already considerable; and at last we have a worthy version of the "Fables" of Shchedrin [Saltykov]. This latter book is one to be read with delight, for Shchedrin was a very great writer, indeed, and only the extreme difficulty of translating into English that which is peculiarly Russian has delayed the appearance of the "Fables" here.

A new book which is attracting attention here because of its delicate charm is "Thalassa," by Mary Frances McHugh. This is subtitled "A Story of Childhood by the Western Wave," and it is in fact a really poetical autobiography. The author re-imagines her childhood and the odd and lovable characters by whom that childhood was guarded. She writes with unusual beauty. She has imagination and fine taste. Though intimate, her book is never sentimental. It is for those who can appreciate quiet delicacy; and it is clear that the book is finding readers in England, for it is being much spoken of, always with warm appreciation.

Max Beerbohm, who spent several weeks in this country last year, has a new collection of caricatures appearing. The caricatures include drawings of Dean Inge, H. G. Wells, Mr. Masefield, and Siegfried Sassoon. As Jo Davidson's exhibition of portrait busts of English writers is open in Bond street, at Knoedler's galleries, the general public will shortly be familiar with the appearance of all our authors.

Francis Jehl Last of Early Edison Group

His Story Is Told in New Boys' Book.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

ALTHOUGH every schoolboy probably knows the story of Thomas A. Edison and his accomplishments, very few, perhaps, know much about the men who worked with him, making these achievements possible. William A. Simonds has told the story of one of these in his very interesting book entitled "A Boy with Edison."

Francis Jehl was a young lad in a lawyer's office when the great opportunity to do the work he had dreamed of doing came to him with the chance to work for Mr. Edison. When the boy got the job he was overjoyed, and from the day he began cleaning batteries at the command of his master, day or night. And night it often was, for many and many a time he worked beside the inventor all night long as they tried experiment after experiment until the faint light of dawn would rouse the man from his work, and he would send the boy home to bed. There was plenty of hard work, but there were also those jolly midnight suppers in the laboratory with Mr. Edison picking out tunes on the old organ.

The years changed the boy to a man, and his field of service from the old laboratory to far corners of the world, whither he carried the products of the work of that little group, but always the interest and enthusiasm which had marked the young recruit from the law office characterized the man. When the Golden Jubilee of Light was celebrated recently at Dearborn, Mich., in the reconstructed laboratory only two of the original group who had worked together at Menlo Park were left to receive the world's tribute, the veteran inventor and Francis Jehl, he who had been "a boy with Edison." It is a fine story of a great adventure which life brought to one boy, and of the courage and zeal which he brought to it, and dull indeed must be the young man whose pulse does not quicken in the reading of it.

Among the new books for younger children [9 to 10] are two fascinating stories which girls particularly will like very much, although the second also should interest the boys. Elizabeth Bouton's "Grandmother's Doll" is a delightful doll diary.

The second story is "Gay Madelon" and is written by Ethel C. Phillips. It is a tale of a little French-Canadian girl who spends a summer in old Quebec while her father goes north to hunt. Madelon at once makes herself at home among the habitants, joining her cousins as they entertain the tourists coming from the big boats, with music and dancing, and taking the pennies home to her aunt.

Here's Chance for Mixing Thoughts with Shivers

If you're a ghost story fan, but like your shivers to have an intellectual timbre to them and not be merely hodge podge hallucinations of the occult, you'll welcome the newest in omnibus volumes, "The Collected Ghost Shories of M. R. James," British master of the weird. Four former volumes of his famous shiver producers have been grouped by Longmans, Green & Co. in one compact book, printed on thin paper and with a format as sinister as the contents; the covers, top, edges, and bottom are black. Altogether a delightfully thrilling and original group of ghost stories—thirty-one of them.

SOX, CUBS AGREE TO PLAY FOR CHARITY SEPT. 9

FRASIER SAVES GARAWAY AND GAME IN NINTH

Strikes Out 2 with Bases Full.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

White flat heroes were swarming all over Comiskey park yesterday to adjust a holiday crowd of 32,000, but it remained for a hero of heroes, as our money on Vic Frasier, who made possible a 5 to 4 victory for Chicago over the second place Washington Senators with some sweet relief pitching in the ninth inning.

Victor was called into the arena with the bases full, none out, and the score 5 to 3 in favor of the Sox. The requested condition of the baselines was a heritage from Pat Caraway, who was yanked with the Senators' batting strength coming up. Victor put the situation first by striking out Jo Cronin. Then he fanned the very tall Sheriff Harris, Senator cleanup batter.

Ben's Pitching That IS Pitching.

Victor got two strikes past West, but he was putting everything he had on the ball and eventually passed him, Jones scoring and setting the stadium at Sox, 5; Senators, 4—and the bases still were loaded.

Victor threw two straight strikes past Bluege, then Ossie tapped one to Cissell, who ended the game with a throw to Blue.

And that, ladies and gents, is our idea of handsome relief pitching.

Then we said that other heroes were running all over Mr. Comiskey's acreage, we referred to almost everybody who participated in the festivities. But Billy Sullivan, with two singles and a double, and Carl Reynolds with a tie breaking homer and a single which drove in what proved to be the winning run, should be placed at the head of the honor roll. Carl also drove in the first run of the game with a long fly to Manush.

Two in Two Days for Robert.

Dick Welland, who won his second victory in two days, shouldn't be forgotten. In the seven innings he worked before giving way to Benny Tate, a pinch batter who delivered in the seventh inning rally, Welland held the Senators to six hits. In the first four innings he struck out five, and the one run made off his efforts was by trouble to a balk, the calling of which was protested frantically by Manager Donie Bush.

Pitcher Whitwood was no hero with his bat, but as one reviews his work after Dick recalled that but for some stupid fielding by Johnny in the ninth the Senators surely would have stolen the contest out of the fire.

The performance gave the Sox three games in the four game series with the Senators, and six out of the last eight games played with them at home park. It brought the Sox victory string since returning home from their last eastern trip to seven victories out of ten starts. And if this has aroused up your Sox consciousness you may recall that of the three losses we were dropped by a margin of only one run.

Bob Helps Senators.

Today the Boston Red Sox will move in for a four game series, including a double header tomorrow. The double bill was made possible by moving Sunday's scheduled game. Faber has been nominated to do the pitching and the boys expect MacFayden for the first fling.

The Sox got a run home and furnished additional excitement in the early running of yesterday's affair. Blue walked on four straight balls, went to second on Sullivan's single to right, and scored on Reynolds' fly to Manush. Fonseca singled to center and Sullivan went to third, but Watwood lined to Cronin and Bluege made a nice play back of the pitcher's box to throw out Kerr.

A hit by Welland enabled the Senators to tie the score with two runs in the fourth. Harris started the rally with a single to center and scored on first while West fanned and Cronin popped to Grube. Welland got to first when Kubel, then completed his trip around the bases on Fonseca's single to left.

It's No Joke When Cadets Kid Middies

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 14.—Mrs. Ingalls, the assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics, has been kidding Mr. Hurley, the secretary of war, over the inability of some army planes to find a hulk at sea and sink it with bombs. Mr. Ingalls made public an open letter which he had sent to Mr. Hurley generously offering to order the job done efficiently by navy planes. In this Mr. Ingalls was only kidding Mr. Hurley back because the secretary of war, with similar motives, once offered the services of the army's planes to complete a mission on which the navy's flyers had failed.

PATRICK J. HURLEY.

The secretary of war seems able to take a joke, but it is reported from Washington that some officials of the war department thought Mr. Ingalls' humor very sour and his letter, on the whole, an act of bad taste.

This attitude would seem to corroborate the officers who have been opposing the resumption of the Army-Navy football game on the ground that the sporting rivalry engendered between the cadets and the midshipmen during their undergraduate days becomes a professional feud in later years. Officers of important rank have found themselves instinctively unwilling to coöperate with their colleagues of the other service on problems of adult importance because the old spirit of mock contempt aroused in the two academies during the week preceding the annual football game had taken on reality as they grew older.

A certain rivalry between the arms in joint councils on problems of national defense is admitted to be a helpful stimulant to both, but downright enmity developing out of such juvenile cries as "slink the army gray" is viewed with alarm. Even in their social relations the upper officers have been observed to maintain service distinctions and, in the present case, it will be noted that the good-natured kidding back and forth has been carried on not by service men but by civilian secretaries.

Possibly the academies ought to draft such amusing men as Joe Cook, Julius Tannen, and Ed Wynn to develop a sense of humor in the cadets and midshipmen so that they might still play Army-Navy games and still go out into the service with an open mind regarding their late rivals. The entire proceedings between the two schools when they were breaking off relations and the Navy was lobbying around Washington trying to resume them were conducted in the legalistic spirit of a guardhouse lawyer expounding his rights. All suggestions that both sides regard the game merely as a sporting contest were met by bound volumes of the correspondence exchanged in this great cause with special reference to the admiral's letter of Jan. 6 and the general's masterly and crushing rejoinder of the 8th.

The undergraduates of most schools in this current age of football deemphasization, which is a terrible word brought into being by the terrible football feuds, seem well aware that the mock furies of the pep meetings are only mock furies. When they get out their professional and social relations are not impaired by any little bantering that may occur regarding the football fortunes of their old schools.

Indeed, during the last few seasons politeness has ripened into something very much like love, for at some of the big games nowadays the cheer leaders of one school will take it on themselves to invite the cheer leaders and even the past grand cheer leaders over from the other side to lead their people in jabberwocky war cries ending in "team, team, team," which ought never to pass their lips.

But the cadets and midshipmen go to school to learn fighting and if they take their furies literally they are

18 TO START IN ILLINOIS OWNERS' HANDICAP TODAY

Spanish Play Is 2 to 1 Favorite.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Along about five o'clock this afternoon at Hawthorne some Illinois citizen will pat himself on the chest and with great pride point toward the race track, enthusiastically telling bystanders to "look at my big horse, the Illinois champion."

For the Illinois Owners handicap, a $10,000 added affair at a mile and a sixteenth, is down for a decision today and only horses owned by residents of the state are eligible.

A field of 18 was named overnight, and it represents a majority of the turf establishments in Illinois. Most of the horses entered have played a prominent part in Chicago racing this season. Spanish Play, owned by Dick Morris, and Knight Commander, the property of James Norris Jr., vied for favorite honors last night, and early speculation indicated Spanish Play will have the most followers at post time. It was expected his price would be about 2 to 1, while Knight Commander, coupled with Calf Roper, was to be the second choice at 3 to 1.

Spanish Play Favored.

It has been a long time since a Hawthorne race has attracted so much interest. Illinois owners entered their good and their bad steeds, but Handicapper Joe McLennan has equalized the field in pretty good fashion by weight assignments. It is possible the winner will come from a most unexpected source. But with equal weights of 116 pounds, Spanish Play and Knight Commander, which have performed brilliantly most of the season, may have things pretty much to themselves. Both are reported to be in extra good condition.

Supporting the Illinois Owners handicap is the $5,000 added Fort Dearborn handicap. It might be called Hawthorne's little derby for all the good three year olds racing in the west have been named for it. It also is a dash at a mile and a sixteenth and Pittsburgher was the over night favorite. He turned in a sensational victory in the mud a few days ago and must carry top weight of 119 pounds. The Marsch entry of Chief John and Camp Prince also had many backers.

Hochstadter Handicap Added.

There is an added attraction on today's program which brings together a field of the best sprinters here. It is the Harry Hochstadter Memorial handicap at six and one-half furlongs, named for the former Chicago turf writer who died last winter.

While their owners were discussing only their own handicap yesterday, Abdel, three year old son of Lucky Hour-Biskra, finally rewarded his Chicago followers in the Oakwood purse.

Since early last June, this Maryland colt has worked faster than any other horse in Chicago. But he couldn't deliver any speed in his competitive engagements. Time after time he falled and usually he was heavily backed.

Abdel Wins by 4 Lengths.

He was in with a fleet band in the Oakwood, but Jockey Lefoy Cunningham shot him to the front at the barrier and he never left the result in doubt. Abdel was still four lengths in front at the finish, running the mile and a sixteenth in 1:46 2-5. He paid $15.78 in the mutuels. The expensive Quatre Bras II. was second, a nose in front of Lady Dean.

The Wilmette purse fell to Whizz James, the Northway stable's son of St. James-Whizz Bang. He ran a smashing race to beat Cee Tee and Crystal Prince. His performance indicated that he may be worth the $19,000 the Northway stable paid for him at the yearling sale last year. It was his second straight victory and by far the best race he has ever run. He was the top heavy favorite at $4.90 for a two dollar ticket.

CALUMET BUTLER TAKES $50,000 TROTTING STAKE

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Sixty-two year old Dick McMahon, veteran turf driver, won his greatest race today as he drove William M. Wright's Calumet Butler to a victory in the $50,000 Hambletonian over the mile track here.

[William Wright, owner of Calumet farm, near Lexington, is a Chicagoan and was the former head of the Calumet Baking Powder company, which he organized. He is the father of Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board.]

Little considered in the betting that favored the Good Time stable's Nedda Guy of Goshen, and John M. Berry's Keno of Rome, Ga., Calumet Butler swept to triumph in the second and third heats after finishing third in the opening mile. The victory—one which the colt's owner may never know, since the master of the Calumet farms is seriously ill at his Lexington, Ky., home—carried with it a purse of $31,549.79, richest of all trotting stakes.

Wins by Inches.

It took all of McMahon's years of experience to get the son of Truax out of Justissima down past the judges' stand in front of Keno in the third and deciding heat after he had won a comparatively easy race in the second heat. Only the smallest of margins separated the pair as they swept past the wire.

Keno, the second choice in the wagering, won the opening heat in the good time of 2:04¼, but he could not stand the pace in the second mile as McMahon drove Calumet Butler to a new mark of 2:03¼ for the colt. The Calumet colt's previous best time was 2:04¼, made as a 2 year old last year. He trotted the last mile in the slowest time of the race, 2:05¼.

Nedda Guy, quoted at 4 to 5 in the

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 14.—Guy Bush's one hit performance of last Sunday against the titleholding Cardinals apparently exhausted his skill for the time being. He returned today to show the Phillies some of the same stuff that fooled the champions, but the stuff wasn't there. In less than two innings Bush was gone from the scene and enough had happened to assure the Phils of an easy triumph in their final with the Cubs. The score was 14 to 4, and it was just that kind of a spectacle.

By the time retreat was sounded for Bush in the second he already had been victimized to the extent of three runs. Two of these slipped home in the first inning. Another feature of his enforced departure was that he left the bases filled. Then Both Les Sweetland and Ed Baecht failed as rescuers. So before the uprising closed it had netted seven runs.

Cubs Held to Seven Hits.

It may have been due to the depression caused by Bush's sad start and then again the Philadelphia brand of pitching may have been of a classy variety. At any rate, the Cubs performed no miracles against Ray Benge, who besides his throwing contributed four hits to the debacle. That was just three less than he allowed the entire Cubs ensemble which included Hack Wilson. Hack doubled once, but fanned twice. However, there was a trace of home run skill displayed by the Chicagoans. Gabby Hartnett hit one with a mate on base.

Hornsby is going to shoot Bush right back to the mound tomorrow in the first of the series with the Braves. Hornsby also expects to play a few innings, either at third or second. Frankhouse will pitch for Boston.

Wilson Doubles, Scores.

Bush lost no time revealing that he had no plans for repeating the recent St. Louis performance. He started his day's work by walking Brickell, who was moved to second on Bartell's sacrice. Klein singled to center and Brickell scored. Hurst walked and Arlett followed with a single to right, Klein scoring.

The Cubs came along with two hits, good for one run, in the second. With one out Wilson, whose pinch homer of the day previous reëstablished him temporarily as a regular employé, banged a two bagger over the center fielder's head. Grimm sent Hack home with a single, after which Hartnett bounced into a double play.

Bush fanned Mallon to open the second and it was the last good thing he did. Benge rolled a slow one to the pitch for a hit and took second when Bush threw wild. Brickell

For the second time in two weeks in Chicago Karel Kozeluh proved the master of Big Bill Tilden at Northwestern university yesterday, defeating the former champion in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2. In their previous encounter at Onwentsia the Czecho-Slovakian star upset Tilden in three out of five sets.

The two exponents of professional tennis played before a crowd of 3,000, which conducted itself in accordance with true tennis etiquette, never once exciting the temperamental Tilden to any of his characteristic outbursts. The matches will be resumed again at 3 o'clock this afternoon with Mayor Anton J. Cermak as a guest of his fellow countryman, Kozeluh.

Czech Leads Throughout.

Kozeluh held the upper hand throughout both sets, playing a brilliant baseline game and at times disregarding his dislike for the net by advancing to trade volleys with Tilden. The foreign star played a steadier game than Tilden, returning everything the American shot his way.

Kozeluh opened hostilities in convincing fashion by capturing the first three games of the first set. Tilden netted repeatedly, a fault which marked his play throughout the match. Big Bill won four out of the next six games to bring the count to 4-5 in Kozeluh's favor. In the final and deciding game both players abandoned the back court to play the net with sensational backhand shots. After bringing the count to 40-30 Kozeluh slipped a fast one past Tilden to win the game and the set, 6-4.

Kozeluh Maintains Stride.

The second set was again all Kozeluh, even more so than the opener. He won the first game, with Tilden taking the second. From this point on Bill proved unequal to the task,

NEEDY TO GET 100 PER CENT OF RECEIPTS

BY ARCH WARD.

Chicago baseball fans have an unexpected incentive to maintain interest in the Cubs and Sox for the rest of the season.

They are going to play each other on Wednesday, Sept. 9, an open date for both teams.

Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, and William Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, yesterday accepted the suggestion of THE TRIBUNE to bring their clubs together on that date in the interest of charity.

Entire proceeds of the game, which are expected to exceed $25,000, will be contributed to Gov. Emmerson's fund for relief and unemployment, and will be disbursed by that commission.

The site of the game will be determined by the toss of a coin Wednesday morning in the office of Commissioner Landis.

Regular prices will prevail. Box seats will cost $1.50, grandstand $1, and bleachers 50 cents. Ticket orders will be accepted as soon as it has been decided where the game will be played. It is possible that a few choice box seats will be sold at auction.

Move Back Yankee Game.

The White Sox are to play a series in Cleveland which ends on Sept. 8. They are scheduled to open in New York on Sept. 10. In order to return to Chicago to aid their home town's charity drive it was necessary for the management of the club to ask the New York Yankees to move back the opening of the series to Sept. 11, playing the postponed game as part of a double header.

Both Mr. Comiskey and William Veeck, president of the Cubs, who officially accepted the invitation for his club, insisted that 100 per cent of the receipts be donated to Gov. Emmerson's fund. Expenses attending the operation of the park the day of the game will be shared by the teams.

Wrigley Enthusiastic.

Mr. Veeck's letter of acceptance:

The executive committee of the Chicago National league baseball team at a special meeting this morning decided unanimously to accept the invitation of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to play the White Sox Sept. 9 for charity. Mr. Wrigley was enthusiastic about the prospects of taking part in a sports event in which 100 per cent of the receipts will go to charity.

We intend to throw all our playing strength into the game. We have an open date the day before the game and our club will be in shape for maximum effort. It may be the only opportunity we shall have this season to whip our south side neighbors.

Permit me to thank THE TRIBUNE for suggesting this game.

WILLIAM VEECK,

"Splendid Opportunity"—Comiskey.

THE TRIBUNE'S suggestion for a game between the Cubs and Sox on Sept. 9 for charity requires no long deliberation. My answer is yes. It provides a splendid opportunity for the baseball clubs of Chicago to give substantial support to a worthwhile cause.

I am particularly pleased with your reference to 100 per cent of the profits going to charity.

CHARLES A. COMISKEY,
Owner of the White Sox.

Donie Bush and Rogers Hornsby, managers of the rival clubs, yesterday lost no time in expressing their desire to make the White Sox-Cubs charity game well worth the support of all Chicago fans, as a sport spectacle as well as an opportunity to assist the charity cause.

"Rogers Hornsby and I have been

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The western filly Risque, bearing the colors of Mrs. John Hertz, captured the 51st running of the Alabama stakes before 10,000, including Gov. Roosevelt, who was making his first visit to the races this season. The governor was the guest of George H. Bull, president of the Saratoga association, and saw the race from a table in the clubhouse.

Risque led from start to finish of the mile and a quarter test, which has been the measuring stick of the staying qualities of three year old fillies since the first running in 1872. She earned $14,200 and once more turned the tables on her erstwhile conqueror, Joseph E. Widener's Buckup. Preston Burch's Tambour, winner of the Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park, was coupled in the betting with Walter M. Jefford's Allez Vite and the entry ran two, three.

Mrs. Hertz's daughter of Stimulus and Risky finished two lengths before Tambour, which just lasted to save second by a head from Allez Vite. Risque led from start to finish and was ably handled by the veteran rider Johnny Maiben. She carried 121 pounds and finished the route in 2:05 3-5 for what is unquestionably the best performance of her career.

Risque was as good as 4 to 1 in the betting after opening at 3 to 1, while the entry of Tambour and Allez Vite was played down from 5 to 2 to 11 to 5.

CHATTER QUEEN, easily best, went to the front soon after the start and, drawing out to a long lead in the stretch, was in hand at the finish. TRIASSIC raced forwardly throughout and was best of the others. LAZY MARY was shuffled back soon after the start and ran a strong race to finish fast. DAWN MIST was going well at the end. MARTHA D. and LAVENDER LADY tired after showing early speed. MAYETTA was outrun all the way.

Winner trained by J. C. Cahn. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 3:46¾. At post 6¾ minutes.

BUG HUNTER, although in rather close quarters on the inside during the back stretch run, worked himself into a contending position at the far turn and, continuing well after being forced back slightly at the stretch turn, secured to the rail after taking a short lead at midstretch and, after interfering with GRASSLANDS and DARK DAWN, won handily. GRASSLANDS showed good early speed and was racing in the stretch when shut off by the winner. DUSKY BOY made up ground in the last quarter. THE TIDE also closed well. DARK DAWN lost all chance when blocked in the stretch. BUGS LEAR showed very little speed and tired after reaching a contending position. BASILICA was knocked back while tiring on the far turn.

Winner trained by L. Gentry. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:21. At post 1½ minutes.

FRENCH LASS, after forcing the pace, came strongly in the stretch to wear down SUPREME SWEET and win going away. SUPREME SWEET had the most early speed, but tired slightly in the last sixteenth after setting a fast pace. STOCK MARKET, with ground to make up, closed well and was best of the others. DOUBLE HEART, after interfering with and bumping APPLEGOOD, made up ground to beat DOUBLE HEART. Latter could never get to the front and tired. NIFTY was in close quarters on the back stretch and stopped badly. ROYAL ROGUE was shuffled back after the start.

WHIZZ JAMES, off well, headed the field after going a quarter and, taking a good lead, lasted to hold CEE TEE. Latter, although racing wide most of the way, made up much ground and finished fast. CRYSTAL PRINCE also closed a rush from a slow beginning. PRINCE FOX was in a forward position most of the way. UNENCUMBERED could not keep up with the early leaders and made a futile bid in the stretch. JUDGE PRIMROSE and MERGER tired badly after showing speed.

ABDEL had the most early speed and, taking a good lead on the back stretch, was saved slightly to the far turn, then drew away when given his head and was an easy winner. QUATRE BRAS II. was prominent throughout and saved much ground in the stretch to beat LADY DEAN. Latter was unable to catch the winner in the last quarter and was tiring fast at the finish. STONE MARTIN met with interference after the start and closed ground on the outside. CHICAGO GIRL tired. ALTYSSUM was never a serious threat.

ANNIE REE, always close to the pace, went to the front rounding the far turn and, taking a good lead when ALL GIRLS tired, held away to the finish. BARNEY SEXTON had no excuses and although finishing gamely, could not catch the winner. WATER PORT made up ground on the outside. CLARET tired slightly in the stretch run. TORCH FIRE was shuffled back after the start. PHANTASIME met with interference and almost fell rounding the first turn.

PORT O' PLAY gained steadily after going a quarter and, heading the field when JODHPUR weakened in the last furlong, won easy. VERMICULITE was under restraint when he was passed by JODHPUR and, meeting with interference, was shuffled back slightly, losing ground. He continued well and made a game finish, but could not catch the winner. JODHPUR dashed to the front rounding the far turn and opened up a good lead, but could not last. WIRT G. BOWMAN made up some ground in the stretch. FORT DEARBORN and STOP GAP tired when the racing began. PAULA L. was badly outrun.

auction system of betting, was the favorite to sweep to a straight victory, but the filly, trained by the veteran Walter Cox, never was an important factor. She finished fifth in the first heat and, although showing signs of lameness at the start of the second mile, trotted a game race to land in second place, a length back of Calumet Butler. She was unable to appear for the deciding mile, however.

A year ago Keno was not considered good enough to race on the Grand Circuit, but today he set a crowd of 10,000 yelling as he won the initial heat. That was his best race, however, as he was a tired horse in third place back of Calumet Butler and Nedda Guy in the second heat. Evidently the 15 minute rest put new life in him as he came back to all but beat Calumet Butler in the final test.

Calumet Butler was 5 to 1 in the auction pool as the six crack three year olds paraded for the opening heat and his odds did not shorten after Keno's triumph.

Second money went to Keno, with Calumet Belr

and his once noted rally failed to materialize as Kozeluh continued to pile up point after point. Tilden double faulted to start the third game, and eventually lost it when a kill shot went out of bounds.

Kozeluh won the next two games as Tilden unable to score a point. In each game Tilden advanced to the net and Kozeluh shot his speedy back court shots past him. Tilden rallied momentarily to win the sixth game after the score had gone to deuce three times.

Burke Wins from Pare.

In the opening match on the program Albert Burke, the Irishman who holds the French professional title, disposed of Emmet Pare of Chicago in two hard fought sets, 6-4, 6-4. Burke's consistent placements gave Pare trouble and he continually broke through the Chicagoan's service to score.

Kozeluh continued his brilliant playing in the doubles match, and, paired with Burke, was victor over Tilden and Sellers, 7-5, 6-1, 11-9. Burke and Kozeluh jumped to a big lead and the match was one sided until the last set, when Sellers and Big Bill rallied several times to bring the score to deuce.

The spectators were treated to some plain and fancy exhibitions of tennis in the final set, with Kozeluh and Burke supplying most of the thrills. On five different occasions Tilden and Sellers came from behind to deuce the foreign stars. With the game score 10-9, Tilden and his partner faltered, and with Big Bill serving, first Burke and then Kozeluh broke through the service to win, 11-9.

Comiskey Will Celebrate 72d Birthday Today

Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox Baseball club, celebrates his 72d birthday today. He was born in Chicago Aug. 15, 1859, and he has been associated with baseball as player, manager and owner for 54 years.

The White Sox won league championships in 1900, 1901, 1906, 1917 and 1919 and world championships in 1906 and 1917. Mr. Comiskey said yesterday his ambition is to add another championship to this list.

Comiskey began his career in 1882 as first baseman for the St. Louis Browns and he remained with that club until 1889, during which time, as manager, he won league championships in 1885, 1886, 1887 and 1888 and two world titles.

In 1890 Comiskey became captain, first baseman and manager of the Chicago Brotherhood team. Beginning in 1892 for three years he was with the Cincinnati Reds in the same capacities. From 1895 to 1899 he was at St. Paul, then a member of the Western league. In 1900 he helped organize the American league and since then has been president and owner of the Chicago White Sox.

Sox Defeat Senators, 5-4, Before 32,000

mitted a balk, putting Harris on second. Thus encouraged, Kuhel singled to center, scoring Harris to make the count one-all. Spencer lined to Kerr.

Reynolds Hits One.

The next flash of activity was in the Senators' sixth, but heads-up baseball held the enemy scoreless. For the second successive appearance at the plate Harris led off with a single. West attempted to sacrifice and popped to Blue, then Bluege grounded to Sullivan, who made a high throw to Kerr in an attempt to get Harris. Harris and Bluege tried to put over a double steal, but Harris was sunk at third. Kuhel walked, but Spencer flied to Watwood.

Reynolds' home run smack, with one down in the sixth, gave the Sox a 2 to 1 edge, but the advantage did not prevail through the first of the seventh inning.

Jones, who had a single, a walk, a double and another single in his four trips to the plate, started the seventh with a double and went to third on Myer's sacrifice. Manush singled to center, driving home Jones with the tying run. Manush tried to stretch the hit to a double, but was out on Watwood's perfect throw to Kerr. Johnny again starred when he raced back to the center field wall to pull down Cronin's drive.

Pat Had His Troubles.

In their part of the seventh the Sox refused to let even a double play interfere with the manufacture of three runs. Cissell opened with a single to left. Grube attempted to sacrifice. The thing turned out to be better than a sacrifice, for Jones made a bad throw to second base and both runners were safe. Tate batted for Welland and singled to center, Cissell scoring and Grube stopping at second. Blue then hit into a double play, sinking with Tate, with Grube pulling up at third. Sullivan then doubled to the right field wall, scoring Grube, and scored himself on Reynolds' single to left. Carl got to second when Manush fumbled the ball, but died when Bluege threw out Fonseca.

The Senators scored one run off Caraway in the eighth on West's single and Kuhel's double. This made the score: Sox, 5; Senators, 3. And now here's what went on in that stirring ninth before Frasier took charge of the situation.

Jones started things with his third hit. Myer then smashed a drive to left and, luckily for the Sox, the ball bounded into the boxes. Ground rules required Jones to return to third, and Myer, who had reached third, to go back to second. Caraway then hit Manush with a pitched ball. The bases were full with none out and Caraway was out of the picture. Then Frasier stopped in with the results previously described.

Marian Kronberg Wins Public Parks Net Meet

Indians Win Double Bill from Yankees

Cleveland, O., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Indians survived Babe Ruth's 31st home run and Lou Gehrig's 32d today and walloped the New York Yankees in both ends of a double header, 13 to 7 and 9 to 1. The Indians won three of the four games.

Mel Harder was the victim of the Ruth and Gehrig homers in the first game, but he managed to keep New Yorkers eleven hits separated. Earl Averill hit his 23d circuit drive of the season with the bases loaded in the fourth inning.

only being consistent. They are taught to believe that their cause is just in all cases and in more roundabout words never to give the enemy an even break nor expect one from him. It would confuse them to be told one week that the young men of the other school are members of a hostile tribe and their professional inferiors and to be asked to forget it all the next week as the whole inviting campaign was only an exercise in the cultivation of the warlike spirit.

A cadet of superior mind might be able to draw off from the scene intellectually and compare the cheering practice and the hubbub to a job in propaganda by a government at war, but when a soldier or a sailor begins to analyze his own side's propaganda he is certain to lose enthusiasm and professional worth. A man about to take a drink cannot fully enjoy his dream if he first reads a chemist's report noting the presence of some lead and iodine. It is far better to close the eyes and believe in the drink.

It was hard to believe that mature officers could grow up feeling as they were said to about their colleagues of the opposite service, but the evidence indicates that they do all their kidding strictly on the level.

Bush Loses One Hit Skill; Phillies Win

scratched a hit to Bush and a clean single by Bartell scored Benge. When Klein walked, filling the bases, Manager Hornsby decided he had seen enough of Bush.

Sweetland pitched to three batters. One of them singled and the others walked. This much accounted for four of the seven runs. The three others got home on an infield out and Mallon's single off Baecht.

Hartnett Hits Homer.

The Cubs stirred up a little fuss in the fifth by scoring a pair, but gave them right back again. Grimm walked and walked around to the plate on Hartnett's home run into the seats in left. Then in the home half Benge led off with a double to center. Brickell grounded to English, who let the ball roll into center. Cuyler tried to pick it up, but it got away from him. Benge scored and Brickell went to second on the two errors. He scored on a single to left by Arlett.

After a long delay caused by rain and the labors of the ground manicurists, who mopped up much of the excess moisture by an ample application of sawdust, the Cubs put on a one run rally in the seventh. Grimm singled and was forced by Hartnett. Gabby, in turn, was forced by Bell. Hemsley swung for Baecht and swung so well that he hit the left field wall for a double, Bell halting at third. Blair then caromed a muddy single off Mallon's shin and Bell scored. The Phils replied to this with one run in their half on Teachout's walk to Mallon and a single by Bartell.

Teachout was beset by further complications in the eighth. Arlett opened with a single and went to third on Whitney's two bagger to left center. A pass to Davis loaded the bases and Arlett rumbled home while Mallon was forcing Davis. Benge then singled for his fourth hit of the dreary performance and Whitney scored.

Adair Reports Today.

By tomorrow the Cub party may be enlarged by one infielder. Jimmy Adair, the 22 year old shortstop from Clarence Rowland's Reading club, is due to report. He is a right handed hitter. The Cubs purchased him from Denver last year, but turned him over to Reading for seasoning. If he goes to short it probably will mean that English will have to operate at third base, but on this point Manager Hornsby isn't certain.

PHELPS BATTERS JOHNSON TO WIN 10 ROUND VERDICT

Cowboy Owen Phelps, 167 pound boxer of Phoenix, Ariz., rallied in the late rounds of a ten round bout last night to defeat Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, at the Denemark stadium. Phelps had Johnson on the verge of a knockout in the seventh, but failed to land the finishing blow.

Four other bouts, which supported the card, ended in knockouts. Tom Patrick, Los Angeles, sent Battling Molley, Chicago, to the canvas for the count in the second round of the eight round bout. A crowd of 3,000 watched the show.

In the three six round bouts, George Neron, after being floored, got up to land a hard right to the jaw and knock out Marion Matuzak in the first round. Dave Maier, Milwaukee, fought Ed Willis, a teammate from the 1928 Golden Gloves squad, and finished him in the sixth round. Charley Young, Chicago, disposed of Pat McLaughlin, also of Chicago, in the opening round.

Cubs to Play Sox in Charity Game, Sept. 9

friends for years," said Donie, "but on Sept. 9 we're going to be enemies for a day. The fans of Chicago probably would go to the game as a means of supporting a worthy cause, regardless of what kind of a game was in store for them. But they can take it from me that this won't be any ho-hum exhibition game with third stringers giving the regulars a day off. It will be the real McCoy, and the Sox pitcher who is showing the most stuff the first week in September is the lad who will be assigned to mow down those Cub sluggers.

Chance to Get Even.

"The Cubs beat us in a long series last fall, partly because we couldn't keep them crowded with pitching. But for this game we can shoot our best one, or three or four good ones if necessary, and I suppose Rog feels the same way about his pitching. Anyhow, our pitchers can get plenty of rest riding to New York after they've won the game."

Sox players, who are in high spirits these days, volunteered the information that their present bearing down tendencies will increase daily from now till Sept. 9, when they expect their baseball zeal to reach the peak.

"A great idea and we'll give the Sox the best lineup possible. We want them to give us the same because we won't be fooling."

Cubs' Hurlers Ready.

Hornsby's first thought was that the game, coming just after a series with the Cardinals, might catch the Cubs shy on pitching, but on second thought he figured he'd arrange to avoid a shortage.

All of the players, realizing the purpose of the game, declared they wouldn't bother about having a day off taken from them. Hack Wilson rather tactfully remarked that he might not even be in there but he "would at least lend his support from the bench."

Andy Lotshaw, the eminent trainer who never has been known to turn his back on extra work, said he would have to revise his September budget. The added game will necessitate one more half pint of rubbing lotion.

6,000 MILES IN A CANOE

Chicagoans Complete Record Trip in Frail Bark Today

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Six thousands miles of rivers, oceans and lakes behind them, two intrepid Chicagoans, Richard Grant and Ernest Lassy, this afternoon will beach their sea going canoe at the Lincoln Park Boat club. Their final jaunt, from Wilmette to Lincoln park, completed, Grant and Lassy will have circumnavigated the eastern half of the United States.

On Sept. 22, 1930, these modern explorers set forth to accomplish a task without parallel. As had the first explorer of the Mississippi river, Cavalier La Salle, who traversed the Father of Waters in 1682 to take possession of its mouth in the name of Louis XIV. of France, Grant and Lassy followed the Des Plaines and Illinois rivers to the Mississippi.

And Then to Florida.

From New Orleans their arduous journey led them to the Florida of Ponce de Leon, past the Virginia coast, first explored by Raleigh and John Smith, up the Hudson river, which bears the name of its discoverer, and then through four of the great lakes across which in the 17th century had come the canoes of the Jesuit fathers, Joliet and Marquette.

For the first time since the explorations of the Spaniards, French, and English, a canoe has circled the eastern half of the United States. The 6,000 mile journey, sanctioned by the American Canoe association, is the longest trip, from Chicago to New Orleans, these voyageurs of the 20th century set a record for the distance of six weeks, five days, and four hours.

Spend Night at Wilmette.

Last night Grant and Lassy rested at the United States coast guard station in Wilmette preparatory to padding to their last few miles back to the Lincoln Park Boat club, where civic officials and leaders will unite in a reception in their honor. Capt. Otto Fricke, the station commander, was their host.

We visited these seagoing canoeists last night and heard of their voyage. While the volatile Grant talked and showed us more than a hundred snapshots of camps, bays and beaches, we hearkened to the spell of wanderlust which had sent these boys on and on for 6,000 miles.

NAVY, MARINES CUT 5,800 MEN; MORE WILL GO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—A check-up today disclosed that the navy and marine corps have been reduced by a total of 5,800 men since the Hoover administration first announced its campaign for relief of unemployment. Before the end of the summer the total of marines and navy men added to the army of unemployed by administration economy orders will run well above the 6,000 mark.

No cuts have been registered in the enlisted strength of the regular army and inquiry today showed that its personnel is being kept close to the appropriated strength of 118,750.

First Cut in October.

The first cut in navy and marine enlisted strength came last October, when orders were issued slashing 4,800 men off the navy roster and reducing the enlisted strength to 79,700 men despite the fact that congress had appropriated funds to keep the navy up to a maximum of 84,500 men. The marine corps, with an appropriated strength of 18,000, was gradually pared down to 17,500.

As a result of the Hoover navy and marine corps reductions congress cut the 1932 fiscal year pay appropriations for these units last winter.

At the present time funds are provided for an enlisted navy strength of but 79,700 and marine roster of 17,500. A check today revealed that the new navy appropriated strength has been maintained this year up to date, although fears are entertained that a new slash may be ordered.

Maximum Set at 16,000.

The marine corps has not been so fortunate. Orders were issued a few days ago directing the corps to gradually reduce its enlisted personnel to 16,000 men, notwithstanding the fact that appropriations were voted at the short session for an enlisted strength of 17,500.

The enlisted strength of the marine corps today is 17,099.

Recruiting has been cut down for both the army and navy despite the fact that unemployment conditions have greatly increased the number of applicants for entrance. In most cases only reënlistments are accepted by the navy and marine corps.

Wife to Get Divorce from Lindheimer, Realty Man

Judge Ross C. Hall indicated yesterday that he would grant Mrs. Beatrice Block Lindheimer a divorce from Horace G. Lindheimer, real estate broker, on charges of cruelty. Lindheimer, a son of the late Jacob Lindheimer, for many years assistant county treasurer, and a brother of B. F. Lindheimer, president of the board of local improvements, filed an answer to his wife's divorce bill, denying the cruelty charges, but did not contest the suit. The couple were married Jan. 10, 1925. They have no children.

CANNON INQUIRY SET FOR AUG. 27; BISHOP ABROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The senate campaign funds investigating committee will continue its inquiry into the case of Bishop James Cannon Jr. on Aug. 27 and 28, it was announced today by Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota radical Republican, chairman of the committee.

A. R. ROBINSON. (C) Harris & Ewing

Senator Roscoe C. Patterson [Rep., Mo.] has resigned from the committee, and Vice President Curtis has named Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] as a substitute fifth member.

Senator Patterson pleaded the pressure of other duties as his reason for resigning. It is known, however, that he has at times disagreed with the policies of the other committee members in extending the scope of their inquiry and for acting, as it has been charged, with political ends in view.

The coming hearings, Senator Nye said, would virtually conclude the investigation into Bishop Cannon's alleged misuse of a large portion of $63,500 entrusted to him by E. C. Jameson of New York as a contribution to the anti-Smith campaign in Virginia in 1928. Though previously notified that the hearings would be held late in August or early in September, Bishop Cannon recently sailed for Europe with the announcement that it would not be convenient for him to return before Sept. 20.

Conrad E. Spens, 57 years old, executive vice president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad and an official of the federal fuel and food administration during the war, died yesterday in a hospital in London, where he had gone for his health. Mrs. Spens, who had been vacationing in Colorado, hurried to England last week when she learned that her husband's condition was becoming grave and when he died.

Mr. Spens was born in Princeton, Ill. He began his career as a stenographer for the Burlington after leaving business college in 1892. He rose steadily and in 1917 was made vice president in charge of traffic. Two years later he became executive vice president. In 1918 he acted as director of transportation for the United States food administration. After the federal fuel bill was signed by President Harding in 1922 he was appointed federal fuel distributor.

The Spens' residence is at 3500 Sheridan road. Mr. Spens is survived by his widow, two sons, Conrad and Gordon, and a daughter, Jean. Funeral services will be held in London.

U. S. RUM CHARGE FILED VS. JUDGE AND PROSECUTOR

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Both county and city governments went under investigation here today. The federal government charged conspiracy with bootleggers against two county officials. The city commission unanimously agreed to Mayor Ernest Lackey's demand for a complete audit of all city departments following failure to oust one commissioner on charges involving an alleged shortage.

Today's developments followed by hardly more than a week a grand jury inquiry into disappearance of certain county records which resulted in several indictments, including one against County Attorney Holland Bryan. Bryan and County Judge W. A. Middleton were charged in today's federal warrants with having conspired with five other persons to permit liquor to be sold.

The federal warrant named Judge Middleton, County Attorney Bryan, W. E. Hunt, a county patrolman; John C. Smith, Pete Timmons, William Bigham, and W. F. Hunting as having conspired to permit Timmons, Bigham, and Hunting to sell liquor in the county. It also charged Middleton, Bryan, Hunt, and Smith with having conspired to extort money from the other three to permit them to sell liquor.

GIRL WHO WON FIGHT TO STAY IN U.S. WEDS TODAY

Policeman Joseph P. Killian will today marry Miss Stefania Poczatko, for whom the department of labor set aside a deportation order recently that she might become the foster-mother of his three small children.

The wedding plans were announced last night by his attorney, Jacob Legion Tenny. Miss Poczatko was ordered deported because she entered this country on a false passport from Poland, and revocation of the deportation order is contingent upon her leaving the country voluntarily and returning under the nonquota provisions of the immigration act as the wife of an American citizen.

Accordingly, Killian and his bride will take a honeymoon trip to Canada or Cuba, while Attorney Tenny obtains from Washington a passport visa for the reëntry of Mrs. Killian to the United States.

"I am going to make an example of you in an effort to halt the practice of annoying girl bathers," Judge Graber said in passing sentence.

58TH ILLINOIS FIELD ARTILLERY ENDS WAR DRILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sparta, Wis., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The 58th Field Artillery brigade of the Illinois National Guard broke camp here today after a two weeks' encampment at Camp McCoy, described by Brig. Gen. Frank R. Schwengel of Chicago, brigade commander, as one of the most successful in the history of the outfit.

The brigade is composed of the 122d, 123d and 124th field artillery regiments and arrived at Camp McCoy Aug. 1. It had 1,800 officers and men and 845 horses in camp. The horses were loaded and shipped back last night, while the men entrained this morning.

Much Range Firing Done.

An unusual amount of firing on the range was done during the encampment, the 122d and 124th regiments using the French 75 mm. guns and the 123d, the French 155 mm. The 123d is a motorized unit.

Firing continued all this week until Thursday night, and also in three days of last week. The brigade was sent to Camp Grant last year, where no firing was possible. Camp McCoy, the second largest artillery camp in the United States, comprises more than 14,000 acres. Surprisingly good marks were made by the gunners this year, according to regular army instructors.

Gov. Emmerson a Visitor.

An outstanding event of the encampment was the visit of Gov. L. L. Emmerson of Illinois on Monday and Tuesday. In an address to the officers Gov. Emmerson expressed himself as highly pleased with the work and the morale of the brigade.

Boxing and nightly entertainments of the brigade were in charge of Chaplain Campbell, the only chaplain with the entire three regiments, who also conducted religious services Sundays.

A further expenditure of $60,000 will be made by the war department during the coming year for additional mess halls and permanent headquarters for brigade staffs, under the direction of Col. Howard R. Perry, camp commander. The 58th brigade is scheduled to return to Camp McCoy next year.

The 122d regiment, commanded by Col. Samuel P. Lawton, is located on the north side of Chicago, and the headquarters of the 124th, commanded by Col. Tom Hammond, is on Chicago's south side. Maj. Dell B. Hardin commands the 123d, with headquarters at Monmouth, Ill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—Terrorists today shot at the same Basel-Frankfort-Berlin express train which they wrecked with a dynamite blast last week. Near Erfurt two shots splintered the windows of a coach. The bullets lodged in the wall of a compartment. Nobody was hurt.

Near Hamburg terrorists erected a barricade on tracks, but quick application of the heavy brakes prevented a serious accident. Near Frankfurt, service on an interurban line was interrupted when a high tension electric cable was severed.

The police declare that they are following 600 clews in last week's train wreck. Rewards totaling $23,000 have been offered for information leading to the arrest of the terrorists.

LESTER LONERGAN, 60, NOTED ACTOR, DIES ON VISIT TO FRIENDS

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Word was received here today of the sudden death at Lynn, Mass., of Lester Lonergan, 60, noted actor, who was to have played in Eugene O'Neill's forthcoming trilogy, "Mourning Becomes Electra," scheduled for fall production by the Theater Guild. Mr. Lonergan, visiting friends in Lynn, was discussing the O'Neill play when stricken.

Mr. Lonergan was to have started rehearsals for "Mourning Becomes Electra" at the end of this month. He was to have played in the first play of the trilogy only. His last Broadway appearance was with Alice Brady in play, "Brass Ankle." Most of Mr. Lonergan's recent activity in the theater was concerned with the staging of plays, however, and among those with which he worked were "That's the Woman," "Love, Honor and Betray," "Tin Pan Alley," and "House Unguarded."

For several years Mr. Lonergan had been in ill health. His widow, two sons, three brothers and two sisters survive him.

TROOPS START FOR HOME FROM CAMP GRANT

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The tented city at Camp Grant rapidly melted away today as 7,500 troops of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, prepared to entrain for their homes tonight and tomorrow.

The annual two weeks' training period at an end, squad tents of the division were being struck and citizen soldiers spent tonight—their last at the camp—in "pup" tents.

On the eve of departure of the troops, appointment of Maj. Richard Swanson of Springfield to the office of United States property and disbursing officer in the Illinois National Guard, and his promotion to the rank of lieutenant colonel, was announced by Brig. Gen. Carlos Black, adjutant general.

Lieut. Col. Swanson's appointment is to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Col. Richings J. Shand, who leaves office Aug. 18. Lieut. Col. Swanson's duties in respect to federal property in the hands of the militia will be in addition to those in the finance department, where he has been since 1928.

The new property officer has had fourteen years' experience as officer and enlisted man in the army. He entered the service in 1918, a private in Company A, 5th anti-aircraft machine gun battalion, and served in the organization in France.

The vessel is 2,430 tons and has 75,000 horsepower engines. She is expected to make 36 knots.

The Epervier carries five 138 millimeter guns, one 750 millimeter gun and four 37 millimeter guns. She also carries seven torpedoes. Charles Dumont, minister of marine, witnessed the launching.

PRESS STUDY OF RARE DISEASE IN CALDWELL DEATH

Study of the mysterious disease, agranulocytosis, during the fatal illness of Mrs. Lillian Caldwell, wife of School Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell, who died at Grand Rapids, Mich., on Thursday, has added to the knowledge of medical science.

This was the statement last night of Mr. Caldwell, who said that his wife's illness had resulted in an accumulation of facts heretofore unknown in their entirety to medicine. The history of the case will be incorporated in the Medical Journal by Dr. James T. Mills, head of the Blodgett Memorial hospital, where Mrs. Caldwell died.

"When my wife was stricken, help was proffered by physicians and hospitals all over the country and even Canada," said Mr. Caldwell.

Mrs. Caldwell's body will be brought to Chicago tomorrow, and at noon taken to the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles A. Stephens at 520 Aldine avenue. It will remain there until 2 o'clock Monday. Funeral services will be held that afternoon in St. Peter's Episcopal church, Belmont avenue and Broadway. Burial will be at Forest Home cemetery. Mrs. Caldwell was 31 years old. Besides her husband and her mother, she is survived by a daughter, Suzanne. The Caldwell home is at the Belden-Stratford hotel.

AGED PATRIARCH OF GREEK CHURCH DIES IN PALESTINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, Aug. 14.—Dimitrius Damianos of Palestine and Trans-Jordan, patriarch in the Greek Orthodox church, who, with the patriarchs of Constantinople, Alexandria and Europe, headed the Greek Orthodox church of the world, died today at the age of 84 after a long illness.

Msgr. Damianos was born on the Greek island of Samos. He passed through numerous ecclesiastical positions, rising to the highest in 1897. Somewhat despotic, Damianos incurred the dislike of his holy synod, consisting of 14 bishops and metropolitans, who demanded that he be deposed. A special British government commission in 1921 decided this was not warranted.

The patriarchate is wealthy, with property valued at $20,000,000 in land, buildings, costly jewels, gold and silver ornaments, which has been presented by pilgrims to the monarchs and monasteries for many centuries. The patriarchate was founded in the year 451 and grew out of the Jerusalem bishopric of which Christ's brother, St. James the lesser, was considered first bishop.

Dr. Daniel H. Williams, nationally known colored surgeon who died Aug. 4, left more than half of his $100,000 estate to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in his will, which was filed yesterday for probate before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner.

The association received an outright bequest of $8,000 and half the income from a trust fund in which the residual estate was placed. The other half goes to Dr. Williams' niece and housekeeper, Ada Blanche Zaratt.

Other charitable bequests included $5,000 each to Meharry Medical college at Nashville and to Howard university in Washington for scholarships; $2,000 to a Y. W. C. A. in Washington and a like amount to St. Elizabeth's hospital in Chicago.

KILLS INVALID DAUGHTER AND SELF IN AUTO

McCordsville, Ind., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Herman Hanna, 45, and his invalid daughter, Alice, 14, were found shot to death in their automobile one-half mile south of McCordsville today. Hanford county authorities said Hanna shot his daughter and then committed suicide.

A note found in Hanna's clothing asked that a son, Hugh Hanna, of Denver, Colo., be notified.

Yesterday morning, Hanna drove to the home of Miss Jackson and took his daughter for a ride. Today, he returned and asked the girl if she would like to accompany him on a trip. She consented and several hours later their bodies were found in the front seat of the automobile.

FINDS SMALLER TRADE UNITS DO BEST IN SLUMP

Prove Able to Pare Down Overhead.

BY O. A. MATHER.

There has been much bemoaning in decay of the small business as result of the growth of big corporations. But the small independent enterprise is not by any means extinct and even has advantages over its huge competitors in times like these. This is shown in an industrial survey made by Frazier Jelke & Co., investment bankers, which contains a list of 79 companies which earned more in the second quarter of the year than in the preceding three months, while 100 companies reported improvement either in the second quarter or the first half of the year.

"One of the significant facts brought out by a study of results for the first half of the year is that the smaller units did comparatively better than the larger companies," the survey says. "Other things being equal, the smaller business unit has the advantage over the smaller in periods of great activity; while the smaller concern with its more controllable overhead can operate at a profit in depressed years when its larger competitor cannot.

Smaller Units Lead List.

"This accounts for the preponderance of small companies appearing in the list of 100 recently reporting improved earnings. The easy profits of the boom bred inefficiency. Operating costs and overhead expenses were relatively high in some cases and necessarily excessive in others. These high costs continued over into 1930 and it was not until the second half of last year or the first quarter of 1931 that any widespread attempt was made to 'keep out of the red' by savage economy.

"The second quarter earnings of numerous corporations, particularly smaller units, show that the results of economy programs now are beginning to appear in income accounts. There are some things to suggest that the lowest level of corporation profits may have been reached. Consumer, retailer, wholesaler and manufacturer inventories are low, even though there is a great surplus of raw materials and commodities. Society soon must begin to create as much as it consumes. It cannot live indefinitely on its accumulated surplus of manufactured goods. Current consumer demand and economy programs should make possible the return of domestic industry and commerce to a more profitable basis in a reasonable time."

Great A. & P. Does Well.

Many of the big enterprises are doing well, however. The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company reported yesterday that more goods were sold during the five weeks ended July 1 than in the corresponding period last year, based on tonnage, although dollar sales declined slightly, due to lower commodity prices.

Sales, expressed in tons, were 513,-000 this year, compared with 491,644 a year ago, registering a gain of 51,-356 tons, or 11.14 per cent. Dollar sales totaled $95,527,987, compared with $96,722,870, a decline of $1,195,-883, or 1.24 per cent.

Greater economy and efficiency in the conduct of all businesses, both large and small, is suggested in the daily record of commercial failures compiled by Bradstreet's Review. Industrial failures last month were the smallest in number for any month this year, totaling 1,931. This represented a decrease of less than 1 per cent over July, 1930, which was the smallest comparative increase shown by any month this year. In the trade groups, retailers constituted the largest group failing last month, amounting to 46.6 per cent of the total number.

VANADIUM CORP. HAS SIX MONTHS LOSS OF $129,836

The Vanadium Corporation of America and subsidiaries yesterday reported a net loss of $129,836 after depreciation and other charges for the first six months of this year. This compares with a net loss of $133,253 in the preceding six months and with a net profit of $1,250,237, or $3.39 a share, on the 370,367 shares of capital stock in the first half of last year, which included the profit on the resale of the company's own stock.

Current assets as of June 30 totaled $2,551,114, including $889,275 of cash, and current liabilities totaled $270,249, as compared with $6,640,901 and $370,-611, respectively, at the same time last year.

Simmons Company Reports Net Loss of $268,310

A net loss of $268,310 was sustained by the Simmons company and subsidiaries in the first half of this year, after consolidated income account does. This loss, which is after depreciation, taxes, reserves for maintenance and advertising and after dividends paid on the preferred stock of subsidiary companies, compares with a consolidated net profit of $166,631, or $.56 a share on 1,132,236 shares of stock in the first six months of last year.

Engineer's Public Service Ends Offices of Chairmen

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 14.—A. W. Leonard, who resigned in Boston from the chairmanship of the board of directors of the Puget Sound Power and Light company, did so "in accordance with the new practice of the Engineers' Public Service, parent corporation, which eliminates that office and vests all executive responsibility in the presidents of the local subsidiaries," according to J. F. McLaughlin, president of the company.

Investors Seeking Returns May Speed Bond Recovery

BY SCRUTATOR.

The market for first grade bonds has been exceptionally good for a year. The demand has not yet spread in a large way to other classes of bonds, but qualified observers believe that the return of something like normal demand for such issues will not be long in coming.

Unless one is pessimistic enough to believe that there is to be a complete economic collapse, there is good reason for anticipating a comeback for bonds generally in the not distant future.

"There are important indications that an increasing demand is gradually growing under the surface and should make itself felt in the comparative near future," says one large house in its current monthly bulletin.

Seek Higher Yields.

"The most important of these indications is found in the actual sales experience of underwriting houses, which in many instances have recently noted a growing dissatisfaction with the extremely low yields which are available on the bonds that have been most popular in recent months, coupled with increasing inquiry regarding opportunities that exist among good investment issues yielding around 5 to 5½ per cent.

"Unless untoward events interfere with the development of this tendency, we believe it will become more and more evident in the coming months."

In the stock field, also, there is evidence that confidence is not entirely lacking. Although speculative trading has dropped to a minimum, signs point to a quiet accumulation of the higher grade issues.

Despite discouraging earnings reports, the number of common stockholders of U. S. Steel increased from 129,626 in June, 1930, to 141,907 at the close of the year and further increased to 156,239 when the books were closed for the June, 1931, dividend.

American Telephone and Telegraph had 567,694 stockholders at the end of 1930, against 469,801 the year before. In the same period Electric Bond and Share's common stockholders increased from 74,000 to 93,944.

Show Public's Interest.

The mail receipts of the Tribune Investors' Guide likewise indicate that there has been no diminution in the public's interest in securities, even though the volume of purchases has been curtailed.

In the first six months of the current year 12,284 letters asking for advice on investment matters were written to the Investors' Guide, the highest number received in any half year since the department was started in June, 1914.

The mail count for the corresponding period of 1930 was 10,177. In the first half of 1929 the department received 9,156 letters and in the first half of 1928, 8,428.

An analysis made by the Investors' Guide of all letters received in the three weeks ended Aug. 11, 1931, revealed that only eight per cent of the inquiries came from investors holding defaulted real estate issues or other securities in trouble. Another 2.6 per cent were from holders of stock in dead companies.

Seen Possible Purchasers.

Nine per cent of the inquirers held securities and were making a periodic checkup. Advice on the advisability of making a switch was sought by 4.3 per cent. The bulk of the letters, however, were from persons apparently considering purchase of the stock or bonds they were asking about, although 37 per cent were unclassified, the writers merely asking for information and not specifying whether purchase was contemplated.

This analysis covered a period when there were few new offerings and the general trend of the market was downward. It has been the experience of the Investors' Guide that when there is any considerable volume of new offerings or when the market movement is upward the proportion of inquiries coming from prospective purchasers increases.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 14.—Lack of any well defined general commercial trends, with business doing little more than marking time, and here and there a briskness showing that summer quiet may be passing, was the situation reported today by the weekly trade reviews.

R. G. Dun & Co. reported that various favorable signs were offset by unfavorable factors, and price unsettlements were again a disturbing influence in some of the leading markets. The outlook for the rest of the quarter, the report said, was not so clear as it appeared to be only a few weeks ago. Retail sales of seasonable merchandise have made a fair showing, but the volume is below expectations. Some wholesalers were busier, chiefly those specializing in accessories and piece goods.

"Buyers of high priced merchandise continue conservative in their commitments," the report said. "The broadening of fall buying in dry goods was temporarily checked by the first government cotton crop estimate and condition report for the season. The promised yield is 1,500,000 bales above trade estimates and expectations, and threatens to add greatly to an unusually large carry-over from the last crop year. Cloth prices weakened and the effect of the report on related textile markets was quieting for a time.

"Definite sales improvement is reflected in millinery orders, with the heaviest volume in two years reported by some houses. The frequent duplication of orders is becoming particularly marked in men's wear, the movement of which had been slow.

"A sharp gain in the orders for furniture is reported in some centers, and interest is stronger in rugs and carpets. Industrial conditions, while lacking anything that betrays normal production, are not barren of encouraging phases."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Defeat of the federal farm board's plan to solve the cotton surplus problem by plowing under one-third of the crop now in the fields was seen here today in the flood of opposition registered by public officials and the press by the board only two days after its announcement.

Eight governors of the fourteen cotton growing states, through press interviews, went on record against the proposal, and five replies received at the farm board opposed the plan. Chairman James C. Stone had estimated that ten of the fourteen cotton states must coöperate to make the plan, involving destruction of an estimated 4,000,000 bales, successful.

Analysis of the farm board plan by some experts made it appear today that even this program, if carried out, would do little toward aiding prices; for it would leave a carry-over of 7,000,000 bales next year, or enough to depress the market, despite the fact that 3,000,000 bales of the 7,000,000 would be held by the cotton stabilization corporation and coöperatives under a pledge not to sell until next July 31.

Texans Against It.

The reported indorsement of the plan by Gov. Ross Sterling of Texas, which he later denied, was nullified to a great extent by telegrams from Representatives Patman and Blanton of Texas, both opposing the proposal. Representative Patman said he would push legislation aimed at guaranteeing 20 cents a pound for cotton and $1 a bushel for wheat.

According to the farm board, the governors of Alabama, Georgia and Florida agreed that "something should be done," but none of them favored destruction of a portion of the current crop.

Meanwhile the farm board received from Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.] a proposal which was not made public but was described as suggesting that the cotton stabilization corporation purchase 7,000,000 additional bales of cotton to add to the 1,300,000 bales it now holds. It was believed there was no doubt that this suggestion would not be carried out.

To Be Campaign Issue.

The farm board has evolved no other plans. The impression is general here that the acreage destruction proposal represented its last bolt. It is felt that attacks upon its most recent proposal more than ever insure its being a major issue in congress next year, with President Hoover being forced into the position of its defender in view of the fact that it was set up at his suggestion.

Manufacturer Assails Plan.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Boston Post says that Ward Thoron, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, has sharply criticized, in a statement, the proposal of the federal farm board that southern planters destroy one-third of their cotton crop. The Post quotes Thoron as saying:

"If these gentlemen of the federal farm board wish to improve the condition of the cotton farmer and help towards the rehabilitation of the cotton manufacturing industry, they will cease predicting disaster, for that is a sure way of bringing it about.

"What is a rational plan may be a debatable subject, but holding the cotton off the market for another year only prolongs the uncertainty and postpones the return to normal economic conditions. If they should undertake to liquidate their position at the rate of 25,000 bales a week and keep at it, and keep out of such a mess for the future, we would know what to expect and be able to adjust our business accordingly."

New York, Aug. 14.—Stocks continued to thrive on talk of banking support for the market today. Prices lumbered ahead from 1 to 3 points as a rule and in some instances gains of even more impressive proportions were recorded.

Short covering was obviously responsible for a large measure of the improvement, although, as any tyro knows, there must be some buying of a more original nature to start the shorts hauling in their lines. Orders fed out by two or three of the big operators supposed to be banded together for a "try" at an extended rally were said to furnish the required impetus today as they did yesterday.

That the advance did not make even greater headway than it did was due to extensive profit taking which developed in the afternoon. It was a natural development in view of the recoveries registered by the market on three of the five trading days so far this week. Many of those "in" on the rise had been able to roll up simble long accounts for the first time since back in June and it was to be expected that they should want to convert some of their paper holdings into cash before somebody started rocking the boat.

Is Well Absorbed.

While selling of this character was sufficient to force many active issues slightly down from their high levels of the day, it was absorbed in impressive fashion. Indeed numerous stocks were able to wade through the realising tide to fractionally higher levels.

The rails continued to act up to the role assigned them as one of the pace-making groups of the recovery. These shares, long the drawback to the recovery, have upset the applecart on more than one occasion here of late and gossip of bargains to be had in the department is often the occasion of some rather ribald comment. Undoubtedly they have had a terrible shaking out in the last four or five months, however, and it would seem that the liquidation here has gone far enough to justify some of the optimism being expressed in quarters most di-

COTTON COMPANY PLANS INTENSIVE AD CAMPAIGN

Despite the present tendency toward reduction in amount of advertising done by manufacturers, the Pepperell Manufacturing company announces the largest advertising campaign in its history, commencing early in September. Pepperell is an important cotton manufacturer. Commenting on the campaign, Allyn P. McIntire, vice president in charge of advertising and sales promotion, said:

"Prosperity is not attained merely by wishing for it. We consider the time ripe for the most intensive selling campaign we can wage, but do not say this for our selfish advantage alone. Before a modern concern can make money it must spend money, and Pepperell is spending money for printing, typesetting, engraving, electrotyping, and for the support of other trades. The manufacturer who curtails his advertising at this time or entirely drops it is working more hardship than he realizes on skilled workers whose wives may have been among his best customers in the past."

CHICAGO STOCKS FOLLOW WALL ST. PRICE EXAMPLE

Exploit News to Bring Rise in Market.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Basing their operations on the prospect of a fall revival in business, traders pushed forward yesterday with a campaign designed to attract the truant back to the stock market. The professional groups, which are loosely classified in financial terminology as the "constructive forces," were at work in a number of stocks exploiting the news and gossip which fitted into the revival pattern.

Traders here accepted the leadership of the New York operators and pushed activities in favored stocks. The street heard that Radio is one of the stocks chosen to lead the market out of the summer doldrums. Rumors of groups being formed to push certain stocks were heard frequently. Commission houses were more bullish in their advice to customers. Speculative fever appeared to be spreading somewhat.

Centers in Favorites.

On the Chicago exchange the price improvement in the great majority of stocks was meager enough, but considered satisfactory in the light of recent market history. The real trading centered in a few stocks like Bendix, Insull Utility and U. S. Radio. Sponsors of Bendix are emphasizing the benefits that will accrue to the company through its new accessory products. The firm, it is claimed, is in an enviable position to take advantage of a turn in the business trend. Insull Utility had the advantage of efficient sponsorship.

The activity in Houdaille Hershey B stock inspired reports that the company's six months' report will make a better showing than has been anticipated.

Turnover Is Larger.

Total transactions yesterday amounted to 116,000 shares, which is considerably in excess of the average daily turnover in the last few weeks. The bulk of the day's trade was conceded to be largely professional, but brokers were optimistic over the prospect of an early increase in public participation.

Directors of the Central Public Service corporation yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent on the class A stock, placing the issue on a 5 per cent annual basis. In the previous quarter the company paid 2½ per cent quarterly 10 per cent yearly on the A stock. The regular quarterly dividends on the preferred stocks were authorized by the directors.

MORE SHIPPERS PROTEST AGAINST RAIL RATE RAISE

Report Increase Will Turn Traffic to Trucks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Shippers of petroleum, granite, sand and gravel, paper and paper products, and phosphate rock today told the interstate commerce commission that an increase in freight rates on these commodities would have a serious effect on them and the public when further testimony was taken on the application of the railroads for a 15 per cent increase in rates.

L. L. Lenz of the Valvoline Oil company of Pittsburgh, Pa., said the petroleum industry was now perhaps in the worst period of depression that it had ever suffered, and that it was in addition to stand an increase in freight rates.

"We are very much concerned with the outlook for our exports," he said, "and that the industry felt any increase in rates on which export shipments moved would be a very serious matter, and that an increase of 8 or 10 cents a hundredweight, as proposed, would be disastrous.

Urge Lower Export Rates.

Export rates lower than the domestic rates on petroleum should be established, he said.

E. A. Darrer, traffic manager of the Sinclair Oil company, said it would be utterly impossible for his company to continue the shipment of kerosene into New England under the increase proposed. He declared that the railroads had lost a good deal of traffic to trucks by reason of high rates for high-class freight, and that unless these rates are reduced that diversion of traffic will continue. He urged the railroads to make "judicious rate revisions to meet the competition of other forms of transportation."

I. S. White, traffic manager of the Standard Refining company, Bradford, Pa., said cities present short haul rates which compel the company to enter the truck transportation field unless they were reduced.

Chicagoan on List.

Coal and gravel shippers, through T. E. Ahearn of the National Sand and Gravel association; G. W. Renwick, vice president of the Chicago Gravel company, Chicago; Rollen J. Windrow of Dallas, Tex., and Alex. W. Dann of Pittsburgh, Pa., asserted that the proposed increase would divert sand and gravel further to trucks and water carriers and thus decrease rather than increase the revenues of the carriers. They also urged reductions in rates that would increase the revenue from shipments of these commodities.

I. L. Wilson, president of the American Paper and Pulp association, said that as principal shippers of paper and paper products had registered practically unanimous protest against an increase in rates.

AGREE ON SHORT TERM CREDITS FOR HUNGARY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 14.—A plan for granting existing short term credits to Hungary similar to the plan worked out for handling German short term credits has been agreed upon by bankers here said today that they had been notified that the plan advanced by them for renewing German short term credits was substantially in accord with the attitude of Dutch and British bankers. Since about 80 per cent of Germany's short term indebtedness is due to American, British, and Dutch bankers, agreement among these three groups is an important step toward a final plan.

HOLD CHAPMAN GROUP VICTOR IN SHIP LINE FIGHT

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—It was learned in well informed shipping circles today that Paul W. Chapman, backed by R. Stanley Dollar and Joseph R. Dawson, had defeated the International Mercantile Marine interests in their efforts to control of the United States lines.

T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the United States Shipping board, conferred with representatives of both groups, but would make no comment on the probable results. He said he would return to Washington late today, and that an announcement of course would be made there next week.

The support of Mr. Chapman by other steamship operators came as a distinct surprise to shipping circles, since a group of foreign lines hurried to ratify their home offices of the prospect of a new gigantic American shipping combine in the highly competitive north Atlantic trade, in which the United States line alone now fly the United States flag.

WHEAT SELLING CHECKS UPTURN IN GRAIN MARKET

September Corn at New Low for Season.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Action of the wheat market the last few days was taken by many close observers of conditions as indicating that a higher level of prices would have resulted were speculative interest of normal proportions. As it is the market yesterday made a fair response to strength in Liverpool and Winnipeg early, but sufficient selling developed against the offers to check the upturn, and later some of the early buyers took the selling side in sympathy with the break in corn and the close was at net losses of ⅛@¾c. September finished at 50 to 50@50¼c December, 53⅛ to 53⅜c, and May, 57⅛c.

Wet weather in Europe is resulting in some damage to both the quantity and quality of the new wheat crops, and the estimate on the French yield is being reduced, being now placed around 280,000,000 bu, or about 57,000,000 bu less than the average annual disappearance of recent years. One effect of the wet weather has been to increase the demand for choice dry Manitobas, and France has been reported as a buyer of the latter grade for several days, with further business yesterday.

Outsiders Buy at Liverpool.

An improvement in the milling demand for cash wheat and buying by outsiders on the wet weather in the United Kingdom and on the continent were factors in advancing Liverpool prices sharply, with the close at net gains of ⅞@1d, the October being 57⅛c at the last. Winnipeg reacted after being firmer early, and closed unchanged to ⅛c lower, with October at 55⅛c.

Contract grades of cash wheat in all of the leading American markets are now at a fair premium over the September delivery, reflecting a continued active demand from mills. No. 2 hard in the local market brought 2@3c over the future, the widest difference on the crop, while No. 1 hard at the gulf for last half August loading was quoted at September price, showing an advance of 3c as compared with the price prevailing a short while ago.

Russia Sells Freely.

Russia continues to sell wheat freely, and was reported to have disposed of 750,000 bu yesterday to the United Kingdom. Cables from abroad claimed that the rumor England would impose an import duty of 10 per cent on wheat was without foundation. An Indian wheat crop of 348,000,000 bu, or 41,000,000 bu less than harvested last year, was officially estimated, but as has been the case for some time past, the trade is not inclined to pay any attention to statistics.

Scattered liquidation and also persistent selling by the local element were under way in September corn and after a moderate advance early, the market started downward. With stop loss orders uncovered it sold down to 46¼c, a new low for the season. Buying by shorts and local professionals caused a rally from the inside figure, but the finish was 1⅛c lower at 47 to 47¼c. Commission houses were persistent buyers of the new crop months, which closed only ¼c lower, with December at 39⅛ to 39⅝c, and May, 43⅞ to 44c. The September-December spread was only 6⅛c at the last, compared with 10½c at the close on Monday.

Cash Corn Demand Slow.

Unfavorable reports regarding the condition of western ranges which suggested the necessity of heavy feeding of live stock had some effect on futures early. Shipping demand for cash corn remains relatively slow, with sales of 68,000 bu reported, while the basis in the sample market was ⅛@1½c lower as compared with the September.

Spreading operations furnished a good part of the trade in oats. There was buying of September and selling of December at 1⅛c difference, and selling of December against purchases of May at 2⅛c premium for the latter. The close was unchanged to ¼c lower with September, 22¾ to 22⅝c; December, 24c, and May, 26½c.

The rye market continues to be dominated by the action of wheat and closed ¼@⅝c lower, September being 34¼c; December, 38c, and May, 41⅝c at the last. The increase of 5,000,000 bu in the Canadian carryover as compared with last year had little effect. As near as can be figured the North American available supply for the 1931-'32 season is about 48,000,000 bu, compared with 82,000,000 bu the previous year.

RANGES ARE DRY; FEED IS SHORT

Ranges in the west are very dry and the supply of feed is the shortest in many years, as indicated by the August report on range conditions. Live stock is in fair to good condition but shows considerable shrinkage due to poor feed. Continued dry weather with high temperatures during July seriously damaged range feed in most of the area west of the continental divide. High ranges in these areas are in fair to good shape but lower ranges are poor to fair. Stock water is short in many sections and prospects for fall and winter ranges poor in Montana, western Dakota, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, California, eastern Oregon and Washington and northeastern and southwestern Wyoming and western Colorado.

CUT FRENCH ESTIMATES

"Early estimates, placing the French wheat crop at 270,000,000 bu, have been reduced owing to the bad weather, and serious damage is claimed," reports Russells' News. "The average crop for the last seven years is 279,000,000 bu and average imports 38,383,000 bu, making their total requirements 317,000,000 bu. With a crop around 280,000,000 bu, as recently estimated, they would be 37,000,000 bu short of requirements. With a good deal of damaged and wet wheat and with stocks of old wheat reported exhausted, it would seem that France would need heavy imports this year, possibly a record."

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed firm: sales, 840 bales. Sept., $2.34; Dec., $2.41; May, $2.53. Crude market quotations (spot day basis), Shanghai steam, extra B, $2.05. Cotton double, extra A, 14@16a, $1.70. Japanese crack double extra, $2.70.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

France, Germany and Holland were reported to have taken fair amounts of Manitoba wheat yesterday, and while quantities were not given it was intimated around 500,000 bu had been sold during the day. There was also a little business put through in American hard winters. Delay in harvest in Europe due to wet weather and damage to the quality is expected to result in further good buying. No. 1 hard winter for last half August loading at the Gulf was quoted at Chicago September price with first half September at ½c over.

Local handlers sold 3,000 bu wheat; 68,000 bu corn and 40,000 bu oats to the domestic trade with 15,000 bu wheat, 10,000 bu corn, and 3,00 bu oats booked to arrive.

Cash wheat basis continues to advance and was quoted as steady to ½c higher in the local sample market yesterday with mills good buyers. No. 1 red was ⅝@1c over; No. 2 red, ⅛@⅜c over; No. 3 red, September to ½c under; No. 1 hard, 2½@3c over; No. 2 hard, 2@3c over; No. 3 hard, 1@1½c over and No. 1 northern, 2½@2⅝c over the September.

Demand for cash corn was slow and the basis was ½@1½c lower as compared with the September, closing around the bottom. No. 1 and No. 2 mixed was 3c over; yellow, 3½@5c over and white, 5@7c over the future with No. 3 mixed, 2c over; yellow, 6@8½c over and white, 4@6c over the future.

Old No. 2 white oats sold at 2½@3⅝c over the September while new were quoted at September price to ⅝c over. New No. 3 white were ⅜c over to 1½c under the future. No. 2 rye was 2@4c over September.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Cotton goods continued quiet today but showed more resistance to price declines. Rayon production was active and the demand for rayon yarns and fabrics continues steady. Silk was firmer and silk goods were selling moderately. Wool goods were quiet. Burlaps showed firmness.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The wheat trade is inclined to the belief that until there is a greatly increased outside buying interest in the market a good advance is not likely. Spreading operations are on a large scale but they are not conducive to a bull market, without outside help. Trading between Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg enlivens business in these three markets, but none of them appear to be getting anywhere. Several of the large locals are either non commital or inclined to do their buying only on breaks and take profits on fair bulges.

"There are approximately 35,000,000 bu of September wheat open in the Chicago market, a large part of which doubtless is owned speculatively by the general public," says S. C. Harris. "It is usual, in approaching a delivery month, for some of these holders to liquidate outright and the balance switch into the deferred months. We imagine at the current low price level there will be more than the ordinary transferring, rather than outright liquidation. At the same time, in a market which is somewhat narrow, the outright selling is bound to have a certain effect, and for that reason we expect an erratic action around the current level until after September selling is completed."

Holders of September corn, who believed that the large holdings of cash grain would have a strengthening influence on the market have been selling out all week and it is off 11¼c from the high in about two weeks, getting down to 46¼c yesterday, a new low for the season. Commission houses have liquidated steadily the last two days and shorts have covered, leaving the technical situation weakened and expectations are that September will get down near the December level. A little increase in country offerings, with a limited cash demand, has been a weakening factor.

COTTON HIGHER EARLY; PRICE BREAKS LATER

Trade buying, with moderate offerings, advanced prices fairly early yesterday, while profit taking and general selling later carried prices down. The day's range, however, was within 20 points and the close at intermediate figures, with futures in Chicago off 5@6 points, New Orleans 5@7 points, and New York 5@10 points. Spots dropped 5 points, with New York, 6.95c; New Orleans, 6.80c; Galveston, 6.85c; and Houston, 6.75c. Liverpool closed 3 points net higher, with spot sales 7,000 bales.

The south is reported greatly stirred up over the farm board's request for a cut in the crop by the destruction of about one-third of the acreage. The cotton consumption report for the month of July, which was expected, was not given out. Into sight movement for the week was 46,000 bales, compared with 40,752 bales last week and 124,080 bales last year. Spinners' takings for the week were 149,000 bales, compared with 136,000 bales last week and 125,000 bales last year. Prices follow:

BUTTER FUTURES RALLY

Pressure at the opening in November butter was swept aside later, the market recovering an early break to close ½c higher. November eggs were weak at the start but reacted to close unchanged. Idaho potatoes lost 1c, while other deliveries were unchanged. Continued realizing on the recent butter advance and new hedging brought about a dip of ½c at the start, but receipt of favorable storage news again prompted improved buying. The net outward movement of butter was 400,000 lbs greater than the year ago movement. Egg trading continues restricted, due largely to grain uncertainty. The inclination is to watch the storage movement for a time. There were 2,300 cases less out in the four markets than last year. Sales: Butter, 2,242,400 lbs; eggs, 540,000 doz; potatoes, 960,000 lbs. Prices follow:

HOG PRODUCTS HIGHER

A sharp advance in lard yesterday was due to moderate offerings and a sharp upturn in hog prices, together with a stronger, higher stock market. Closing prices were around the best of the day with net gains of 15@23½c on lard and 50c on bellies. Liverpool lard was 2d@1s 3d lower, the latter on October. N. Y. BOND MART REVERSES TREND TO SCORE GAINS

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The bond market reversed the trend of the preceding days this week and scored a general advance, which was most noticeable among railroad and foreign issues. This change was the more remarkable because activity was curtailed sharply. Sales on the New York Stock exchange totaled $6,795,000, compared with $8,035,000 yesterday.

The widest advances occurred among the foreign issues, where net gains ranged from fractions to 10½ points, which was the extent of the net advance in city of Montevideo 7s. The latter and other Uruguayan issues responded presumably to the negotiations for further loans to that republic. The news that Dutch bankers have agreed with the British and American bankers in extending current short term credits to Germany served to stimulate confidence in the European situation generally.

Sizable gains were scored by such active foreign issues as German 5½s, German Central Agricultural Bank 7s of 1950, Colombian 6s of October, 1961, whose fiscal agents announced that funds for the Oct. 1 service charge had been received, Caldas Dept. of Colombia 7s, Australian 5s of 1955, Argentine 6s of June, 1959, Brazilian 6s and Berlin 6s.

The average price of ten foreign rail bonds closed at 94.3, a net gain of four-tenths of a point for the day. Public utility and industrial issues generally were steady and quiet, though the latter tended to decline at times.

CLARK CLUB FOR GIRLS LEASES TWO RESIDENCES

One on Kenmore; Other on North State.

BY AL CHASE.

Miss Nancy E. Clark, who came to Chicago from Oklahoma six years ago and established the Clark club for girls at 720 Rush street, yesterday leased the residence at 5617 Kenmore avenue. She also recently leased the Engel property at 1444 North State street. These two houses have enabled the original club quarters on Rush street.

The North State street property is a three story residence, 50x132, which has been in possession of the Engel family for four decades. William J. Engel leased it to Mrs. Clark. The Kenmore has been made into a dormitory. There will be accomodations for about twenty girls. Miss Mellichamp Martin was the only broker.

For Out of Town Girls.

The property at 5617 Kenmore avenue was leased from Wilhelmina C. Fischer. Arnold P. Linder & Co. were the only brokers. This club branch will accommodate about fifteen girls. The Clark club was originated by Mrs. Clark as a reasonably priced home for girls from out of town who come to Chicago to work. They can live there for $4, $5 and $6 a week, which includes two meals, breakfast and dinner.

The Reliance Bank and Trust company has taken title through master commissioner's deed to the thirty apartment building at 1127 Farwell avenue, lot 50x176, from Lena Cohn and Clara Kirkland, Fleming, Green and Green were attorneys.

The one story building at 3559-65 Palmer street, lot 125-125, has been sold by Alex and Ida Nusinow to the Goldsmith Dairy Products company for an undisclosed consideration. Goldstein were attorneys.

Buys Six Flat Building.

The six apartment building at 1138-40 North Lawndale avenue, lot 50x124, has been purchased by Loreto S. Soler, of Milwaukee, from Miss Jane Bridgeton for an undisclosed price. Isaac Kennedy, Stein & Bachrach were attorneys.

This is the thirty-two apartment building at the southwest corner of Kenmore avenue and East 77th street, lot 80x124, has been transferred by Judd Monson to Mathew Ross, subject to an incumbrance of $127,500. Bristol Mellwaine was broker.
